Saar Votes Today; Rule Is at Stake

NAZIS PREDICT BASIN'S RETURN TO GERMANY

500,000 Expected to Go to Polls.

Election in Nutshell

About 500,000 Saarlanders will vote today in the league of nations' plebiscite to determine the future of the rich Saar basin. They have three choices:

1—Reunion with Germany.
2—Union with France.
3—Continuation of league control.

Men and women who were residents of the territory on June 28, 1919, the day the treaty of Versailles was signed, may vote. An overwhelming majority of Saarlanders are German. Although the feeling against Adolf Hitler and the Nazis is high, the majority is expected to vote for a return to Germany.

The vote, however, is not final. The league was given the power, by the Versailles treaty, to dispose of the Saar. The plebiscite serves as indication of the inhabitants' sentiment. If it is deemed best, the league is empowered to divide the basin between France and Germany.

BULLETIN.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 13 (Sunday.)—(AP)—Voting in the Saar plebiscite began at 8:30 a. m. today (1:30 a. m., Chicago time) with long queues of men and women waiting to be among the first to vote. Nazi ward leaders, to bring out a big vote for Germany, rang all doorbells and advised the eligibles to cast their ballots before noon. Among the first to vote was a group of American Saarlanders led by George Streifler of Pittsburgh.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 12.—Some 800,000 bewildered Germans, mostly coal miners or blast furnace workers, tonight are awaiting the actual result of the costliest, most complicated, and most important experiment in self-determination a people has ever carried out.

Tomorrow is the day of the plebiscite at which 540,000 registered voters of the rich Saar territory will decide whether they want to continue under the régime of the league of nations. be annexed to France or be returned to Germany. The issue is simple enough, but months of frantic propaganda by all sides have beclouded the minds of the voters to the point where they no longer know what it is all about.

Demands League Intervention.

Communists, Socialists, and Catholics of the anti-Nazi United Front are contesting the vote in advance. Max Braun, dynamic Socialist leader of the anti-Hitler forces, has telegraphed to Geneva demanding intervention by the league of nations on the grounds that the Nazi terror and underhanded election methods have rendered anything like a free vote impossible.

The plebiscite commission, which was appointed by the league, met this morning to consider Braun's protest, but was unable to reach any conclusion except to refer the matter to Geneva.

Tomorrow night, after the polls close, is when the Saar volcano will erupt if reports received by anti-Nazi headquarters are correct.

Nazi Outbreak Feared.

According to information brought in by spies of the United Front, the confident Nazis are planning to descend into the streets as soon as the voting booths are closed and raise swastika flags and emblems everywhere in defiance of restrictions.

Furthermore, according to the anti-Nazi, the Nazi German Front is preparing to burn election posters and other insignia of the United Front in giant bonfires. The Nazis also plan to occupy all town and city halls, say the reports.

Nazis respond to this expression of fear by declaring the reports are pure propaganda calculated to arouse world opinion.

Just to increase the confusion the question has been raised unofficially

SHIRLEY TEMPLE POLICY FORBIDS CAREER IN ARMY

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Shirley Temple, tiny film star, must not harbor ideas that some day she can take up arms in defense of her country.

Nor will she be able to collect on a $25,000 accident insurance policy if she suffers injury while intoxicated.

Those are two of many restrictions imposed upon the actress in a policy obtained for her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Temple.

The policy was written by British firms on a pro rata basis, for no local company would underwrite a policy for so large a sum on a child.

Nab $700,000 Swindler for U. S. Prison

Oscar M. Hartzell, one time Iowa farmer who swindled persons all over the United States of $700,000 with a fabulous claim to the estate of Sir Francis Drake in England, was arrested late last night by the Chicago avenue police, at the request of federal authorities, in his room at the Croydon hotel.

Hartzell was convicted 14 months ago in the Federal court at Sioux City, Ia., of using the mails to defraud and was sentenced to 10 years in Leavenworth penitentiary. He appealed the conviction and obtained his liberty on bonds of $25,000. The Supreme court of the United States recently refused to review the case and Hartzell was to have surrendered in Sioux City at midnight.

Suspect Failure to Surrender.

His failure to leave Chicago for the Iowa city was taken as evidence that he did not intend to surrender and the police were requested to hold him.

When Detectives John Onthank, William Degan, and Thomas Hayes appeared at the hotel, Hartzell declined to open the door. After conferring by telephone with a friend he relented and allowed the police to lead him away.

"I had no notice to surrender," he said in a surly tone. "Chicago is my home and I want to stay here."

As he was being led to a cell in the police station, he remarked that he would "never be taken to Leavenworth." The police, fearing that he planned to kill himself, deprived him of his suspenders to prevent hanging. They also kept a sharp watch over him. It was expected federal officials would take possession of him tomorrow and start him to Sioux City, whence he is to go to prison.

Sales Force of 21 Men.

Hartzell, who asserted he had bought the claim of a legitimate heir to the Drake fortune, which he valued at fifteen billion dollars in his sales talks, sold shares to perhaps 50,000 persons. For 13 years he resided luxuriously in London on the money that poured in from the efforts of 21 salesmen in this country. Ostensibly he was prosecuting the claim to the estate. About two years ago Great Britain expelled him as an undesirable alien.

At his trial it was shown that his claims were invalid under English law and that the Drake estate itself was a myth. The story of the wealth of Queen Elizabeth's admiral has, however, been a favorite vehicle of swindlers for years.

DON'T BE FOOLED BY THOSE SAUCY JANUARY ROBINS!

Those early January robins that observing Chicagoans have reported in increasing numbers during recent weeks are not harbingers of spring. They are hardy birds that have lost the migratory instinct of past generations—or they aren't robins at all.

"Many of the robins that are reported at this time of the year are actually starlings," Curator Floyd Young of the Lincoln Park zoo said yesterday. "The real robins seen are those that have stayed through the winter."

To the disillusionment of those who had hoped for an early spring on the basis of their ornithological observations, Young added that the return of migratory robins is highly improbable at this time of the year. Starlings, slightly smaller than robins but with somewhat similar markings, are easily mistaken for robins.

AVIATRIX SAVES REPORTERS' DAY; ROUTS OFFICER

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam had a chance to prove she was first lady of the air almost as soon as the wheels of her plane spurred the runway of the airport here today at the end of her Honolulu flight.

Reporters crowded about her with questions, but a policeman intervened and shoved them off.

"But we have deadlines to make," argued one of the reporters.

"To hell with deadlines," retorted the policeman.

Mrs. Putnam settled the argument. "But officer," she said, "deadlines are important sometimes."

The reporters asked their questions unmolested.

SURPRISE SNOW BLANKETS CITY; COLD FORECAST

With the temperature standing near the freezing mark, a slushy snow began falling in Chicago about 10 o'clock last night. When the fall ceased about two hours later, the ground was blanketed to a depth of more than an inch.

The snow was unexpected. The official forecast stated that it would rain today and that snow would fall this evening and tomorrow. The temperature, according to Forecaster W. P. Day, probably will fall to 10 degrees before Tuesday. He added that the snowfall tonight was not likely to be heavy.

DEFENSE TO ASK BUT 8 QUESTIONS OF HAUPTMANN

Bruno Eager to Go on Witness Stand.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Bruno Richard Hauptmann definitly will take the witness stand in his own defense at his trial here for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., it was announced today by Edward J. Reilly, his chief counsel.

Reilly said he would call Hauptmann as his first witness when the defense begins the presentation of its case, which will be in about a week. Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the prisoner's wife, will be the second defense witness.

C. Lloyd Fisher of defense counsel added that Hauptmann himself demanded this morning that he be allowed to testify from the same chair from which much damaging evidence against him has been given.

Named by Lindbergh.

From this chair Col. Lindbergh identified the prisoner by the sound of his voice as the man who called to Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon the night the ransom was paid.

From this chair, also, Dr. Condon identified Hauptmann as the "John" to whom he paid the ransom, and a taxicab driver identified the suspect as the person who gave him a note to deliver to Jafsie.

It was from this chair, too, that an elderly Hopewell resident identified him as a man he saw near the Lindbergh estate the day of the kidnaping, as did a handwriting expert identify his writing as that of the writer of the ransom notes.

Reilly's Questions.

Reilly said that the first question he will ask Hauptmann on the witness stand would be:

"Did you kidnap the Lindbergh baby?"

After Hauptmann denies committing the crime, Reilly said, he would ask the following questions:

"Were you in Hopewell the night of March 1, 1932?"

"Were you in New Jersey that day or night?"

"Did you make the ladder?"

"Did you go up that ladder?"

"Did you write the ransom notes?"

"Did you receive the $50,000 from Dr. Condon?"

Will Answer All With "No."

On receiving negative replies to all of the questions, according to the lawyer, he will ask:

"Where did you get the money [$14,600 of the ransom money] which was found in your garage?"

The answer will be that the money was left with him by the late Isidor Fisch, the furrier friend of Hauptmann, before Fisch, late in 1933, made the trip to Germany, where he died of tuberculosis.

Reilly today repeated his charge that Fisch was the man to whom Dr. Condon paid the ransom in St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, and added that hand writing experts consulted by the defense will compare the ransom notes with samples of Fisch's writing in an effort to see whether the furrier wrote the ransom notes.

Calls Fisch Ransom Collector.

"Fisch is the man who got the ransom money, and our experts will examine twenty samples of his writing, which we have in our possession, in comparison with the ransom notes," said Reilly. "Our purpose is not to try to solve the crime or to prove who did it, but to prove that Hauptmann is not guilty."

Reilly said his handwriting experts already had given him an opinion, based on comparisons of Hauptmann's writing with reproductions of the ran-

Rail Unions Defy Eastman on 6 Hour Day

Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad coödinator, called on labor yesterday to abandon its present plans and cooperate wholeheartedly in an effort to revive the stagnant railroad industry. However, defying his warning that if rail labor pressed its demands, immeasurable harm would devolve both on themselves and on the entire industry, the railway labor unions replied with an emphatic announcement that their legislative program calling for establishment of the six hour work day would be pressed with vigor.

Mr. Eastman spoke before the annual convention of the Railway Labor Executives' association at the Morrison hotel. More than 2,000 officials and leaders of twenty-one railway brotherhoods and unions packed the Cameo room on the first floor. Only mild applause greeted the conclusion of Mr. Eastman's address.

Reads Labor's Reply.

Immediately after Mr. Eastman's talk George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and acting chairman of the convention, read the reply of labor—a statement of the executive committee prepared after an informal conference with Mr. Eastman during the morning.

"The statement made by Mr. Eastman before the railway employés," said Mr. Harrison, "will have no effect whatever on the legislative program of the railway labor organizations. Their program has been introduced in congress and every possible effort will be directed towards securing its enactment into law during the present session."

Similar sentiments were expressed after the meeting by J. G. Luhrsen, president of the American Train Dispatchers' association, who remarked: "For the train dispatchers of this country Federal Coördinator Eastman's statement was most disappointing because he expressed himself as against rather than for a shorter work day."

Appeal by Eastman.

Adjustment of operations, service, equipment, and rates to present day conditions will stimulate and regain business, and even create new opportunities, Mr. Eastman said. Application of the principles of mass production and labor saving machinery, used so effectively by Henry Ford, he said, will in time employ more men than are now at work on railroads.

Labor replied that any program that "has for its purpose the improvement of the efficiency of the railroad industry must comprehend a progressive shortening of the work day without any reduction in compensation." This would extend a ray of hope to the 1,000,000 unemployed railway men out, and 400,000 on part time work, declared the labor officials.

Included in the railway labor program now before congress, as outlined yesterday by Mr. Harrison, are proposals for adoption of the six hour day; full train crews; limit of freight trains to half a mile in length, in the interests of safety and efficiency; amendment of the federal employés liability act to benefit employés and their families; reduction of consecutive hours of service from 16 to 12; a track and bridge inspection act; and a bill proposing proper signal inspection.

Coordinator Cites "Responsibility."

Before he discussed the problems besetting the entire railroad industry, Mr. Eastman pointed out that with the accumulative power which has come to labor during the years, there is, too, an equally great responsibility. This, he said, must inspire the workers to reflect before taking any action.

In comparison with workers in other industries, said Mr. Eastman, the railroad man has been able to maintain a higher level of wages during the depression. By next June the ten per cent blanket wage cut will have been restored, and wages will have returned to the pre-depression level.

Mr. Eastman pointed out that railroads have suffered heavily from increased competition and burdensome debt. The development of automobile, bus, airplane, and waterway trafic, he Lands at Oakland Safe and Sound.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 12.—Amelia Earhart Putnam, ocean conquering aviatrix, flashed into Oakland today to complete the first solo flight ever made between Hawaii and California—and hastily combed her tousled blonde hair before turning to face a madly cheering crowd.

"I'm tired," said the famous holder of many aviation records as she popped her head out of the cockpit, saw the crowd and reached for her comb.

Lands at 3:31 P. M.

The wheels of her swift red monoplane touched dry land at 3:31 Chicago time, just 18 hours and 16 minutes after her exciting takeoff from Wheeler field, 25 miles out of Honolulu and 2,400 miles from Oakland. Two hours after landing she went to bed without benefit of negligee, in an Oakland hotel.

Not satisfied with two aërial trips across the Atlantic and a host of other aviation honors, the 36 year old flyer challenged the Pacific as has no other man or woman. She came through neatly but only after fighting a variety of weather and giving California watchers an uneasy three hours during which her position was not known.

"Worse than Atlantic."

"It was worse than the Atlantic flight," she said. "There was no purpose or reason for it."

Asked about reports that she was considering continuing on to Chicago or Washington immediately she smiled mysteriously and said:

"Well, I'll have to check the weather before hopping, but I won't be going for three or four hours."

But Miss Earhart appeared pretty tired and the circumstances discounted the idea. Airport attendants said she had left instructions not to refuel her plane. Weather conditions to the east were reported unfavorable.

Lands with Fuel.

"I had enough fuel in my tanks to have lasted another two hours," Miss Earhart went on, in contrast with the statement of Lieutenant Commander Clarence Williams indicating her supply was due to be exhausted about the time she landed.

For three hours California coastal cities had been awaiting her and when she swooped down on the airport she took the crowd of 5,000 by surprise.

Crowd Surges on Field.

A mighty cheer arose. The crowd surged toward the plane and stopped little short of its whirling propeller blades.

Attendants pushed her plane into a hangar and closed the doors against the admiring crowd, but only after many had succeeded in grasping her hand and shouting words of praise at her.

"I don't want to sit down," she said firmly when an attendant saw her fatigue and offered her a chair.

$15,000 FOR KEY TO YOUR FUTURE READINGS By Doris Blake See The GRAPHIC SECTION—Page 7

"I've been sitting down a long time."

Some one mentioned that she had not been heard from for a considerable time before landing; that there were reports she was battling fog, had strayed from her course; that her gasoline was running low before she reached the coast. They asked if she had been worried.

"Worried?" she echoed. "O, I thought I would like to have the sight of land a couple of times."

Miss Earhart asserted she never was lost, but said she veered south of her course and first sighted land about 60 miles south of San Francisco.

"I wasn't sure that it was land I sighted," she said.

"I throttled back my motor purposely to save fuel, and I don't understand why any one should have been worried about me.

"The reason I didn't give my position was because I didn't 'shoot' the stars [with a sextant] and therefore couldn't give it."

Flies Through Rainbows.

An interviewer mentioned seeing a rainbow over the Golden Gate as Miss Earhart was nearing the coast.

"O, rainbows!" she exclaimed. "I flew through many of them on the way here.

"I wasted a lot of time because some of the equipment was new and a new type of compass threw me off.

"The ventilator blew off and this bothered me considerably, also. But the motor functioned perfectly, and it was only little things like the ventilator that bothered me.

"I had a lot of sandwiches with me, but I didn't eat any of them. I did eat a hard boiled egg, which was quite a luxury, and drank some tomato juice.

"I feel just filthy and I want a bath."

Miss Earhart said commercial flights to span the 2,400 miles between the islands and California were "entirely feasible. They are inevitable and we'll be flying everywhere in a short time."

Asked about the three hours during which the outside world heard little or nothing from her plane, she said:

Listens to Radio.

"I listened to a message broadcast from my husband [George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher] and was greatly cheered by his voice. I also listened to musical programs broadcast throughout the night."

Miss Earhart expressed belief the use of two-way voice radio communication was advisable for planes making distance flights. This type of radio was a part of her elaborate equipment.

As she snuggled down into a soft bed in her hotel room she sighed and said:

"I want sleep more than anything else."

In a moment she was sleeping deeply, and hotel attachés said she planned to slumber two to six hours—"or maybe more."

Miss Earhart took only three hours and 17 minutes more to fly solo from Honolulu than the time required by Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian, and his navigator, Capt. P. G. Taylor.

Kingsford-Smith and Taylor made the first west-east trip Nov. 3 and 4, 1934, in their long journey from Australia in 14 hours and 59 minutes.

This was at an average of 160 miles an hour.

Averages 133 M. P. H.

Miss Earhart, doing her own navigating while handling the plane, made the flight in 18 hours 16 minutes. Her average speed was 133 miles an hour, although she said she throttled down the last five hours to conserve fuel.

The finale of the epochal flight was short as it was swift. On reaching the coast she made a bee line northward for the airport.

She didn't waste a foot of distance or a second of time. She did not circle the field as a gesture of delight over her extraordinary and exciting feat. She slid straight down to the runway and drove the plane to the very doors of a hangar.

For a moment it looked like the crowd might jam madly into the whizzing propeller, but it stopped just short of the danger line.

The field was a Bedlam of noise, cheers, and action, colored with uncounted bouquets of American Beauty roses and other flowers for the woman who became "one up" on the male flying fraternity.

Her landing here disposed of a plan disclosed early this morning by her husband, George Palmer Putman, New York publisher, to continue on to Salt Lake City if conditions proved favorable.

Putnam had said she might continue to the Utah city about 750 miles from here, for a new distance nonstop record for women if conditions proved favorable and her gasoline supply would permit.

Feared Lost for Time.

For almost three and a half hours prior to the landing the whole California coast was on edge over her whereabouts. She was reported variously 600 miles at sea, 50 miles from the coast, off her course, south of San Francisco, battling fog, and possibly facing the prospect of dwindling fuel tanks while still over the sea.

All through the night the daring holder of many aviation titles flew coolly into darkness, clouds, fog, and capricious winds while hundreds of interested persons both on the mainland and in the islands strained their ears to catch the few words she spoke en route.

She bobbed up and down through the sky to make the most of what little clear weather was available. Once she dropped from 6,000 feet to only 700 feet above the water.

Except for her first remark on landing, only once on the whole grilling journey did she admit fatigue. Eleven hours out, she said:

"I'm becoming quite tired."

Forty-five minutes later, at 9 a. m., Chicago time, she had forgotten the irksome feeling, however, and reported she was "enjoying the scenery."

Miss Earhart was a lot less concerned about her venture than coast guard and naval officers who stood watch through the long hours and wondered why she buzzed along so blithely without ever reporting her position.

Four coast guard cutters sped out 100 miles from San Francisco bay at 2 p. m., ready to speed to her aid if necessary, but they were left to their own guesses as to the position of her plane and started back to port before she landed.

Miss Earhart's Wheeler field takeoff was a classic. Her secret preparations for the hop were given a sudden setback when a tropical downpour came making the army field soggy with mud during the early afternoon. Nearly every one took it for granted that she would not attempt to lift the heavily laden plane from a slithery runway.

But at 4:30 p. m., just after the rain let up, an automobile containing Miss Earhart, Putnam, and Lieut. George H. Spearhawk rolled up to the hangar.

Motor Warmed Up.

Her swift red monoplane, already fuelled and equipped, was wheeled out and the motor started. A naval weather report indicating gradually clearing weather, but varying wind prospects ahead.

The famous aviatrix gave her ship a close inspection, clambered into the cockpit and tested her motor and array of instruments.

Putnam stuck his head inside the cockpit for a final word. It was obvious that they already had said their real farewell at Spearhawk's home, where Miss Earhart rested for the ordeal.

She waved her hand and smiled at the crowd of about 200 and taxied into position.

The glittering propeller bit into the light wind as the motor took a heavy feeding of fuel.

Virtually full of nothing but gasoline and instruments, it weaved down the field, slinging a stream of mud behind it. Three thousand feet of this and it leaped into the air at 9:15 p. m., Chicago time, last night. It started to settle and appeared about to touch earth.

Fear of Takeoff Crash.

Veteran airmen gasped. A bobble then might have meant fire and disaster. But Miss Earhart kept its head up and it began to gain speed and climb. She lost little time striking out for Diamond Head, the last point on the route.

In six minutes she was 2,000 feet in the air.

The worried husband mopped his brow and said:

"I'd rather have a baby."

To the outside world the remainder of the epic flight was a series of laconic "O. K.'s" and a few meager words now and then until she approached the California coast.

EVEN DOZEN RECORDS MARK AERIAL CAREER OF AMELIA EARHART

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart stamped her name indelibly into the newspaper headlines in 1928 by becoming the first woman to fly successfully across the Atlantic, and her aerial accomplishments since have made her indisputably America's premier aviatrix.

The slim, tousle headed blonde flyer with the sparkling blue eyes probably has more worthwhile "first" in her record than any other woman of her generation. They include:

First woman to fly Pacific and first person to fly between United States and Hawaii solo.

First woman to fly the Atlantic.

First woman to fly solo across the Atlantic.

First person to fly the Atlantic twice.

First woman to fly an autogyro.

First person to cross the United States in an autogyro.

First woman to receive the distinguished flying cross.

First woman to receive the National Geographic society's gold medal.

First woman to make a transcontinental nonstop flight.

Holder of women's transcontinental speed record: 17:07:30.

Former holder of women's international speed record: 181.18 miles per hour.

First woman licensed in United States to carry passengers for hire in cabin planes weighing up to 7,700 pounds.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 12.—[U.P.]—George Palmer Putnam, publisher and husband of Amelia Earhart Putnam, sailed for San Francisco today aboard the liner Lurline.

Putnam was overjoyed at the success of Miss Earhart in the first solo flight ever made between Hawaii and the mainland.

"Swell job, but don't make it a habit," the publisher cabled his wife in a message signed "G. P."

Chicago Classmates Recall Amelia as Quiet, Aloof Girl

"Meek loveliness is around thee spread."

Thus, in the Aitchpee of 1915, the annual yearbook of Hyde Park High school, ran the legend opposite the picture of a thin faced young girl of 16 with grave, deepset eyes and a black velvet ribbon around her throat.

The girl was Amelia Earhart, member of the class of '15, and the phrase "meek loveliness" was the conception of the world's foremost aviatrix formed by her 200 classmates during an association of slightly more than six months.

Classmates Recall Slender Girl.

Looking back at those high school days through the haze of 20 years, her classmates, many of them now prominent Chicagoans, still insist that only a Delphic oracle of old, looking at the slender newcomer in their midst—always aloof, always silent—could have predicted that she would be the first woman to fly the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans.

"Why, nobody had the slightest idea that she was interested in anything mechanical," recalled Attorney William B. Gemmill, whose locker, back in 1915, was next to Amelia's. "All she was interested in was gymnastics. We thought she'd teach gym classes some day.

"'She was just an 'ordinary' girl," he continued. "Thin and plain, and never seeming to care what she looked like — but an attractive girl for all that. She was terribly quiet and had only a few friends. Aloof, you know."

"She was tall and slim, and I remember I hardly ever dared say 'hello,'" said Major Reed Landis, another classmate, who also has won his share of fame in the skies. "I didn't know her well, but we're good friends now."

Science? Her Weakness Then.

But if her friends saw no unusual possibilities in 16 year old Amelia Earhart, neither was there any indication of her future achievements in her scholastic marks, for in science, the only subject on her curriculum supposedly allied to aeronautics, she made one of her lowest grades.

"French, 88.5; English, 83.5; Latin, 77.5; science, 77.5; German, 80." These were her official gradings at graduation, still on file at Hyde Park High school. [Still on file? Proudly on file!]

"But you must remember she was there only one semester," recalled Hiram B. Loomis, 6119 South Rockwell street, principal of the school at the time. "She had been to school all over the United States, went one month to Englewood High, came to Hyde Park only six months and still was able to graduate. So hers were comparatively good marks."

Makes and Breaks Traditions.

From those school days of 20 years ago a few memories and anecdotes still circle about Amelia Earhart—how she was never without that black velvet ribbon at her throat. How she could ride a horse like the wind. How she shattered all Hyde Parkian traditions by not attending the senior class banquet. How she didn't even wait to receive her diploma in ceremony and pomp, but came striding home because "there was just such a jam that I couldn't stand it."

From Hyde Park High she went to the Ogontz School for Girls at Rydal, Pa., and later attended Columbia and Harvard universities and the University of California, majoring in social service.

Flies On Into History.

It was five years after her high school graduation that she received her first flying instruction. This was at a field outside of Los Angeles. Soon after that her record making and breaking began. On May 17, 1923, the National Aeronautics association awarded her the first woman's flying license; a few months later she received a certificate as transport pilot. In 1926 she seemingly laid aside her flying for social work when she took charge of girls' work in a Boston social settlement, and then, suddenly, on June 17-18, 1928, she did what no woman had ever done before—she flew the Atlantic ocean.

TALK OF PACKING HIGH COURT IF GOLD CASE LOSES

Predict Action if There's Adverse Decision.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The fact that the New Dealers are again discussing the idea of "packing" the Supreme court, a proposition that received serious consideration in the early days of the Roosevelt administration, was acknowledged today by Senator Elmer Thomas, [Dem., Okla.], printing press money man and author of the of the AAA amendment which permitted devaluation of the dollar.

Talk of packing the court has been heard in the corridors of the capitol, the treasury and other government buildings since the opening of the gold clause cases last Tuesday, but the New Dealers declined to talk for publication. The possibility of a citation for contempt for such talk during the pendency of a case was obvious.

Program Is Predicted.

Today, however, Senator Thomas declared that such discussion had been under way and added that "undoubtedly there will be a program." The senator disclaimed authorship of the proposal to add two or three new members to the supreme bench and refused to say whether he would support or oppose it.

"We have every confidence that the court will sustain the government," Thomas said. "An adverse decision would be the ruination of everything."

The senator told newspaper men that the idea under discussion, in quarters which he refused to identify, would increase the membership of the court by two or three judges to insure "a square deal for the New Deal."

Thomas Author of Measure.

That Senator Thomas should bring out into the open the fact that such discussions are under way was regarded as significant, since it was his amendment which made possible the devaluation of the gold dollar by 40.5 per cent. As a result of the devaluation, it was deemed necessary for congress to abrogate the gold clause in all public and private contracts, aggregating some 100 billion dollars, and the validity of this action is the momentous question now before the court.

An adverse decision, it is believed, would lead inevitably to the wildest form of inflation, for the national debt would be increased 17 billion dollars. Atty. Gen. Homer S. Cummings told the court that "instead of back to the constitution, it would mean back to chaos."

Nevertheless, after Mr. Cummings had made this speech, Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes and Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone jointed with four more conservative members of the bench in subjecting government counsel to interrogation that indicated no sympathy for such powers as the New Dealers had imputed to congress.

Chief Justice Asks Question.

The chief justice pointedly asked where, in the constitution, could be found any right of congress to pledge the faith of the United States to redeem in gold coin bonds sold to raise money in the national defense and then repudiate that pledge. He added that governments could not go on unless they could borrow money to defend themselves. The government maintained that the gold clauses obstructed the power of congress to regulate the value of money, that this sovereign power superseded all preexisting agreements.

During the early days of the administration members of the Tugwell school of the New Deal blithely proceeded with their plans to "make America over." To suggestions that some of the New Deal measures might not be constitutional and would meet objections from the Supreme court, the brain trusters replied that the Supreme court could always be enlarged by an act of congress.

New Dealers Are Uneasy.

Last week, however, the Supreme court held the "hot oil" section of the NRA unconstitutional, by the overwhelming majority of 8 to 1, and then came along the stupendous gold clause cases, just taken under advisement. Uneasiness of the New Dealers grew into obvious anxiety as the justices indicated their serious doubts that congress, by proclaiming an emergency, could abrogate not only private contracts but could break the faith of the government as well.

Members of the senate judiciary committee, all of whom are lawyers, are familiar with the precepts of propriety and legal ethics and will not discuss the reputed proposals of enlarging the court. Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.], chairman of the committee, said he hadn't even heard of the discussions. Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], the ranking minority member, expressed doubt that the administration would resort to such an extraordinary measure.

It was recalled in discussions here that almost simultaneously with an adverse decision in the first of the legal tender cases after the civil war, Hepburn vs. Griswold, President Grant filled two vacancies with two members who swung the balance of the court.

Deny Grant Packed Court.

This was on Feb. 7, 1870. Most historians deny that President Grant "packed" the court, pointing out that the nominations were sent to the senate shortly before the decision was handed down, but the accusation was widely made at the time.

The court also reversed itself in subsequent decisions, holding that congress could make paper legal tender for all debts, including pre-existing obligations. These precedents are relied upon by the government, but some of the justices pointed out from the bench that the question of abrogating a gold clause was not involved.

Most observers believe that the court will sustain the government, despite the impression of hostility conveyed by some of the justices and if this is the case, there is no necessity to "pack" the court. An adverse decision, however, undoubtedly would result in such a move, congressional leaders declare.

CHEERING THRONG RUSHES UPON FIELD AS MISS EARHART LANDS

A madly applauding crowd seemed to be in danger of jamming into the whirring propeller of Amelia Earhart Putnam's plane when she landed in Oakland, Cal., yesterday after solo flight from Hawaii. In this picture of the crowd the famous aviatrix may be seen emerging from the cockpit. Her cheering admirers carried uncounted bouquets of American Beauty roses.

HAS OFFICE HERE 10 DAYS; SEIZED AS STOCK FAKER

Ralph A. Clifton, 46 years old, of the Lincoln hotel, 1816 North Clark street, was arrested last night by the police of the state's attorney's office. He is alleged to have operated a fraudulent stock selling organization of the bucket shop type.

Clifton, who is also known as James E. Russell, admitted to Assistant State's Attorney James J. Cherry that the police of Denver, Colo., are seeking him for previous operations there.

In his room the police found a number of checks sent to Clifton for the purchase of stocks he had recommended. The clients of his organization, which he established in Chicago only ten days ago, were mostly residents of small towns in Illinois, and they had been solicited in long distance telephone conversations. Mr. Cherry said that Clifton had not delivered any stocks to the buyers, and had not even purchased the stocks ordered. He has no license as a broker.

According to Clifton, he was graduated from Drake university, Des Moines, Ia., as a veterinary in 1912. He asserted that he was once an all-American quarter back, but Drake records do not bear out this claim, or even show that he played football there.

SEIZED AS "PEEPING TOM."

John Gaida, 28 years old, 26 South Desplaines street, was arrested early yesterday as a "peeping Tom" on the complaint of County hospital nurses who live in the Jackson Annex hotel, 1812 Jackson boulevard.

10 HIGH SCHOOLS HERE RETURN TO ACCREDITED LIST

Standards Win Approval; Steinmetz Suspended.

The committee on admissions at the University of Illinois yesterday placed on its accredited list the ten Chicago high schools found deficient last spring by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

This action will return the schools to good standing in the North Central association, since approval or disapproval of schools within the state by the University of Illinois is automatically accepted by the association.

The ten high schools are Amundsen, Farragut, Foreman, Harper, Hirsch, Kelly, Kelvyn, Manley, Sullivan, and Von Steuben.

Steinmetz Has Year to Recoup.

One school, Steinmetz, has been placed on the university's suspended list, a position similar to that of the ten schools last year. If university standards are not met at Steinmetz within a year, graduates of the school will not be admitted by the university on their diplomas. They will face entrance examinations.

The action of the university and the North Central association taken against the ten high schools last spring charged that there was too great a teacher load, that there were insufficient textbook and library facilities, that high school branches were inadequately supervised, and that there was general overcrowding.

The reaccrediting of the ten high schools follows a campaign of the board of education and Supt. William J. Bogan to meet all standards.

Officials View Situation.

To recover this recognition the board authorized additional expenditures totaling $823,000 in the ten schools to provide 103 more teachers, to add textbooks, and to expand library facilities. Moreover, the completion of three new high schools last year, and the doubling of the school textbook funds for 1934 eliminated many causes for criticisms made by the association.

"I'm glad to hear of the university action," James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, commented last night. "The board will give full coöperation in the plans of the educational department for the full accrediting of Steinmetz, as it did in the case of the ten high schools."

"I'm mighty pleased," said Supt. Bogan. "We felt sure that we would meet the requirements. I'm surprised to hear of the action against Steinmetz, but we met conditions for ten schools within a year, and I'm certain that we can do likewise for Steinmetz."

KILLS SELF IN STORE.

Ferdinand W. Jensen, 37 years old, 4400 North Racine avenue, shot and killed himself yesterday in the Wilmette confectionery, 1204 Central avenue, Wilmette.

IT'S 'HUMAN INTEREST' THAT PUTS BRUNO ON PAGE ONE, GIRLS RULE

Attleboro, Mass., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Thirty young women, who make up the school of journalism class at Wheaton college, today received their baptism in printer's ink in getting out a newspaper.

Charles C. Cain Jr., its publisher, lent the Attleboro Sun to the girls for the day as a sort of journalistic laboratory to test many of the things they had learned in class.

At the outset Acting Managing Editor Betty Blood of Manchester, N. H., decided to bar crime news from page 1, but finally compromised because of the "human interest" represented in the Lindbergh case. The trial of Bruno Hauptmann was given a place second in importance to the flight of Amelia Earhart, which led the paper.

An account of flood conditions in the New England states took position of third importance on page 1. A three column picture of Amelia also graced the top of the first page, and at the bottom was a picture of the floods.

The editors turned thumbs down on a photograph of a bathing beauty, because of "too much legs."

Under the treasury balance heading appeared this notice:

"The staf decided to leave out the clearings today, figuring the chief use of this Washington dispatch was to encourage those who bet on the numbers."

DEFENSE TO ASK BUT 8 QUESTIONS OF HAUPTMANN

Prisoner Asks to Take Witness Stand.

som notes, that Hauptmann did not write the notes.

Members of the prosecution staf, however, declared the state is prepared to refute any testimony that Fisch committed the crime.

"We have the Fisch story lashed to the mast," said an aid of Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

Discussing Reilly's theory, Prosecutor Anthony J. Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county pointed out that in November, 1933, at a time when Fisch was still alive in Germany, a $5 ransom bill was passed to a cashier at the Sheridan theater, 7th avenue and 11th street, New York, who has told authorities Hauptmann was the man who passed it.

Whether she identified him is really less important than the fact that a bill was passed at a time when Fisch was out of the country, it was pointed out.

Hauptmann's Story of Money.

According to Hauptmann's story, Fisch gave him the ransom money in a shoe box and Hauptmann did not know what the box contained until after his friend's death, when he opened it. His story is that Fisch owed him $7,000 and he felt justified in dipping into the box, containing more than $14,000 in gold certificates, until he had paid himself back.

He did not place the money in a bank, he said, because he knew the bill were gold certificates and feared possible prosecution for hoarding.

This story the prosecutors characterize as a myth. They say they are prepared to "explode the whole Fisch myth," and to show that he could not possibly have had a hand in the crime.

Defense Views Notes.

Accompanied by Frederick A. Pope, associate defense counsel, Reilly went to Trenton today and met eight handwriting experts, including two from Germany, who have been consulted by the defense.

The lawyers and experts went to the prosecution's headquarters and were assigned six rooms in which they examined the originals of the ransom notes.

The defense handwriting experts will attempt to refute testimony yesterday by Albert S. Osborn, prosecution handwriting expert, that the ransom notes were written by Hauptmann.

If Reilly and his associates continue to assert that Fisch was the central figure of a small group that planned and executed the crime, the state will present witnesses from Germany to break down the story, it has been learned.

Term Fisch Impoverished.

The witnesses will tell how Fisch died so impoverished that relatives were forced to borrow money to bury him, and how, before his death, he handed those same relatives a list of ten persons in New York who owed him money, Hauptmann's name not being included on the list.

It was reported today that Minna St. Siegnitz, nurse who took care of Fisch before he died, has been summoned from Germany as a witness and is en route to the United States.

It is known three Germans in the company of Detective Arthur Johnson of New York will arrive in this country Tuesday when the Ile de France docks. The identity of the three has not been revealed, but it is believed one or more may be relatives of Fisch. It is believed Miss St. Siegnitz is in this group.

Trace Brokerage Account.

"We do not concede in the least the possibility of a gang," said former Judge George K. Large of the prosecution staf. "The fact thta we can trace the use of $49,960 of the $50,000 ransom money to Hauptmann precludes a gang. It would be highly improbable Hauptmann had assistance and then failed to divide the money with accomplices."

The state also is prepared to prove that a substantial sum of ransom money recovered at the federal reserve bank came from an account established with the brokerage firm of Steiner, Rouse & Co., which Hauptmann opened in his wife's maiden name, and where he deposited considerable sums of cash.

One point which may bolster Reilly's theory relating to Fisch, however, is the testimony already given by Mrs. Myra Hacker, daughter of Dr. Condon.

Describing a "mystery" man who came to the Condon home with a note telling her father how to proceed with the ransom payment, she gave details which failed to tally with a description of Hauptmann but did tally with Fisch's general appearance.

Moreover, when shown a photograph of Fisch, she was unable positively to say she was certain the "mystery man" was not Fisch.

One flurry of interest which developed last night subsided today when it was learned the $10 bank note found in Gettysburg, Pa., was not a bill which had been paid in the Lindbergh ransom. An error in giving out the bill's serial number was discovered when the number was checked.

Another development today was the disclosure that Robert Scanlan, a Menlo Park, N. J., man who bears a striking resemblance to Hauptmann, will be a witness for the defense.

Scanlan, a realtor at the time of the kidnaping, is prepared to testify, it is understood, that he was in the woods about the Lindbergh home, and drove over Sourland roads at about the time of the kidnaping. He had a green sedan that later was painted blue.

He was inspecting a piece of property adjoining the Lindbergh estate. He recognizes, it is said, as having happen to him many episodes described by state's witnesses as involving Hauptmann.

Makes Identity Known.

Scanlan made his identity known, with fear and trembling, when, to his astonishment, he recognized newspaper accounts of the expected testimony of various state's witnesses.

These witnesses are scheduled to identify Hauptmann as a man who cruised the Sourland region, just before the kidnaping, in a "blue sedan," a "green sedan" a "dirty green sedan," a "blue green sedan," sometimes with a ladder strapped outside, or tied inside, or without a ladder.

One witness, Amandus Hochmuth, already has testified he saw Hauptmann in the vicinity the day of the kidnaping.

Millard Whited's story of seeing a man who looked like Hauptmann coming out of the woods north of the Lindbergh estate also sounded familiar to Scanlan, who not only remembered the incident but vaguely recalled Whited's appearance.

KEEP TAB ON HAUPTMANN TRIAL SPECTATORS

Authorities of Hunterdon county, N. J., have an elaborate system for keeping track of the spectators at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann on a charge of murdering Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. A person entering the courtroom hands over his pass to a state trooper, who puts it into a rack. The pass is returned to the owner when he leaves the courtroom. Frank Toughill (left) and Deputy Sherif John Painter are shown receiving their passes from Trooper George Wallais.

Robert Scanlon of Menlo Park, N. J., who resembles Bruno Richard Hauptmann and who says he was in vicinity of Lindbergh home at time of kidnaping and murder, may be a surprise witness for the defense.

SEES AFTER FOUR YEARS; DEAD 15 MINUTES LATER

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Blind four years, John W. Martin, 75, Frankford, Mo., saw clearly again yesterday and 15 minutes later suffered a cerebral hemorrhage that caused his death.

Mr. Martin underwent an operation for cataracts on his eyes last November. The intervening months were spent in treatment that would permit the restoration of his vision.

Accompanied by his wife and daughter, Mr. Martin was fitted with eyeglasses at an oculist's office here. He adjusted the glasses and looked at his wife.

"Why, mother," he said, "I can see you. You haven't changed a bit—a little stouter, but just the same as before."

Happily the elderly couple and their daughter left the oculist's office. They had walked only a few blocks when Mr. Martin slumped to the sidewalk.

Historic Theater of Naples Is Destroyed by Flames

NAPLES, Italy, Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—The historic Teatro Nuovo was razed today by a fire in which two firemen and a watchman were injured. The theater, one of the oldest and most famous in the city, was built in 1724 by the eighteenth century architect, Domenic Antonio Vaccaro, for light opera.

Plan Special Jersey Session to Reappoint Judge Trenchard

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—When Governor Elect Harold Hoffman takes office Tuesday one of his first official acts will be to reappoint Justice Thomas W. Trenchard to a seat on the New Jersey Supreme court.

The term of Justice Trenchard, who is presiding in Flemington at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused as the kidnap-slayer of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., expires Jan. 20, Sunday.

As the legislature meets each Monday night when in session, Justice Trenchard ordinarily would not be eligible to sit Jan. 21. For that reason Hoffman intends to call a special session immediately after his inauguration to reappoint the justice.

The Hauptmann jury, carefully guarded the while by deputy sherifs, today went for a two hour bus ride over Hunterdon county's highways. No stops were made along the 41 mile route, which was outlined by Justice Trenchard, himself an advocate of exercise and fresh air.

Mrs. Hauptmann spent a half hour with her husband in his cell today and reported him to be in good health and good spirits. After the visit, Mrs. Hauptmann, apparently in cheerful mood, returned to her residence near the courthouse.

Elmer E. Hann, court crier who each day opens the trial, tomorrow will celebrate his 71st birthday. He has been court crier for sixteen years and believes he has intoned the words, "Oyez, oyez!" 10,000 or more times.

Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly today made a telephone call to Berlin, seeking the services of a German handwriting expert. He sought to speak to Hans Gropras, but was unable to find him. Another attempt will be made.

An expert witness, the prosecution has announced, will testify that the nails used by Hauptmann in building his Bronx garage are of identical make with those used in the kidnap ladder.

Prosecution officials, investigating a story that Hauptmann and the late Violet Sharpe had been married, found nothing to support the theory, according to Prosecutor Anthony Hauck. Miss Sharpe, maid in the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, committed suicide in 1932. Hauck said the story came in a letter which said Miss Sharpe did not know Hauptmann already was married.

Thousands of visitors visited Flemington today, but weren't permitted inside the courthouse. The visitors drove down Main street and jammed the sidewalks in front of the old courthouse.

During week days Junius E. Foster operates a telegraph key in the courthouse, sending news stories of the Hauptmann trial. Sundays he returns to his rôle as pastor of two churches, the Sandy Ridge and the Stockton Baptist churches, near Flemington.

FIRST PHONE GIRL OF POLICE QUITS AFTER 20 YEARS

Policewoman Margaret Riley, who was the first "hello girl" ever employed on the detective bureau switchboard, retired yesterday after 20 years' service in the department.

Mrs. Riley joined the department in 1914, and for six years worked as a policewoman. For 12 years thereafter she was switchboard operator, first at the old detective bureau on north La Salle street and later in the new police building at 11th and State streets. Before her time the switchboard at the nerve center of the Chicago police system had always been handled by male police operators. Women operators now handle the work exclusively.

Since 1930 Mrs. Riley has been working again as a policewoman, assisting Sergt. Joseph Starshak in the bureau of missing persons. She is the wife of Sergt. James Riley, who retired from the police department in 1931. They are leaving soon on a vacation trip to Florida.

TRUCE ENDS WAR OF BARRICADE ON COUNTY HIGHWAY

Guards Disarmed; New Blockade Threatened.

A short truce was called last night in the warfare carried on by Henry Ipena to retain possession of his land, through which Cook county has built a highway and forced passage by the guns of deputy sherifs.

The barricade, which Ipena, who is confined to his home by illness, had asked his six sons and sympathetic neighbors construct across the Southwest highway between West 97th and West 99th street, was dismantled. The guns with which Ipena's followers were prepared to defend his property rights were surrendered.

Otto Wielgorecki of Blue Island, attorney for Ipena, allowed this action "as a courtesy to Sherif John Toman" so that week-end holiday trafic would not be interrupted, but declared that if the county had not settled satisfactorily by Monday afternoon the barricade would be rebuilt.

Day of Hot Encounters.

This followed hot verbal encounters during the day, in the course of which Attorney Wielgorecki had assured his client that he was within his rights in protecting his property against trespass, even at the point of a shotgun.

A conference has been called for Monday morning among Ipena's lawyer, Sherif Toman, and representatives of the county board. If this does not settle the difference amicably the prospects are for downright warfare along the Southwest highway, unless the county retires from its present stand.

The trouble had its origin a number of years ago when Ipena sold 40 acres of his farm to a syndicate. Payment never was made. However, while the syndicate held title, it dedicated a strip of the land to the county for the highway right of way.

This was done without Ipena's consent, which, under the law, should have been obtained.

Full Title Regained.

Eventually Ipena brought foreclossure proceedings when payment for the land was not forthcoming. A few months ago he obtained a master's deed, which gave back to him full title for all the land held by the syndicate.

On Oct. 29 last Judge John Prystalski issued a writ of assistance permitting Ipena to close the highway, since it was his property, against continued public usage, which would vacate the title.

That was the reason and authority for construction of the barricade Friday.

With two shotguns Ipena's little army backed the barricade. Then yesterday, for some reason, Judge Prystalski vacated his writ of assistance and advised the sherif that the barricade might be dismantled.

Attorney in Custody.

Attorney Wielgorecki was at the barricade, and, after some parley, was taken into custody. The barricade was torn down by deputies and the guns of the Ipena "army" confiscated.

"Judge Prystalski had no jurisdiction to void the order," the attorney declared. "The case had been closed, and the term of court passed without the county even filing an appearance. The case could not be reopened legally in this manner."

Wielgorecki subsequently was released from custody, but with the warning that the barricade would be rebuilt Monday afternoon, and his clients would be ready to fight for their rights.

AIR LINE HEAD IN PLANE FORCED DOWN; UNINJURED

Winslow, Ariz., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Jack Frye, president of the Transcontinental-Western Air Lines, Inc., arrived in Winslow by automobile at midnight tonight from near Deep Lake, where ice on his plane forced him to the ground at 11 o'clock Friday night.

Frye was uninjured. He said he had suffered only a "rather bad cold" from spending 17 hours in the snow just across the Arizona line 25 miles west of Zuni, N. M.

The TWA official was found at 4 o'clock this afternoon by Major A. D. Smith, Albuquerque division superintendent of TWA.

Frye said he was flying an experimental, high speed air mail plane fully equipped with instruments, including a carburetor heater to prevent ice forming on the carburetor.

"I was flying high in the clouds late last night when I ran into a heavy ice condition," Frye said, "and everything worked fine except the carburetor heater."

HAVANA MAYOR QUITS IN STRIKE; NEW TIEUP LOOMS

HAVANA, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Mayor Miguel Mariano Gomez stepped from his official chair today, making good his threat to resign rather than meet the demands of striking medical interns that he reëmploy three interns he discharged.

Taxicab drivers and employés of the municipal water works threatened to walk out in sympathy, and seven public works department employés were arrested after they visited the headquarters of a forbidden departmental union. The union had called a meeting to discuss protest action.

A "folded arms" strike of employés of the labor department, who are reporting for work but remaining idle at their desks, will be settled shortly, Secretary of Labor Pina asserted. The labor department employés are demanding "better working conditions."

Johnny Maitland, orchestra leader at the Pershing hotel, won an uncontested divorce yesterday in Superior court from Ruth Darline Maitland. 4 MILLION TREES PLANNED AS 1ST SECTION OF 'BELT'

Planting to Begin Next Spring in Six States.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Four million trees will be planted in six states in the middle and southwest next spring as the first step in the development of a shelter belt that is planned to extend eventually from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico.

The plans for this initial work, which became known today, provide for planting of the trees according to a carefully worked out pattern in strips five miles in length in 30 different locations. The work will be carried on in North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Nine Rows of Trees.

The forest service has evolved a planting formula involving the setting out of nine rows of trees, the rows to be approximately six feet apart.

The center rows will be composed of cottonwood, willows, and black locusts. On either side will be planted such varieties as green ash, American elm, Chinese elm, burr, hackberry, willows, honey locust, black Texan walnut, black locust, Chinaberry, and pecan.

The next flanking rows will consist of willows, red cedars, Austrian pine, Chinese arbor vitae, and Arizona cypress.

The third rows from the center will consist of Russian olive, plum, willow, Russian mulberry, Osage orange, and apricot trees.

Limited to Preliminary Strips.

Beyond these the outside rows will be caragana, choke cherry, haw, buffalo berry, sumac, willow, and lilac trees.

The work will be limited to the planting of the preliminary strips for two reasons, according to the forest service. One is that only $1,000,000 has been allocated for the initial work and the other is that the work was authorized so recently that nurseries probably can supply only the number of young trees now included in the plan.

In succeeding years the preliminary work, it is expected, can be stepped up to meet the requirements of future plans. Work has been started looking toward the production for planting of 100,000,000 seedlings in 1936.

Selection of the varieties to be used in the shelter belts was made, it was stated, only after a careful study had shown which varieties of trees had best survived the ravages of the drouth.

Planned as Wind Break.

The shelter belt idea was hit upon by the administration as a means of providing wind breaks in deforested land, of conserving moisture, and eventually raising the water table of the agricultural regions most subject to drouth.

It was estimated that the perfect plan would involve the reforestation of a belt 100 miles wide running across the United States from north to south in a region located as far west as tree planting could be undertaken with a reasonable chance of success.

This being impracticable, the forest service worked out a plan for the planting of smaller strips of trees scattered throughout the shelter belt region.

It plans to acquire strips of land 165 feet wide, working toward the goal of having a mile of shelter belt for each square mile of line. This would require the planting of only 20 acres in each 640. This, it is believed by officials, would greatly improve the value of the remainder.

ITALIANS TO DRILL FOR ARMY FROM AGE OF 8 TO 55

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 12.—Premier Mussolini presided over a meeting of the great army council today. Crown Prince Humbert, who is now a major general, was present. Il Duce also received reports from Gen. Francesco Grazioli, whom he named three months ago to organize preliminary and post-military training.

Under this training every male Italian will be subject to military instruction from the age of 8 to 55.

After their year and a half in the army, Italians must now keep familiar with military matters by drilling each Sunday, according to the Grazioli plan.

TOM M'FADDEN, LAST OF TOUHY GANG, GIVES UP

Taken to Wisconsin to Face Machine Gun Charge

Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, elderly member of the Touhy gang who escaped the 99 year sentences imposed on his companions for the kidnaping of John Factor, was taken to Elkhorn, Wis., yesterday to be tried on a charge of possessing a machine gun unlawfully.

He will be arraigned before County Judge Roscoe Luce in Elkhorn Monday morning. Immediately after arriving in Elkhorn he went into conference with his attorney, J. Arthur Moran of Delavan, Wis.

"Father Tom," last important member of the Touhy mob, surrendered in the court of Acting Chief Justice Walter Steffen of the Criminal court yesterday after losing an appeal to the State Supreme court to escape being sent to Wisconsin for trial. When he won a nol pros in the trial for the Factor kidnaping, of which Roger Touhy, Gus Schaefer, and Albert Kator were convicted, he was taken into custody for extradition to Wisconsin.

Acquitted in Hamm Case.

He sought release on a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Daniel P. Trude, who ruled against him. An appeal was taken on the ground that "Father Tom" was not a fugitive from Wisconsin. That state had surrendered his custody to allow him to be tried in St. Paul for the kidnaping of William Hamm Jr. [of which he was acquitted] and later to the state of Illinois for trial on the Factor kidnaping indictment.

For that reason, his attorney, George Callahan, argued, Wisconsin had lost its right to try him. The Supreme court sustained the position taken by Assistant State's Attorney Walter L. McCoy and ordered McFadden's removal. The gangster had been at liberty on $12,000 bail.

Wisconsin Deputies in Court.

A squad of deputy sherifs from Wisconsin came to the Criminal court for him and early in the afternoon he was driven to Elkhorn, the scene of a memorable occasion in the lives of the Touhy gangsters who had terrorized a section of Cook county for many years.

At Elkhorn on July 19, 1933, the dreaded Touhy gangsters came to grief at the hands of rookie motorcycle policeman, Harry Ward. A car had struck a telephone pole and Policeman Ward arrested its occupants, all of whom were drunk. They were McFadden, Roger, Touhy, Schaefer and Willie Sharkey, who later committed suicide in a St. Paul cell. From the day of these arrests the Touhy gang was no more.

Tom Touhy, brother and co-leader with Roger, may or may not be alive. He was last reported to be dying of tuberculosis. Other members of the gang are in prison.

COUPLE CALLED AIDS OF NELSON FREED ON BOND

Reno, Nev., Jan. 12.—[U.P.]—Frank B. Cochran, aviator and garageman, and his wife, Anna, were free under bond today after federal authorities charged them with conspiring to harbor and with harboring the late George [Baby Face] Nelson, slain Dillinger machine gunner.

They were accused with Nelson's wife, Mrs. Helen Gillis, and Joseph J. Negri, San Francisco gangster, with having informed Nelson on three separate days during October, 1934, that police were on his trail here.

Police found Nelson's automobile in Cochran's garage where it was undergoing repairs.

HOLC EMPLOYE HELD TO JURY IN EMBEZZLEMENT

United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday held Walter C. Stenstrom, 35 years old, 321 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, to the federal grand jury on the charge of embezzling $1,120 from the Home Owners' Loan corporation, by which he was employed. Stenstrom had been arrested earlier in the day following a confession to HOLC officials, who had discovered the shortage in his accounts. Assistant United States Attorney A. Bradley Eben said that he got the money from home owners by posing as an escrow agent with whom payments for refunding mortgages on their property were to be deposited.

High Court Decides Youth Must Hang for Killing Kin

HALIFAX, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A majority of the Supreme court of Nova Scotia refused today to grant a new trial to 20 year old Nicholas Markadonis, of Glace Bay, N. S., under sentence to hang in 12 days for the murder of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Cleo Markadonis. Markadonis was convicted of shooting his sister-in-law in the back as she stood in the pantry of her Glace Bay home preparing milk for her baby on July 20 last year.

DILLINGER CASE DOCTOR FACING LOSS OF LICENSE

State Board to Act After Piquett Trial Ends.

The state department of registration and education announced yesterday that upon the completion of Attorney Louis Piquett's trial before Federal Judge William H. Holly on a charge of harboring John Dillinger, and the disposition of federal charges against Dr. Wilhelm Loeser and Dr. Harold B. Cassidy, who performed a face lifting operation on the outlaw, steps would be taken to revoke the license of Dr. Cassidy. Dr. Loeser's license to practice medicine was revoked on April 13, 1932, upon his conviction for violation of the Harrison narcotic act.

Explains Necessary Delay.

"For the board to start an investigation before the federal charges have been disposed of, not only would be premature, but probably in vain because the physicians are in the custody of the government," W. L. Jones, in charge of the Chicago office of the department, said yesterday. "After the investigation, which is planned, a hearing would be held before the medical committee, of which Dr. Gilbert FitzPatrick is acting chairman."

Inasmuch as Judge William Murray of Crown Point has expressed a desire to testify at Piquett's trial and deny testimony that he promised he would let Dillinger off with a life sentence instead of death, Judge Murray will be given the opportunity by the government to do so tomorrow when the trial is resumed.

Goes to Jury Tomorrow.

The defense has said it would have a few more witnesses and they will be followed by two or three rebuttal witnesses of the government. Closing arguments probably will start early in the afternoon and the jury probably will have the case in its hands by evening.

Attorney Piquett probably will make part of the closing statement in his own behalf. Horace A. Hagan, special assistant to the United States attorney general, will begin the government's closing statements. United States Attorney Dwight H. Green will close.

CRIES WITNESS HAS 'SOMETHING IN HER HAND'; IT'S PURSE

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Nerves were jumpy today at the trial of Joseph J. Bruno, Kelayres, Pa., political leader, charged with murder as a result of the election eve "massacre" of five political opponents during an election parade.

As Mrs. Mary Kernsavage underwent examination on the witness stand relating to her eye-witness account of the gunfire that felled 18 persons, the courtroom was electrified when Frank Bruno, nephew of the defendant and one of five defense attorneys, leaped to his feet with the cry:

"The witness has something in her hand."

Angrily the woman held up a small purse she had been fingering during the cross-examination. Spectators relaxed audibly, and shortly Mrs. Kernsavage was excused.

Only a few other witnesses took the stand during the short half day session.

DEATH WINS RACE TO RESCUE MAN IN ARCTIC STORM

VALDEZ, Alaska, Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Death won a race with a mercy plane to the rugged Valdez glacier of southern Alaska today.

George Martin, Seattle mine operator, exhausted and frozen after four days on the ice, died while being carried to the ship. Pilots Bob Reeve and Owen Meals of Valdez landed a mile and a half from where he collapsed.

Martin, with three other men, was crossing the glacier from Valdez to the Rutherford gold mine at Ramsey, when a storm swept off the mountain. The men struggled through the freezing gale, sheltered at times by rocks, for four days. They used all their food. Martin collapsed. Gene Miller and an Indian guide turned back to Valdez. Roy Tippen remained with Martin until forced by hunger and cold to leave.

TRIBUNE OFFERS $15,000 IN CASH FOR YOUR PHOTOS

Interesting Personalities Published Each Week.

Key to your future!

Fifteen thousand dollars in cash prizes!

These three lines summarize quickly a new offer announced in the Graphic Magazine section of today's TRIBUNE. Under its terms TRIBUNE readers are given an opportunity to determine what the future holds in store for them as revealed by readings made by Doris Blake, personality editor of THE TRIBUNE.

To participate in the offer all that is necessary is to send your photograph and your name, written in your own handwriting, to Doris Blake. From the photographs and signatures submitted Miss Blake will make readings of the most interesting personalities as indicated by the handwriting and facial features.

Prizes Every Week.

Thirty-seven such readings will be published each Sunday in the Graphic Magazine section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE beginning Jan. 27. One thousand dollars in cash prizes will be paid weekly for ten weeks. Each Sunday an award of $100 in cash will be paid to the person whose photograph and handwriting, in the opinion of Miss Blake, make the most interesting reading of the week. Thirty-six awards of $25 each also will be paid each Sunday to those whose photographs and handwriting are published.

In addition to these awards of $10,000 which will be paid to 370 persons there are three grand prizes of $2,500, $1,500, and $1,000 which will be paid at the end of the offer to the three persons whose photographs and handwriting make the most interesting readings of all, irrespective of whether they have been previously published or not.

A Scientific Advancement.

The science of reading one's character from his or her facial features and handwriting has advanced immeasurably during the last decade. It is employed commercially today. Salesmen are taught to study the facial characteristics of their customers, to determine the best approach to them. Kindliness, strength, weakness, shrewdness, warmth, coldness, intelligence, alertness of mind—these and many other characteristics are frequently determinable by the facial features. Style of handwriting likewise reveals a great deal regarding the personality, physical and mental qualities of the individual, according to Graphology.

TRIBUNE readers who wish to learn what their facial features and handwriting reveal so that they may utilize this knowledge as a "Key to the Future" are invited to send their photographs, together with their names, written in their own handwriting, to Doris Blake. There is no charge of any kind. There is no age limit.

Full details are given, together with a coupon for submitting your handwriting, in the full page announcement in the Graphic Magazine section of this issue.

DOCTORS' WIVES TO SERVE AS MODELS

Benefit on Feb. 12

The Mercy hospital free dispensary and the hospital's recently remodeled children's ward will benefit from a bridge luncheon and fashion show to be given by the women's auxiliary of Mercy hospital on Feb. 12 in the Del Prado hotel.

Twelve out of the 22 beds in the children's wards are for children who pay nothing for their hospital care. It is the auxiliary's aim to increase the number of children's beds, and to decrease the annual deficit of the children's ward, which was $10,500 in 1934.

The Mercy free dispensary, established in 1920, cares for approximately 3,000 patients a year, of whom about 1,000 are hospitalized. The service includes free insulin, drugs, and dressings. The only financial help the dispensary receives consists of small donations and the receipts of a tag day each year. The dispensary's estimated annual deficit, assumed by the hospital, is $4,000.

Mrs. Edward M. Brown, 4623 Ellis avenue, is president of the auxiliary.

MRS. HUSBAND GETS DIVORCE FOR DESERTION

Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday granted an uncontested divorce in Superior court to Mrs. Eleanor Brown Husband, from Joseph Husband, New York advertising man. Mrs. Husband now lives with her father, Francis C. Brown, 1035 Pine street, Winnetka. She was married in 1911, and charged that her husband deserted her Feb. 7, 1933, in New York. She was given permission to apply for alimony at a later date after she had told Judge Desort that the condition of her husband's business would nt justify his paying it at present. Two children, Ethel, 18 years old, and Thomas Blair Husband, 21, are living with their mother.

Playmate's Bullet Kills Boy, 13, While Hunting

Roland Braun, 13 years old, of Steger, was fatally wounded yesterday by the accidental discharge of a rifle held by Stanley Ciarlo, 13 years old, while they and two other Steger boys were hunting. Roland died in St. James hospital in Chicago Heights of a bullet wound near the heart.

HEAT UP CHURCH FOR A FIRE RISK DINNER; IT BURNS

Members of the Milburn Mutual Fire Insurance company, who were to have held their annual dinner yesterday noon in the First Congregational church of Milburn, in Lake county, arrived for the occasion to find the historic structure a smoking ruin. Its roof had been fired by sparks from the furnace, started to warm the church for the dinner, and it was destroyed in spite of the efforts to save it by the Gurnee, Lake Villa, and Antioch fire departments.

The church, a large frame structure, was 69 years old. Newport township farmers who had returned from the civil war only the year before contributed a large part of the labor by which it was erected in 1866. Remodeled and enlarged in 1887 and 1907, it was a landmark in northern Lake county. The fashionable Mill Creek Hunt club is located nearby.

The congregation which used it was one of the oldest in northern Illinois. It was organized in 1841, only a short time after Lake county was opened to white settlers by a treaty with the Indians.

SAAR TO DECIDE ITS OWN FUTURE AT POLLS TODAY

500,000 Expected to Vote in Plebiscite.

as to whether the plebiscite is legal at all. Purists fear that in allowing civil servants, invalids and prisoners to vote before the legal date—at the suggestion of Miss Sarah Wambaugh, the American technical adviser and deputy member of the plebiscite commission—the election board may have rendered the plebiscite invalid.

Nazis Bear Down on Voters.

While local authorities, with the international army in the background, have so far succeeded in preserving order except for isolated incidents, Nazis have been able to exercise a heavy moral pressure on the electorate.

Questionnaires have been sent from Nazi headquarters to thousands of Saarlanders. Calling for a reply after the plebiscite the Nazis ask whether or not they voted, if not why not, and which way they voted. The more ignorant voters are terrified. They fear that if they abstain or vote against Adolf Hitler they will be persecuted after the basin's return to Germany.

Despite the assurance of the plebiscite commission the public is not absolutely satisfied the vote will be secret. The Nazis clearly have taken advantage of this uncertainty by sending agents of the German Front to examine the voting cards of all its members. The Nazis after a lot of mysterious whisperings put a little pencil mark in one corner of the card and walk off with a knowing air.

Nazis Bluff Voters.

It is sheer bluff, but many voters really think that these marks mean something and will serve somehow to tell how they have voted.

The Nazi papers are full of all sorts of alarmist news. Nazi agents are spreading handbills allegedly signed by Ernst Thaelmann, imprisoned German communist leader, urging Saarlanders to vote for Hitler.

For the majority of the population the issue is between France and Germany. Thousands of voters do not known that if they so desire they can hold a second plebiscite later on in which a definite return to Germany can be voted in case tomorrow's returns do not show an overwhelming sentiment to rejoin the fatherland. There is certainly not much enthusiasm for Hitler around here, and many Saarlanders realize everything is not rosy in the Fatherland, but they feel it is their duty as good Germans to share the lot of their brethren whether it be good or bad.

Weapon Against Hitler.

Anti-Nazis, on the other hand, think of the Saar chiefly as a weapon against Hitler. They are fighting less for the freedom of the Saar than to strike a deadly blow at the German dictator's prestige, and they are trying to rally Socialists and liberals all over the world to back them in their crusade. They are just as fanatical as the Nazis and care just as little about the real desire of the Saar population. They are chiefly interested in keeping the Saar as an international complication.

Just what the league will do after the votes are counted on Monday is anybody's guess. It must be recalled that the Versailles treaty does not say the Saar's future shall be determined by a majority vote.

It says only that the league council shall determine that future, "taking into account the wishes of the inhabitants as expressed by the vote." This leaves a wide latitude.

Ultimate Fate up to Geneva.

A 30 per cent, or even a 25 per cent minority vote may easily raise grave doubts at Geneva. Close observers estimate that the pro-German vote will be between 70 and 75 per cent of the total. The Nazis confidently predict any majority up to 99 per cent. Their opponents talk of a probable even split.

Somewhere between these two predictions the result will lie. Then the Saar's fate will be left to the league council.

Whatever tomorrow may bring, the Saar was relatively calm up to a late hour tonight. The only disturbance was an attempt on the part of a few hundred communists to demonstrate in the streets of Saarbruecken. The parade was broken up by police who chased the reds down alleys and side streets with clubs.

Heavy Snow Falling.

The Saar is awaiting the plebiscite in a holiday atmosphere. A heavy snow is driving down on the territory and already several inches are under foot, giving an atmosphere of Christmas to the scene.

The streets of Saarbruecken and the other principal towns are ablaze with festoons of electric lights and evergreen wreaths dangling from hundreds of house fronts. "Hitler candles" are burning behind curtained windows.

The plebiscite will cost France, Germany and the Saar government about 15,000,000 francs [about $1,090,000]. France and Germany are paying equal amounts, while the Saar government will pay one-fifth or less of the total.

The cost of the voting has been greater than was anticipated so that France and Germany, which have contributed 5,000,000 francs each, and the Saar, which has added 1,000,000 francs, are now asked to make up the deficit.

VOTERS FIX FUTURE OF SAAR TODAY

Map shows rich Saar territory which votes today in the plebiscite to determine whether it remains under the control of the league of nations, goes to France or reunites with Germany. More than 500,000 voters are expected to go to the polls. Observers predict a vast majority will vote to rejoin Germany. France and Holland strengthened their guards at the border last night as fear of trouble cropped out. On the German side of the frontier huge "victory" bonfires blazed.

BONFIRES ON BORDER

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Bonfires blazed on German hills along the border of the Saar tonight while the reich concentrated on the job of being "Saar-minded" over the week-end. Everything was organized for this purpose. Sermons and prayers about the Saar will be delivered in Protestant churches, while the government controled radio system will swamp the country with Saar music and hourly reports on what is happening within the territory.

There were few Germans on the streets today without tags in their buttonholes showing that they have donated a small or big sum "for the brothers in the Saar."

Germans tomorrow will celebrate "roastless Sunday," donating the price of the customary roast to winter relief. The press has given assurance that when the nation sits down to the Sunday meal the "frugality born of the love for suffering brothers will symbolize the spirit of unity and loyalty to the Saar."

Thirty-five special trains carrying 35,000 voters from Germany will cross the border into the Saar by noon tomorrow. A voter from Novo-Sibirsk, Siberia, and another from Colombo, Ceylon, left Germany for the Saar tonight.

Nazis are paying the traveling expense of voters from abroad. Fifty-eight thousand Saarlanders from foreign lands have arrived in the basin to cast their ballots.

Blaze Drives 20 Families Into Street; One Man Dies

Boston, Mass., Jan. 13 [Sunday].—(AP)—One man died of suffocation and a woman was overcome in a fire which drove 20 families to the street from a four story apartment in the Back Bay section of Boston early today.

NAZIS SEIZE TWO DREISER BOOKS FOR SLUR ON LIFE

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—[U.P.]—German translations of two works by Theodore Dreiser, American novelist, were confiscated by secret police today on request of the Nazi chamber of literature of the reich. The books were "An American Tragedy" and "The Genius." A spokesman of the chamber said the action was taken "because these books deal with low love affairs, as if all life were simply concerned with prostitutes."

PARIS SENDS NEW TROOPS TO GUARD BORDER OF SAAR

Fear of Trouble Crops Out on Eve of Voting.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—France took firm steps tonight to forestall any border incidents in connection with the Saar plebiscite tomorrow as the old fear of eventual trouble between France and Germany cropped out on the eve of the voting.

Simultaneously with the departure of Saar-bound trains packed to the guard rails with French Saarlanders en route to vote, twelve "flying squads" of republican guards and the crack national police were sent to reinforce detachments guarding the 67 mile frontier.

Keep Alert for Trouble.

The new forces were ordered to keep on the alert for trouble, and first aid stations were set up to treat any persons injured in plebiscite disorders who might cross the border.

It was pointed out by the Frenchmen on the street that despite the Franco-German agreement, victory in the Saar would give Germany blast furnaces and coal without iron—and the French province of Lorraine has supplied the Saar with iron for many generations. Consequently, the economic fact of the Saar's dependence upon Lorraine was causing concern.

France to Care for Refugees.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Further details showing the extent to which France is prepared to welcome and care for refugees from the Saar in the event of the territory's return to Germany were made known today.

The ministry of interior will pay a dole to the fugitives for two weeks. Thereupon, the ministry of labor will take charge of them, classifying them according to trades and professions, and attempt to distribute them to districts where unemployment is least acute.

Estimates regarding the number of refugees vary widely, running up to 100,000. The prefect of the department bordering on the Saar predicts 50,000. But the ministry of the interior estimates only 5,000 actual refugees.

However, to these must be added 3,000 Saarlanders who now are naturalized Frenchmen, 3,000 residents of Alsace and Lorraine inhabiting the Saar, who in 1919 became French, and another 3,000 miners in the territory who have incurred the displeasure of the pro-German elements and whom France considers entitled to special consideration.

Since 20,000 foreigners cross the French-Saar border daily going to and from their work, the matter of singling out and taking charge of refugees will be difficult, but that has been anticipated. Refugees' passports will have been visaed by the French consul at Saarbruecken.

They will be directed to "welcoming centers" at Saareguemines, Forbach and Tetercken, where officials will take finger prints and fill out identification cards. The refugees will be provided green laissez passer cards.

Holland Doubles Guard.

THE HAGUE, Holland, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Netherlands authorities today ordered the doubling of frontier guards in order to prevent the crossing of refugees from the Saar basin.

1,200 Idle March on Paris; Battle Police in Snowstorm

PARIS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A snowstorm combined with massed battalions of police today broke up a march of discontented jobless persons on the capital in defiance of the government's prohibition of demonstrations.

There were skirmishes in which a number of heads were cracked, but no fatalities.

The marchers, estimated to number 1,200, never reached the chamber of deputies, which was their goal, but were scattered by police at the entrances to the city and forced to go in small groups to three mass meetings at widely separated halls of the city.

Cry "Work or Bread."

Cries of "Work or bread!" and the chant of "The Internationale" accompanied the charges of the demonstrators on massed police in suburban Paris. Red workers from communist strongholds in the capital and suburbs were among those wounded in the clashes with police.

Most of the paraders sought to escape the weather by boarding street cars.

Delegations were selected at the various meetings to carry the "work or bread" petitions to communist deputies in the chamber, which was not in session.

Organized By Red Party.

The communist party organized the advance on Paris as a gesture to compel the government to extend the dole to thousands of unemployed who, they claim, are not receiving aid.

A cry for overcoats was added to the cry for bread when the marchers reached the city. En route from provincial centers they had experienced bitterly cold weather, and this morning they tramped through the winter's first snowfall.

Official figures show 436,442 persons are on the dole. The communists and French Federation of Labor, however, assert the actual number of unemployed is much larger, because many towns have no relief system and many who are out of work are ineligible for relief because they are property owners or are the parents of employed children.

AUSTRIA SEEKS TO FLOAT LOAN; CRISIS FORESEEN

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Austria's request that the league of nations grant permission for a new internal loan of $100,000,000 schillings [$18,800,000], clearly indicates, foreign observers here said today, a precarious monetary situation in the Austrian government.

The same sources hinted that the chief cause for Austrian financial difficulties was the huge cost of maintaining the private armies kept by the present dictatorial government.

That the Austrian national bank was also severely affected by the internal development was reported by the Arbeiter Zeitung, official organ of the Austrian Socialists, which since the outlawing of the party has been published in Czechoslavakia.

The paper claimed the Austrian national bank was unable to pay dividends to shareholders, and the government, to avoid the catastrophe which nonpayment would have created, agreed to pay a portion of the interest to shareholders by raising its debt with the national bank by some 2,600,000 schillings.

BRAZILIANS FEAR BIG JAP INFLUX; SEEN AS MENACE

Immigrants Acquire Land and Build Own Towns.

SAO PAOLO, Brazil, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Admiration of the industry and skill of Japanese immigrants today mingled with concern over the possible effect immigration from the east might have on Brazil's future.

A report made public by the Sociedad de Amigos de Alberto Torres, a patriotic association whose announced aim is to combat what it calls "the yellow peril," said nearly 28,000 Japanese immigrants entered Sao Paolo in 1934.

Cite Rapid Rise of Japs.

The secretary general of the organization said 28,620 in all came into Brazil during the year, 800 of them proceeding to farm lands in the tropical state of Para and the rest coming to Sao Paolo. This compared, he said, with the total of 35,000 immigrants of all other nationalities in 1934.

Sao Paolo officials and business leaders, expressing admiration for the parsimony and the rapid rise of the incoming Japanese, nevertheless in the same breath voice concern from "a broad national point of view."

Enriching the country as well as himself, the Japanese immigrant has come to till the coffee, cotton, and orange lands of the wealthy in Brazil's twenty states, saving his money for two or three years, acquiring land and emerging finally as a proprietor in his own right. Only a few of the 156,938 who have entered Sao Paolo are still laborers today.

Build Own Towns.

Throughout the northwest of the state are rising communities built up by his independent hand. Lins, Arasatuba, Prommissao, and Biriguy are Japanese towns in Sao Paolo.

"These more than 150,000 settlers into our state may turn out to have been not 'immigration' but a 'Pacific invasion'," said an official in the immigration department of the secretariat of agriculture.

Generally here, as in Rio de Janeiro, the view is held by responsible government and business leaders that the Japanese, even while taking the vows of citizenship in Brazil, retain their allegiance to their own country.

Luiz Piza Sobrinho, a member of the chamber of deputies to be seated next year, said an emissary came from Tokio to call on every laborer that had emigrated to Sao Paolo and advanced money to free the laborers from debt.

"That emissary actually left the immigrant in debt with the mikado," commented an official.

PERU-COLOMBIA FRONTIER PACT FAILS TO CLICK

GENEVA, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Peru notified the league of nations today that the Colombian congress had failed to approve within the required time the Letitia protocol of friendship and cooperation between the two countries. Peru informed the league last November that the congress of that country had approved the document.

The protocol, signed April 24, 1934, at Geneva had been hailed as a significant diplomatic victory settling long disputed, acrid differences between the two nations over a border area close to the equator.

Before the agreement was signed there was considerable apprehension concerning a possible conflict between the two nations over their old territorial dispute.

LIMA IS 400 YEARS OLD; TO HAIL ITS FOUNDER, PIZZARO

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Lima's ancient streets are filled with visitors here to participate in the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the city's foundation by the conqueror Francisco Pizarro. For months preparations have been made to make the ceremonies opening next Friday an outstanding event in the city's history.

Dedication of extensive public works, unveiling of statues, elaborate religious services and contests among athletes from many other South American countries are among the activities included in the program.

One of the statues is of George Washington, presented to Lima by its American colony.

PARAGUAY AGAIN UPSETS PLAN TO END CHACO WAR

Tells League It Would Be "Precarious."

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Replying to a league of nations communication which urged Paraguay to accept the peace plan to end the Chaco war with Bolivia, the government today reiterated its original objections to the plan and described it as "precarious."

It was said officially meanwhile that Paraguayan armies under Gen. José Estigarribia had cut to pieces a Bolivian regiment in the Capirenda sector of the Chaco, killing 500 men and capturing eight officers and 700 soldiers.

The government told Geneva the project, in the nature of an armistice in which war footing and armies would be maintained, would create a situation under which clashes would be possible.

Desires War's End.

A desire for definite cessation of the war, demobilization, and adequate guarantees, was expressed.

After criticizing the project as "perilous," the answer said: "Paraguay needs stable guarantees not depending upon the will of one of the parties." It gave military objections to the proposed neutral zones and said it would be perilous for Paraguay to withdraw eastward from the present Chaco front.

"Immediate definite cessation of the war is imperative," the message said. "Almost the entire virile population is in the zone of operations. The army is maintained by contributions which are impoverishing the country and diminishing the powers of recuperation."

Argentine Press Hits Bolivia.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Leading Buenos Aires newspapers today assailed as unsatisfactory Bolivia's explanation of the slaying by Bolivian soldiers of an Argentine standing on Argentine territory.

Both La Nacion and La Prensa demanded complete clearing up of the circumstances surrounding the death of Anacleto Quispe at the hands of Bolivian troops who, dispatches from the town of La Quiaca said, crossed the border in an effort to recruit conscripts for service in the Chaco.

BLAZE DESTROYS CHICAGO YACHT; TWO RESCUED

Miami, Fla., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Rescuers in speedboats hastened offshore today to save Capt. C. L. Pace of Chicago and C. O. Revel of Miami from the $30,000 yacht Stowaway after it caught fire while more than a mile out in Biscayne bay. The fire was preceded by an explosion.

The boat, which was destroyed by the flames, was brought here from Chicago via the drainage canals, the Mississippi, and the open sea. It had been reconditioned for winter cruising.

Formerly the Stowaway belonged to C. A. Moore, 2666 East 73d street, Chicago, who kept it in service on Lake Michigan. It was wrecked by an explosion in the engine room on Sept. 2, 1932, when at dock in Jackson park outer harbor. Moore and the mate were injured. Moore later sold the boat to James Pace, brother of the captain.

SUMMER HOME OF PROF. EINSTEIN SEIZED BY NAZIS

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Prof. Albert Einstein's summer residence at Caputh, near Berlin, has been confiscated for the benefit of the Prussian state, according to an announcement in the Official Gazette today.

This residence was purchased by Prof. Einstein following his refusal to accept such property as an honor gift from the city of Berlin when the offer produced a wrangle in the Berlin city council. Thereupon his friends presented him with a yacht, which has since also been seized by the Nazis, together with his bank account, amounting to 30,000 marks ($12,000).

According to the announcement, the confiscation was decreed because the property is "hostile to the people and to the state."

WETTEN MAKES FORMAL ENTRY IN MAYORALTY RACE

Acts as G. O. P. Factions Hunt Opposing Candidate

BY PERCY WOOD.

Attorney Emil C. Wetten made the first formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for mayor yesterday in the face of growing reports that leaders of party factions and many of the city committeemen are seeking another candidate.

Wetten's announcement was no surprise. His petition was filed on Jan. 2, the first day it was legal to deposit them with the city clerk. He has been—and still is—the leading announced contender for the Republican nomination. And in his statement he denied "all rumors that I may withdraw either prior or subsequent to the primary."

So the movement on foot to agree on an opposition candidate indicated that there would be a fight for the nomination. Today further conferences of Republican group leaders will be held and by tomorrow, three days from the close of the filing period, petitions for another candidate are expected to be in circulation.

See Albert as Opponent.

Former Ald. Arthur F. Albert still appeared the likely choice for Wetten's opponent last night. His friends declared that committeemen in increasing numbers, are urging him to run. He was reported to have the support of several party powers, among them George F. Harding, former county treasurer, but no announcements were forthcoming. Nor would Albert talk of the possibility of his candidacy.

About 20 former office holders and chieftains of the Deneen faction met yesterday for a four hour talk to discuss mayoral candidates. Among those mentioned were former Federal Judge and United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude and former Ambassador to Cuba Noble Brandon Judah.

Doubtful of Candidates.

Opinion was that neither Judge Trude nor Mr. Judah would care to make the race and it has been hinted that former Judge Johnson would prefer to be a candidate for the United States senate.

However, spokesmen for the group declared that no commitment was made and that the conference would be resumed today.

In his statement, Mr. Wetten said, "I entered this campaign at the solicitation of many Republicans in whom I have confidence and who persuaded me that it was my civic duty to do so, being confident that my candidacy would afford an opportunity to unite the Republican party in this community. In the event my candidacy is successful I propose to be the 'People's Mayor' at all times."

Make 5,000 Acres Here Available for Gardening

Land aggregating 5,000 acres along the sanitary district canals and around pumping stations has become available for gardening projects through the coöperation of the sanitary district and relief organizations, according to President Ross A. Woodhull. "In putting the various strips of land to worthwhile use," he said yesterday, "we are merely expressing our policy of aiding the relief workers wherever it is possible."

BANKER'S SON THREATENED

Thomas P. Beal Jr., 6 years old, has been threatened with kidnaping in note received by his father, president of the Second National bank of Boston. The boy is shown with his mother.

Guard Two Children

Newton, Mass., Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—The two small children of President Thomas P. Beal of the Second National Bank of Boston were closely guarded from kidnapers tonight after receipt of a new $25,000 death threat.

Newton police took special precautions, although they had not been specifically requested, to detail a guard for Thomas Jr., 6, and Judith, 7.

The extortion demand threatened the boy with a fate "like the Lindbergh kid" if instructions were not followed.

The first threat was received some time ago. It gave minute directions of the manner the extortion money was to be delivered.

Beal, a Harvard graduate, is the third of his family to occupy the presidency of the bank. He formerly was connected with the Northwestern Bank of Minneapolis.

Council Committee to Hear Trolley Riders' Complaints

Ald. James R. Quinn, chairman of the council transportation committee, announced yesterday that a sub-committee has been organized to which citizens' complaints about street car service may be made. The Chicago Surface Lines has promised to coöperate with this committee in bettering service, Ald. Quinn said.

MADRID, Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Protests by Republican newspapers against letters with stamps used during the monarchy bearing the head of former King Alfonso resulted in the issuance today of a decree declaring such stamps void and forbidding their use.

HORNER KEEPS SPOILS SYSTEM, FORUM IS TOLD

Women Voters' Meeting Hears Rodney Brandon.

Rodney Brandon, former director of the state department of public welfare, in an address yesterday accused Gov. Horner of permitting a continuance of the spoils system which he said flourished under Gov. Small and were countenanced by Gov. Emmerson.

Brandon spoke at an open forum on civil service conducted by the Cook County League of Women Voters at the Palmer house. Also participating in the discussions were James W. Errant, manager of the Municipal Employés society, and Henry P. Chandler, president of the Civil Service association of Chicago.

Laws in Existence 35 Years.

"Civil service laws have been in existence in Illinois for 35 years," Brandon said, "but only under Govs. Dunne, Deneen, and Lowden were they enforced."

Of 5,000 employés in the department of public welfare on Jan. 1, 1929, Brandon said, only 1,000 were genuine civil service workers. The others, he charged, were political appointees working on temporary permits.

Brandon and Chandler both said that the abuses of the state civil service law arose from the refusal of Gov. Small to hold civil service examinations.

"Outsiders'" Grades Ignored.

"All that the temporary employé must do is pass an examination with the minimum grade," Brandon said. "Outsiders seeking civil service positions cannot obtain jobs even though their grades are far above those of the politically sponsored temporary appointees.

"Under these conditions the standards of efficiency must be brought down to the level of the officeholders. The spoils system is perpetuated, with its economic loss to the community."

A rosier picture of civil service administration in the city was painted by Errant, who said that 24,000 of the 28,000 city employés are under civil service and that through the influence of the Municipal Employés' society and labor unions, examinations are held regularly and vacancies filled from civil service lists.

Errant estimated that in the county only 600 of 4,200 employés are under civil service.

ROOSEVELT DRIVES TO HOME OF SON, ELLIOT, FOR LUNCHEON VISIT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt took advantage today of a warm, sunshiny day to drive to the home of his son, Elliott, near Leesburg, Va.

Leaving the White House shortly before noon, the President arrived at the Virginia home of his son in time for luncheon. He remained for a couple of hours before journeying back through the Potomac valley to the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt motored alone on his surprise trip. His aids said they had not been informed where he was going or how long he would be gone. He is trying to adhere to a five day week and White House aids and employés were given, as usual, the Saturday afternoon off.

LONG'S PENSION LAW IS ENJOINED BY U. S. COURT

New Orleans, La., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long's industrial pension law was enjoined today in federal court here while the Square Deal association, organized at Baton Rouge to restore "constitutional government," called on the people to stand by it in its movement to "break" the Long dictatorship.

It was announced in District court that Judge Wayne G. Borah had signed an injunction temporarily restraining Attorney General Gaston L. Porterie from enforcing the industrial pension law passed at Long's request by the third special legislative session of 1934 and had set a hearing for Jan. 25 before a three judge federal tribunal.

Suit was filed by the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana and the Standard Pipe Line company, an affiliate of Standard Oil, alleging their $40,000,000 industry in Louisiana was being deprived of constitutional rights by the act.

THE NEW LINCOLN

A finer motor car than ever before

There are a great many people in this community who admire and appreciate fine motor cars. It is they, especially, whom we invite to the Lincoln display, for this interpretation of the coachmakers' and the engineers' art should gratify the most critical tastes.

You will find that the new Lincoln represents a distinct advance over its illustrious predecessors. It combines the best of modern design with a dignity which is Lincoln's own. For all its length and sturdiness, this year's car is more alert, more flexible, more responsive to gear shifting and braking than ever before.

The famous V-12 cylinder engine is now placed forward in the frame, so that the weight of rear-seat passengers is poised ahead of the axle, rather than directly over it. Because of this new designing, there is greater room, as well as greater comfort, in the new Lincoln bodies. Rear doors in some models are as much as five inches wider. Within the car are many new refinements, such as the redesigned instrument panel and glove compartment, concealed curtains and the inlaid walnut trim. Every luxurious appointment for the comfort and convenience of passengers has been included.

The new Lincoln is available in eighteen standard and custom body types, the latter built by Brunn, Judkins, Le Baron and Willoughby. From honeycomb radiator grille to graceful, slanting rear end, these new cars reflect the creative skill of the country's foremost designers.

The Lincoln will be on display each day from 10 A.M. to 10 P.M.

ASSEMBLY URGED TO REAPPORTION STATE IN 1935

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner today voiced hopes that the 59th general assembly would enact legislation providing for congressional, senatorial, and judicial reapportionment in Illinois along the lines suggested in his biennial message.

SENATOR H. G. WARD.

No change has been made in the senatorial or congressional boundary lines since 1901, although the state constitution provides for redistricting every ten years, and the lines of the Supreme court districts have been changed only once since 1870. Population shifts and growths, consequently, have unbalanced the various districts greatly.

A start already has been made on the congressional phase of the governor's redistricting program. In the senate, Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] has introduced a joint resolution calling for the appointment of a committee of five house and five senate members to draft a bill for a new apportionment of the congressional districts.

Horner Cites Inequalities.

"There is no valid reason or excuse for our failure to redistrict this state into congressional districts," said the governor in his message, a statement he repeated today. "Gross inequalities in Illinois representation in congress exist because of the change in population which has occurred in the thirty-four years since the last redistricting in this state.

"The general assembly enacted legislation in 1931 to redistrict the state into congressional districts, but this legislation was declared void on account of its manifest disregard of the principle of equality in representations. Legislation should be enacted at this session for a fair and equitable congressional reapportionment."

Failure to remap the senatorial district lines has resulted in Cook county being greatly underrepresented in both houses of the general assembly. Since 1901 the population of Cook county has increased from a little over one third of the population of the state to 52 per cent, according to the 1930 census.

There also are glaring instances of underrepresentation among some of the downstate districts. The largest district downstate that the 1930 census had a population of 202,730 while the smallest had only 73,101.

Opponents to reapportionment assert that if the senatorial districts are revamped according to population, Cook county would be given complete control of both the senate and the house. The governor feels that in view of this attitude there is little prospect of reapportionment as now provided.

"The only practicable solution of this generation old question," the governor said, "is a constitutional change to provide for equal representation on the basis of population in the house and limitation of Cook county representation in senate. Thus each portion of the state would be protected and such an apportionment would act as a check on the other.

Plan Not an Innovation.

"The plan I suggest is not an innovation in legislative bodies. Many states which have a large portion of their population concentrated in one or more urban centers have given full representation in one house and limited representation in the other. In fact, the congress of the United States has always been based on this principle.

"This change can, of course, be considered by a constitutional convention, if one is provided for, or the general assembly should consider and propose such an amendment on the subject of legislative representation."

The seven districts from which State Supreme court justices are elected are required to be based on equality of population so far as county lines will permit. The Seventh [Chicago] districts contained a population of 4,339,335, according to the 1930 census. The next largest district had a population in 1930 of 710,266, and the smallest had only 401,906.

The state constitution provides that the boundaries of a district shall be changed only at the session of the general assembly next preceding the election for judge therein. A regular election will be held only in one district—the Fifth—before the session of the sixtieth assembly.

The boundaries of the Fifth district may be changed at this time, according to the governor, and also the boundaries of such other districts as may be necessary to effect the changes in the Fifth. Since the Seventh and Fifth are contiguous, it will be possible, he said, to affect the territory of the Seventh in which occurs the great disparity in representation.

"I urge that this general assembly so far as possible under our present constitution," read the governor's message, "restore equality of representation in the Supreme court because if neglected this session it cannot be corrected until 1941."

Ousted Rockford Police Official Seeks Vindication

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Attorneys for Homer Read, discharged assistant chief of police, today took steps to seek his vindication on the eve of a grand jury investigation of charges in connection with the operation of horse race bookmaking establishments here. At the request of Read's counsel, Circuit Judge E. Fisher issued a writ directing the board of fire and police commissioners to bring into court all records of proceedings which resulted in the dismissal of the veteran officer.

U. S. TRADE GROUP CALLS MEMBERS TO FIGHT BONUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Continuing its opposition to bonus payment, the United States Chamber of Commerce today called upon its membership throughout the country to give immediate and vigorous expression against immediate full payment of veterans' adjusted service certificates to their senators and representatives in congress.

The chamber points out that the direct cost of the war to the United States was 21½ billion dollars. If the adjusted service certificates are allowed to mature in accordance with their terms the government will have paid by 1945 another 21 billion dollars in various benefits for those who were in its armed service, the organization said.

Such an expenditure upon benefits, it is said, gives a full answer to contentions of advocates of immediate payment that the treatment of veterans has not been fair or generous and that their proposals will be only an act of belated justice.

"If current annual expenditures under existing laws are considered, the figures are equally impressive," said Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber. "During the debate in an earlier session of congress, when proposals to cash immediately the adjusted service certificates were under consideration, it was brought out that the United States is paying in benefits annually the sum of $180.91 for each and every man mobilized for service during the war.

"On the same basis, Canada is paying $98.64 a year. France is paying $34.09, and Great Britain $36.49.

"There is much misunderstanding upon another point of importance. Some advocates of immediate payment of face value, which will not be reached for ten years or more, represent the money as lying in the treasury. This is entirely erroneous.

"Annual sums have been appropriated by congress since 1925, which, increased with interest and decreased by death claims under endowment insurance policies, will provide in 1945 the necessary amount of 3½ billion dollars.

"It is only through these annual appropriations, and through the application of actuarial principles, that the plan has been possible within the government's budget. The credits to the fund now accumulated through the first ten years of the 20 year period necessarily are less than half the maturity value of the certificates reached in 1945."

CHICAGO ROTARY CLUBS PLAN NEW BUSINESS EXHIBIT

Other Cities Send Envoys to 4 Day Event.

A business exposition, a World's Fair in miniature, will be opened in the Hotel Sherman next Tuesday with members of seventeen Rotary clubs in the Chicago metropolitan area exhibiting. The exposition, presented this year by popular request as a result of the enthusiasm greeting last year's show, will occupy the entire mezzanine floor of the hotel, including the grand ballroom.

Due to the wide representation of Rotary in business and industry, practically every type of manufactured product and service will be represented in the show. The show is open to guests and customers of all Rotary members.

Taking a leaf from Chicago's book, clubs in other cities throughout the United States are planning similar shows, and representatives of many of those cities will visit the Chicago show during its four day presentation.

Ballroom a Garden Spot.

The grand ballroom will be transformed into a garden covering 4,000 square feet and will be used as one of the principal showrooms. It is named the Paul Harris room after the founder of Rotary.

A small forest of evergreen trees and two and one-half tons of arbor vitae will be used in the decorations. The garden will be constructed around a fountain at the entrance to the ballroom. All told 35,000 square feet of space will be included in the exposition, with 150 Rotary members presenting exhibits. A committee of twenty-four is in charge of the show, with William V. McGill as chairman.

"We feel that the thing of basic importance in any recovery program," said George L. Treadwell, secretary of the Rotary Club of Chicago, "is the constructive effort of business men to improve their own business. This business recovery exposition is designed to show the public what Rotarians are accomplishing in this way."

Show Sea Travel Rise.

Typical of the progress exhibits is one in which three centuries of progress in ocean travel will be depicted. Exhibited by the Museum of Science and Industry, this will present scale models of the Conte de Savoia, world's fastest passenger liner, and the Mayflower, with explanatory charts. Other exhibits will cover the entire field of human endeavor.

One of the Rotarians coming the longest way to the show is Donato Gaminara, civil engineer of Montevideo, Uruguay, first vice president of the international organization. He reported that business in South America is on the upward trend. Many of the exhibits at the show will deal with South American trade and commerce.

BUCKBEE SEEKS FUNDS TO REOPEN NAVAL STATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Representative John T. Buckbee [Rep., Ill.], Rockford, and a member of the appropriations committee, said today he hoped sufficient money would be appropriated by congress to reopen the Great Lakes training station at Waukegan, Ill.

"At present the appropriations committee seems adverse to spending the $275,000 necessary to reopen the station and run it for a year," said Buckbee, "but I feel confident that some steps can be taken, either in the house or the senate, to get around their objections.

"Obviously the station should be reopened because of the increased need for sailors."

The station was closed two years ago, Buckbee said, and last year the house refused to approve of a similar appropriation.

Representative Ralph E. Church [Rep., Ill.] of Evanston, in whose district the station lies, said:

"I have nothing to say about the proposition, one way or the other."

ONTARIO OFFICIAL LAYS ATTACK TO U. S. RACKETEERS

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Belief that United States stock racketeers had made an attack on him last night was voiced today by Col. D. F. Pidgeon, special investigator of the Ontario securities department.

Col. Pidgeon, active in a campaign begun by the securities commission to rid Ontario of "boiler shops" and tip services, said he had been warned more than once to "lay off."

As he was entering his hotel, he said, two quart bottles of beer were dropped from an upper window, narrowly missing him. Col. Pidgeon had just raided a downtown hotel in search of American salesmen of fake stock, who were reported to be in the city.

The congregation is now one of the largest Jewish Orthodox synagogues in Chicago. Rabbi Saul Silber, who is also president of the Hebrew Theological college, has served the congregation for 25 years. NEW N.Y. CENTRAL 'STREAM' ENGINE EXHIBITED HERE

'Commodore Vanderbilt' Viewed by 20,000.

The Commodore Vanderbilt, the New York Central Lines' streamlined steam locomotive, said to be the first of its kind, was placed on exhibition at the La Salle street station yesterday. It was estimated by officials of the railroad that 20,000 persons viewed the locomotive during the day.

The streamlined locomotive and its tender arrived at the depot yesterday morning from the railroad's shops at New Albany, N. Y. Members of the Chicago Association of Commerce and railroad officials were present at the time of its arrival. The Commodore Vanderbilt will be on display again today, and tonight will leave for Detroit.

C. W. Y. Currie, publicity manager of the New York Central Lines, said that after two weeks of exhibition in various cities along the lines the locomotive will be taken back to the shop at New Albany where minor adjustments will be made. It will then be placed in regular service over the road.

Mr. Currie said that plans are under way for the streamlining of a second engine and that the results of tests made of the Commodore Vanderbilt and the second locomotive will determine whether all of the company's steam engines will be remodeled.

The work of streamlining the locomotive was done in the railroad shops at New Albany. A Hudson type passenger locomotive of 4,075 horsepower in the regular service of the railroad was fitted with an outer streamline cowling of gun metal. Doors were fitted in the sides of the covering in order to permit workmen to grease and repair the engine.

In test runs at New Albany when the locomotive was operated at a speed of between 70 and 90 miles an hour the streamline covering reduced the head wind resistance approximately 36 per cent, officials reported. The reduction in wind resistance is expected to give the engine an added pulling power of between 2½ and 12 per cent, officials said.

The actual cost of remodeling the locomotive has not been determined by the officials, but it was said that it would not exceed $2,000.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[U.P.]—Protests against plans to make public income tax figures of individuals and corporations beginning March 15 were made today to the treasury.

Beginning on that date, the federal government will place into operation provisions of the 1934 revenue act requiring persons filing income and tax reductions to include address and other details. Failure to fill out the blanks will cost the taxpayer $5.

Under instructions dispatched by Internal Revenue Collector Guy T. Helvering, each of the sixty-four district collectors will keep the records available for public inspection.

We are making this startling Trial Offer because we want to prove to you, in your own home, the amazing low operating cost of Oil-O-Matic Hushed Heat. Under this generous Trial Offer all that you pay will be a nominal rental for the burner—as low as $8.90 a month for the home of average size.

But—if you decide to purchase your Oil-O-Matic, the rent you have paid will apply on the purchase price.

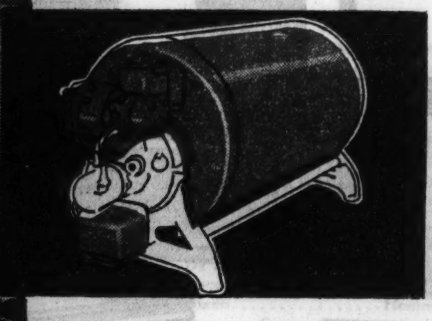
Cut Hot Water Costs 1/4 to 1/2



The revolutionary new Oil-O-Matic Water Heater supplies abundant hot water day and night, at tremendous savings. Fully automatic. Try it at our expense under the new Oil-O-Matic Trial Plan described above. Installed at our expense—removed at our expense if you are not satisfied. If you've been using automatic gas for constant hot water you'll save real money every month with this new horizontal type Oil-O-Matic Water Heater.

HEAT WITH OIL

Oil, a better fuel at any price, costs less

Out of 80,000 homes in the Chicago area using automatic heat, 60,000 burn oil. And there's a definite reason for this overwhelming preference. Fuel experts agree that oil heat is by far the most economical, most convenient form of automatic heat. Not only do 6 out of 8 Chicago families using automatic heat burn oil, but in the 60,000 oil-burning homes there are far more Oil-O-Matics than any other oil burner.

Why Oil-O-Matic Leads

In Chicago—in America—throughout the world Oil-O-Matic is the fastest selling oil burner because of its recognized mechanical superiority. Oil-O-Matic pioneered oil heating eighteen years ago—invented and developed most of its mechanical features, holding basic patents on many important exclusive features. Oil-O-Matic is a "Projected Flame" type of burner, and only the Projected Flame type complies with all four of the basic laws of oil combustion. No part of the Oil-O-Matic mechanism is inside the fire-box.

An untiring engineering staff is constantly at work perfecting Oil-O-Matic. It is, and always has been, a laboratory-controlled product, produced in one of the finest industrial plants in America.

No Monopoly Costs

Oil-O-Matic has been so perfected mechanically that it burns any grade of domestic fuel oil. You never suffer from monopoly costs or treatment as a user of Oil-O-Matic Hushed Heat—you are free to buy your fuel supply from many sources. Competition between giant oil dealers keeps oil prices low. Your fuel costs are not fixed by political influence of big business on legislatures.

You can have perfect confidence in the dependability of your Oil-O-Matic—it is listed as standard by Underwriters Laboratories, and world-famous architects and engineers have selected Oil-O-Matic for such difficult heating jobs as Westminster Abbey, Reims and Canterbury Cathedrals.

Startling Low Operating Costs

You probably have friends who have tried other forms of automatic heat and found the cost exorbitant. We believe you would be astounded if you could see the letters on file in our office from home owners who have switched to Oil-O-Matic after trying many forms of automatic heat. Their actual figures of operating costs show that in many cases Oil-O-Matic costs one-third to one-half less to operate than gas heat. That's why we say an Oil-O-Matic pays for itself out of what you save!

What Your Fuel Dollar Buys

Fuels are scientifically compared on a basis of "British Thermal Units" or B. T. U.'s.

GAS—One dollar will buy from 566,215 B. T. U.'s in gas at initial rates to 1,428,571 B. T. U.'s after you have attained the absolute minimum rate for domestic heating. Much gas must be used at the higher rates each month before any gas is credited to you at the low rate.

OIL—One dollar will buy 2,383,332 B. T. U.'s in fuel oil at 6 cents a gallon—the present price.

Actual Oil-O-Matic Operating Costs

5 Room Bungalow
Mr. C. G. Davis, 4422 Avers Ave.
Per year, $77.39

6 Room Bungalow
Mr. William Scholl, 8117 S. Lincoln.
Per year, $75.60

8 Room House
Mr. Chas. G. E. Jacobsen, 5535 Wayne Ave.
Per year, $111.57

10 Room House

Per year, $154.00

2 Flat Building
Mrs. W. H. Crawford, 1516 Mayfield Ave.
Per year, $138.80

Compare these costs with your present fuel costs. If you are using gas heat, or an obsolete oil burner, you will be startled by Oil-O-Matic economy. These figures were taken from hundreds of similar records in our files.

Quick Installation

Your home need not even cool off when you have an Oil-O-Matic installed. Our factory-trained engineers work not only thoroughly but fast. Oil-O-Matic can be installed in any type of heating plant—steam, vapor, hot water or warm air.

Have You an Obsolete Oil Burner?

If you have an old fashioned, obsolete oil burner using lighter oils and want to try a quiet, economical Williams Oil-O-Matic at our expense, the rental charge during the trial period will be considerably less than the $8.90 and up monthly rental. This is because we will not need to install a storage tank.

LITHUANIA OPENS TALKS TO SOLVE ROW WITH POLAND

Move May Heal Sore Spot in European Politics.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Jan. 12.—Negotiations between Poland and Lithuania concerning the liquidation of the unofficial state of war existing between the two countries since Poland seized Vilna in 1920 have been reopened. Marshal Josef Pilsudski, Polish dictator, and President Smetona of Lithuania have renewed direct discussions about opening the Polish-Lithuanian frontier and establishing diplomatic relations.

During the last summer the two dictators made efforts to reach an agreement, but negotiations were interrupted by the Russo-French proposal for an eastern peace pact which would have guaranteed Lithuania's present frontiers.

Poland Rejects Proposal.

Poland's rejection of this pact and Lithuania's quarrel with Germany concerning suppression of the Nazi movement in the Memel district changed the situation. Smetona now hopes to obtain Poland's support against Germany in exchange for signing a peace treaty.

"Pilsudski, who for several years has avoided spending the winter in Warsaw because of weakened health, this year rejected the advice of his physician to go south in order to await another opportunity to negotiate with Smetona," a member of the Polish government said. "Both the marshal and Smetona are seeking a formula which will enable Lithuania to open relations with Poland without abandoning its pretensions to Vilna. Negotiations have reached a hopeful stage and Pilsudski is optimistic of an early settlement."

The economic war which Germany has declared against Lithuania is having a disastrous effect upon this country's economic condition. According to Premier Tubelius, Lithuania's foreign trade has decreased 50 per cent since 1930.

Lithuania is disillusioned about the results of the Baltic union, since neither Latvia nor Estonia is willing to become involved in its quarrels with Poland and Germany.

Polish-French Showdown Due.

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 12.—Foreign Minister Josef Beck left tonight for Geneva to attend the league of nations' session. THE TRIBUNE was informed that the coming meeting between Beck and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France will mark a crisis in Franco-Polish relations.

Dictator Marshal Pilsudski said he is willing to join the Franco-Italian consultative pact, but he categorically rejected the French proposal to link this agreement with the proposed eastern Locarno pact.

RAIL LABOR DISREGARDS EASTMAN WARNING

The Railway Labor Executives' association, meeting at the Morrison hotel, announced yesterday that it will press its fight for the six hour day and other proposals to relieve unemployment despite a warning by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation. Seated (left to right): Otto S. Berger, director of labor relations; Mr. Eastman, and George M. Harrison, chairman of the conference. Rear: C. E. Hochstedler (left) and V. V. Boatner, members of co-ordinator's staf. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

RAIL UNIONS DEFY EASTMAN IN FIGHT FOR SIX HOUR DAY

Labor Sticks to Program in Face of Warning.

said, have been a great competitive blow to the railroads.

Profit a Prime Necessity.

Discussing the railroads' paramount need of establishing sound credit, Mr. Eastman said: "The conduct of railroads by private capital and private enterprise cannot be successful without profit, present or prospective. There is no possible escape from this solution, for profit is the cornerstone of the system. It will be necessary, therefore, for the railroads to earn a reasonable profit.

"The railroads are subject to rigorous federal regulation, whereas their competitors are so regulated to a lesser degree, or not at all. This situation should be cured, and I believe it will be. I am undertaking to develop all the available facts on this matter and they will be made public."

Mr. Eastman pointed out that such competitive innovations as the automobile, pipe line, or electric transmission line, trucks, buses, airplanes, and water carriers are here to stay because they provide a definite service the public demands.

Urges Fight For Business.

"The main answer to the railroad problem, I believe," asserted the speaker, "lies in the stimulation and regaining and creation of business by the adjustment of operations, service, equipment, and rates to present day conditions. It is a great mistake to assume that there is just so much transportation to be performed and no more.

"Give the American public quick, convenient, comfortable, and safe means of transportation at the right price and they will travel and move goods to a far greater extent than you may think possible.

"With credit, enterprise, and proper encouragement and help from government and labor the means of stimulating and increasing railroad business, in my judgment, are, or soon will be, at hand, and therein lies the greatest hope for railroad employment in the future."

Points to "Way Out."

It was in this connection that he cited the proposed six hour day and other "make work" measures of the labor program as examples of the injurious course labor is pursuing—injurious both to itself and to the industry, since separately neither can prosper.

"It seems perfectly clear to me," remarked Mr. Eastman, "that it is no time to add to railroad expense and that labor will suffer if this is done. The possibilities of consumption in this country have never been remotely approached, and I hope that we can find the way out by increasing consumption rather than by decreasing production.

"The six hour day, unless it is put in at the expense of labor, will add at least $400,000,000 annually to railroad expenses. The railroads cannot possibly stand that without harm, unless an equivalent burden is put at the same time upon their competitors; and I doubt whether they can stand it without harm even then unless a like burden is put upon all industry. The shortened work day, if it is anything, is a general issue. It cannot be applied to railroads alone without disaster."

Approves Pension System.

Although he disagreed with the recommendations of labor, Mr. Eastman asserted he was not unmindful of the severe hardships which befall those who lose their employment, particularly if they have devoted their life to one trade and know no others. In this respect he approved a sound pension system and suggested a "dismissal compensation" plan for discharged employés.

This calls for a scaling downward, according to age and length of service, of the remuneration paid to these employés, beginning at the age of 60. Details of this plan he said will be available in the near future.

In concluding his address Mr. Eastman touched on the vital question of government ownership of rails. In theory, he declared, he approved of government ownership, feeling sure that the evils of politics could be eliminated.

Sees Apparent Dangers.

"There are, however, some special dangers at the present time which I do fear," he asserted, "and I am unwilling to recommend such a plan unless it is sufficiently backed by a body of public opinion strong enough to afford effective protection against such dangers, and as yet I have seen no satisfactory evidence of such opinion."

It would be imperative that the government, under public ownership and operation make the railroads as nearly self-sustaining as possible, said Mr. Eastman. But this could be done by application of the same principles by which private capital itself can revive the ailing industry.

At present, should the government take over the railroads, Mr. Eastman asserted that the temptation would be great to use them almost solely to take up the slack of unemployment. In turn he pointed out this would saddle on the country a mounting deficit, which would ultimately have to be borne by the taxpayers.

At one point, the views of Mr. Eastman and the executive council of the association agreed. The burdensome debt, under which the entire industry is groaning, is due largely, they agreed, to the fault of the carriers themselves. But, asserted the labor executives:

"The principles announced in the address of the coördinator contemplate economies in the railroad industry at the expense of employment and purchasing power. If possible of application, they would result in increasing unemployment, reducing purchasing power, and transferring to the shoulders of railway employés the financial obligations of the carriers, for which the employés are in no wise responsible.

"We feel confident that public sentiment will condemn any program which contemplates increasing unemployment and suffering among any group of American citizenry for the sole purpose of protecting the financial structure of any industry, and certainly railway employés will not accept any such program."

STUDY PROPOSAL FOR 30 HR. WEEK IN REVISED NRA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—A proposal to make a thirty hour week mandatory in the new NRA for those industries lacking codes is being studied by the recovery administration's research and planning division.

Leon Henderson, division director, said today he had made no recommendation on the proposal, advanced by a subordinate, although he found it "interesting."

NRA observers expressed an opinion that such a measure could be turned into a powerful bargaining weapon for the government if written into the new NRA law.

ROBBED AFTER AUTO CRASH.

When Joseph Neiman ran out of his home and candy store at 2237 West 18th street yesterday morning after hearing an automobile crash into his truck parked in front of the store, he was robbed of $58 by the two youths whose car struck the truck.

Ptomaine Poison Kills Boy; Father Blames Relief Beef

Morris, Ill., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Henry Long, 12, died yesterday from ptomaine poisoning. His father at the inquest today stated that canned beef furnished by the government to families on relief was responsible for the boy's death. The mother of the boy is seriously ill with the same ailment. A coroner's jury postponed a verdict today until the other cans of meat are examined by a state chemist.

MIAMI INDORSES ONE-STOP PLANE SERVICE DEMAND

Cites Industry's Need for 7 Hour Schedule.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The city of Miami, Fla., officially joined Chicagoans and Atlantans yesterday in demanding a one-stop express schedule on the Chicago-Miami air route of Eastern Air Lines, Inc. Dr. George H. Bradford, director of the civic forum for Miami and that city's official representative in Chicago, spoke for the resort metropolis in protesting against "uneconomic stops" at Louisville and Jacksonville and urging airline officials to cut flying time from nine to seven hours.

Miami is now linked with Chicago and the middle west by what Dr. Bradford called "milk train service." It is essential, he said, if the airline is to receive the patronage it deserves, that either one-stop or non-stop service be offered. Miami is particularly desirous of speedier flight schedules, he explained, because of the requirements of big business.

Prospective Passengers Complain.

Every winter, Dr. Bradford pointed out thousands of leaders of the nation's industries gather in the Florida playground. For years these men have bewailed the poor transportation between the north central west and Florida. They hailed the advent of the new direct Chicago-Miami flying last Dec. 20, but already, he asserted, they are demanding a better type of service.

Eastern Air Line trafic officials here, according to Dr. Bradford explained that stops are now made at Louisville and Jacksonville only to deliver mail. He said a recent audit showed that tickets sold from those two cities averaged less than one a day.

All Seats Taken Early.

"The trafic managers here tell me that all seats are sold out on the one daily round trip at Miami, Atlanta, and Chicago," Dr. Bradford asserted. "The intermediate stops have brought practically no business to the airline, simply because it has been impossible to furnish seats."

He pointed out that equally good service for mail deliveries would result if the mail to Louisville and Jacksonville were carried exclusively by the Eastern Air Lines' night plane which now bears no passengers.

ASK ROOSEVELT TO CHANGE AIR MAIL CONTRACTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—A wide grounded revision of the present method of handling air and ocean mail contracts has been recommended to President Roosevelt.

From high official quarters word came that proposals had been brought forward to:

Change air mail contracts from a one to a two or three year basis with a new transportation commission to determine when rates should be changed.

Grant outright subsidies to ocean carriers instead of the present subventions through mail contracts, with the new commission to determine the basis and the amount of the subsidies.

The first proposal came from the postoffice department. It was tied in with a report of a transportation policy committee. The second came from an interdepartmental committee on ocean mail carrying policy and was linked with extensive hearings by the postoffice department.

SEIZES PURSE; PUSHES WOMAN ON TRACK; FLEES

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—After he had seized a woman's handbag containing $8, a thief pushed the owner of the bag, Mrs. Stella Gluckman, a 53 year old widow, on to the northbound tracks of the Independent subway system at 170th street and Grand concourse, the Bronx, today.

As she fell, Mrs. Gluckman struck her head against one of the rails, then lay unconscious on the track as the roar of an approaching train could be heard. The motorman of an empty train on the middle, or "lay-up" track, saw her plight.

With a yell he roused Joseph Quig, a changemaker at the station. Quig grabbed a red lantern, ran across the platform and leaped to the tracks. Waving the lantern, he ran south in the path of the onrushing train until he had to jump out of its way.

His signal, however, had been seen by the motorman, who brought the train to a stop 25 feet short of the point where Mrs. Gluckman still lay unconscious. She was lifted to the platform and revived.

REPORT LLOYD'S REJECTS QUINTS FOR INSURANCE

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Lloyd's of London, which underwrites everything from ocean liners to the weather, has refused to insure the Dionne quintuplets, it was reported here today.

The guardians of the famous infants were reported to have approached Lloyd's after turning down offers of several Canadian and United States companies to insure them for $100 each, the limit allowable under the insurance laws.

Attorney General A. W. Roebuck, however, has expressed himself as opposed to insurance for the children. If they live, Roebuck says, insurance will be of no use to them and if they die it will not be needed.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THERE IS STILL A FRONTIER.

Hal Foust, in New York for the automobile show, found that the exhibitors believe America is just entering the world of change, in which the automobile will be only one exhibit. He quotes a Philadelphian, J. W. Smith, as saying, "The greatest mistake I ever made was to buy a stone house that will last fifty years." If that was a mistake in old Philadelphia, consider what Mr. Smith would regard it in, say, Chicago. The seaboard cities, such as Charleston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and the New England towns, whether seaboard or not, reveal somewhat the effects of a law of primogeniture as compared with the newer cities of the interior.

The alarmist, who sees a tradition weakened only to regret it or to despair of the consequences, must view this life of change with a feeling not remote from horror. He sees in it a culture, if he would call it a culture, of the thistledown and not of the oak, and he prefers the oak. What durability, what strength, what patience, fortitude and endurance, he would ask, can a nation expect which builds year for year, which roots no affections, which regards its materia as evanescent and constantly finds its happiness in flight. To him the new age man would say that life seeks a fullness within its short span in quickness of appreciation of every benefit which ingenuity can devise for the widening of horizons.

The United States, for good or bad—the reasonable judgment seems to be for good—has been politically bent from the beginning away from rigid forms. They may produce a fine flower of culture, but the American mind from the earliest times has rejected the tradition. One bulwark of traditionalism is a caste society, and within that another bulwark is primogeniture. North of the Potomac, in colonial days, primogeniture got its speedy finish, although in Virginia it remained until Jefferson was able to abolish it. It may be that primogeniture, which entails an estate to the eldest son, works best when there is a great wilderness of frontiers. Then habit remains fixed in permanent place at home and the younger sons must adventure into far lands to seek change and new fortunes.

England thus expanded, with accelerated pace after it got the Bank of England and the funded debt which enabled the government to emit bills of credit and carry on its widespread operations by borrowing money instead of getting a direct gift of taxes for each occasion. New England went quickly to that ancient type of land ownership which in Kent had been known as gavelkind, a system of land holding and land inheritance which permitted equal division of estates. It was the ancient boast of Kent that no man there ever had been unfree.

Here, again, the frontier is a happy adjunct of land holding because there is a limit to which the ancestral estate can be divided and the sons of a growing family must take their muskets and their axes and adventure forth.

It is not impossible for the mildly venturesome American to pack up his movables and seek a change of scene and fortune, but we base our economy now upon the assumption that the frontier has gone. If so, it is merely the frontier of land. The spirit of adventure with new things has not left the American. He is still a rover who wears out that to which he has become accustomed and who wants the exhilaration of a changing life. Therefore he welcomes access to that frontier which is constantly open by the progress of science, invention, and technology. Change in his domicile, in his appliances, in his habits, in rebuilding, refitting, etc., give him the equivalent of what the buckskinned long rifleman sought when he pressed into the blue grass of Kentucky, what the homesteaders sought in the forests and on the plains, what sent men over the Oregon trail, and what scattered them all over continental United States.

In the Chicago World's Fair the American saw many of the outposts of these new frontiers. Even in adventurous society there will always be the people who would like a stone house which promises a few hundred years of standing on its foundations. There is enough traditionalism to gratify these people in their desires, but the probabilities are that American culture will take a swifter stride than that.

ESTABLISH AN AMERICAN TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE.

Two months ago, on Oct. 22, to be exact, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, through its editorial columns, held up a warning finger against an overenthusiastic welcome for foreign projects to establish air mail and passenger routes between Europe and the United States. The occasion was the announcement of Dr. Hugo Eckener that dirigible service between Long Island and Friedrichshafen would be inaugurated during the present year. The burden of our appeal is that other countries must not get the start over the water that they now have on the water.

American engineers are showing the world how to design and operate aircraft. Our aviation industry has studied and met every problem as it has presented itself. Europe buys our planes to examine their construction and then build the details into their own inferior machines. Shall the rewards go to the imitator rather than to the student, the inventor, the pioneer?

Our manufacturers of aircraft—land planes, amphibians and flying boats—say that they are ready to construct trans-Atlantic craft. Our Pan-American Airways is already flying nearly comparable distances with safety and on schedule on its routes over the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean sea. Our operators have the courage for the task, but can do nothing under their present month-to-month tenancy of a government air policy. A clear statement should be one of the first acts of congress. To waste time on Utopian schemes to revitalize other industries while holding aviation in leash would exhibit shortsightedness to the point of stupidity.

We well know what neglect and indifference have cost us in the development of our merchant marine. Foreigners carry the cream of our commerce. An air merchant marine may be of even more importance in the future. Germany has already established dirigible passenger service to South America, and the KLM—the Royal Dutch Air Lines—are pushing their scheme of plane service from Amsterdam to our sister continent via the Azores. Great things can be accomplished during the present season if congress can only be brought to see that such national subjects in which it can be undeniably helpful should have preference in its calendar over undertakings of a dubious or controversial nature.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will do its part and today adds to its Platform for America a new plank to read "Establish an American Trans-Atlantic Air Service."

ARMING THE AMERICAN SOLDIER.

The frightful antiquity of our military equipment disclosed in the chief of staf's recent report is due to the persistent backwardness of the ordnance department. This story is older than our weapons. Smokeless powder was in use a decade or more before the Spanish war, but our volunteer forces in Cuba and the Philippines were supplied with black powder. The Colt automatic revolver was in existence by 1898, but the army did not adopt it for nearly twenty years. The automatic rifle was in common use for ten years before the great war and should have been in the hands of our infantry in that ordeal. Indeed, some Guard units brought them over from the Mexican border, but that was exceptional. The Guard had also introduced machine guns to the army in the border mobilization, but there was inexcusable shortage of these essential weapons in the A. E. F., which had largely to rely upon an inferior French gun, although more effective types had been perfected by American inventors, and the German and British armies were splendidly equipped. Backward equipment was not confined, it is true, to America, for Holt was making endless tractor belts for ten years when Winston Churchill, though then secretary of the admiralty, forced them upon the British army.

So far as present conditions are concerned, our relative up to date equipment in aviation is because we get our airplanes from private companies, a circumstance that ought to mean something to the proponents of the plan to confine all our armament making to the government. Because we get our rifles from government arsenals and our one tank from the Rock Island arsenal, our army equipment is disgracefully near the obsolete. The price we shall pay in unnecessary losses in battle and dangerous ineffectiveness will be heavy, but what is that to senatorial inquisitors in league with organized pacifism?

Editorial of the Day

HAS KNOX LOST?

[Peoria Journal-Transcript.]

Sports writers and editorial commentators have had considerable sport in the past two years ridiculing Knox college about its football team which has lost 27 consecutive games. College authorities attribute the losing streak to the fact that for several years Knox has refused to go out and recruit or subsidize football players.

Despite protestations of high moral and ethical standards, many football coaches and college officials privately assert that some recruiting and subsidization of athletes is necessary. They point out that the alumni and student body want a winning team and that college officials who do not supply it soon find themselves in the breadline.

It may be, however, that the joke is on other colleges rather than on Knox. Let us examine the record from a purely commercialized viewpoint which is the motive behind commercialized college athletics.

Those who demand winning teams up to the point of purchasing them argue that if a college does not have a winning team it receives no publicity. Another argument is that a losing team reduces enrollment. Still a third argument is that a winning team promotes additional bequests and thus helps the cause of education.

In answer to the first argument, it may be said that Knox college got more publicity last year than any small college in the United States. Its name is known everywhere football is played and not only in jest, for deep in their hearts the people admire a team that keeps on fighting on a high ethical plane even against the odds of commercialized football.

This publicity brought hundreds of fans to central Illinois to watch a game team fight it out against stronger foes. That is good publicity.

In answer to the second argument, it may be said that the enrollment of Knox college increased while that of other colleges and universities which produced winning teams declined. Indications are that the enrollment will be even greater next fall.

As to bequests, Knox college's endowments continue to grow. It is, perhaps, in better financial condition than any school of its size in the country and has more scholarships and bursaries than many large universities.

In Knox's case the debunking of football seems to be good business.

AN OLD CONTRIBUTOR

[From Punch, London.]

Having suddenly realized that the centenary of a famous and most diverting American who was born in 1834 and in 1866 wrote a series of articles on London for Punch has not been commemorated in these pages, I am glad to be allowed to say something about him while the year still survives.

I refer to Charles Farrer Browne, better known as Artemus Ward, who, so far as I can gather, was the first American humorist really to make multitudes laugh and to gain a reputation on both sides of the Atlantic.

He had his predecessors in Seba Smith, who wrote "The Letters of Major Jack Downing"; in Benjamin Penhallow Shillaber, who wrote "The Life and Sayings of Mrs. Partington," and in George Henry Derby, who wrote under the name of "John Phœnix" and was the real father of American printed foolery; but Artemus Ward was the first to win universal fame and to be welcomed also in England, where in 1866 he lectured. Since then, the seed being theirs, many have grown the flower, but honor to pioneers always.

Artemus Ward began his career on the Cleveland Plaindealer in 1858, whereas his close rival, Josh Billings, although many years older—he was born in 1818 and lived on to the eighteen eighties—was not really known until the early sixties, while Mark Twain, who was born in 1835, a year after Artemus Ward, did not, with his celebrated frog, jump to fame until 1867 and then published under Artemus Ward's auspices. We must therefore, dealing with the great line of laughter makers, put Artemus Ward first.

To the inquiry, Why should American humor, hitherto more or less a private matter for home or saloon consumption, suddenly, in the late fifties and early sixties, become a public need? I have a suggestion to offer. May it not have been because of the influence of that great and unconquerable joker, Abraham Lincoln? America was, before his rise to eminence, as fond of humor as ever, but is it too fanciful to say that it was waiting for Old Abe to popularize and nationalize it? Old Abe liked to hear good stories and to tell good stories and invent apologues to drive home his political points, and as we are all imitative creatures every one else wanted to be funny, too. There had never been a jester in such a high place before and the fashion was set. Moreover, we are not only imitative: we like to gratify the great; and I have no doubt that every humorous writer in those days hoped that his efforts might catch Lincoln's eye. Lincoln, in the darkest hours of the war of north and south, was in the habit of reading Artemus Ward's articles to his cabinet, and for a while the rumor spread that it was actually he who disguised his identity under the name of Josh Billings.

According to one of the numerous biographies of Lincoln, Carl Sandburg's, he carried about with him a copy of Joe Miller which contained more than a thousand stories, most of which are still being told, and it was his habit, when on his legal journeys, to read it aloud to his companions. Many of the anecdotes were quite in his own manner, such as, for example, that of the traveler who said that he, alone, had made fifty wild Arabs run: "I ran and they ran after me." But, although Joe may have helped and stimulated, Lincoln was capable of joking unaided, and my argument is that this man on his way to be President of the United States, and later actually President, who kept a jest-book in his pocket and loved to create laughter and to share in it, was the cause of the sudden outburst of American humorous writing of which Artemus Ward and Josh Billings were the most articulate and most acceptable representatives.

Artemus Ward was the more original of the two, and also, because nonsense can be largely a trick, had more derivatives. But sagacity cannot be imitated: you have to have it. What, however, no one could reproduce was Artemus' radiance, which also is of the individual. In Mark Twain at his most absurd there is a touch of sternness, sometimes almost of ferocity; but Artemus Ward was all fun and sweet reasonableness and profoundest common sense, with an occasional barb that by its unexpectedness did the more damage. He gave himself additional reality by the assumption of the rôle of a traveling showman, with his wax figures and moral "snaiks," by his wife, Betsy Jane, and by the twins. These were very skilful dramatic touches beyond the capacity of the ordinary journalist or funny man. And he brought into literature a cheerful disrespect that it had not known before. Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad," in 1869, may be said to have registered the birth of irreverence; "Artemus Ward: His Book," in 1862, was the first to treat with irresistible familiarity such august figures as the President of the United States and the heir apparent to the English throne.

As an example of Artemus Ward's most ingratiating nonsense, that very rare article, I think the last sentences of his interview with the President may stand:

"How kin I ever repay you, Mr. Ward, for your kindness?" sed Old Abe, advancin and shakin me warmly by the hand. "How kin I ever repay you, sir?"

"By givin the whole country a good, sound administration. By poerin ile upon the troubled waturs, north and south. By pursooin a patriotic, firm, and just course, and then, if any state wants to secede, let 'em Sesesh!"

"How 'bout my cabinit, Mister Ward?" sed Abe.

"Fill it up with showmen, sir! Showmen is devoid of politics. They ain't got any principles! They know how to cater for the public. They know what the public wants, north and south. Showmen, sir, is honest men. Ef you doubt their literary ability, look at their posters and see small bills! Ef you want a cabinit as is a cabinit, fill it up with showmen, but don't call on me. The moral wax figger perfeshun musn't be permitted to go down while there's a drop of blood in these vains! A. Linkin, I wish you well! Ef Powers or Walcutt wus to pick out a model for a beautiful man I scacely think they'd sculp you; but ef you do the fair thing by your country, you'll make as putty a angel as any of us! A. Linkin, use judishusly and firmly the talents which nature has put into you, and all will be well! A. Linkin, adoo!"

He shook me cordyully by the hand—we exchanged picters, so we could gaze upon each other's liniments when far away from one another—he at the hellum of the ship of state, and I at the hellum of the show bizniss—admittance only 15 cents.

There is no fun, I can assure you, in writing an article on Artemus Ward, for the simple reason that I want to quote from every page and there is no room. No other humorist takes you so often by surprise and has such convulsing hair-pin bends, so to speak. "Dear Betsy, I write you this from Boston, the Modern Atkins, as it is denomynated, altho' I skurcely know what those air"—what can be said of a man with such a mind as that? And what can be said of the publishers of America who have let him go out of print?

In real life there was no Betsy Jane. Charles Farrer Browne died a bachelor and died at the age of only thirty-three: a too early death, but we must suppose that heaven, at that moment, was short of laughter. E. V. L.

CHILDREN AND SLEEP.

CHILDREN who are hungry, tired, or uncomfortable are nearly always fretful. One cannot relax or be happy when the energy reservoirs of the body have been exhausted. Children who are starved for sleep cause mothers to wonder why they are so nervous, jumpy, or disobedient. They have a tendency to play far beyond the limits of physical endurance; to keep going "on their nerves." We know what imitators children are, how they love monkeyshines, and many a mother mistakenly applauds the nervous antics of her child, thinking she sees in them signs of mental alertness and superiority.

The child must secure sleep—restful, undisturbed sleep, and plenty of it. During this period the body renews tissues, collects waste products, and gets them ready for elimination. Rapidly growing children need the most sleep. For example, infants require from 21 to 22 hours of sleep in each 24 hours; at 6 months the average sleep period should be 18 hours; at 1 year, 16 hours; from 2 to 5 years, 14 hours; between the ages of 13 and 15 years, from 10 to 12 hours; and after the age of 16, a minimum of 9 hours.

Unbroken sleep possesses the highest value. Even babies can be trained to sleep through the night without nursing, provided the last feeding is given about 10 p. m. This all night starvation cannot be practiced with newborn infants; most of them will require feeding some time in the middle of the night.

Going to bed should not be a punishment. It is the ceremony that tucks away tired little bodies for the rebuilding process. Many a child will tease and beg and coax to stay up. Sometimes this begging and coaxing is aided by well meaning but misguided friends who say, "Do let Freddie stay up just a little while longer." If the mother gives in, she is creating a precedent and establishing a bad habit. "To bed with the chickens" is a good rule.

Unless the youngster has heard too much about bogy men, goblins, and bugaboos, he will not be afraid of the dark. A low glow lamp that will not shine in the child's eyes will help.

For at least an hour before bedtime play should be quiet; without stimulation. A hilarious hour just before retiring may cause the child to lie awake, and much sleep time will be lost before nerves and muscles quiet down. Excitement is a sleep destroyer.

There is usually a reason if the child is restless after retiring. Sometimes the bed clothes are too heavy or the room is too warm. The sleeping room temperature during the winter months should be between 50 and 60 degrees F. Moreover, the sound of conversation and laughter and music from the radio must not penetrate to the child's room. Restlessness caused by an overfilled bladder can be remedied by restricting the amount of fluid taken during the evening. Other causes are overeating, illness, or excessive fatigue.

Most children sleep naturally and gain in weight and strength. If your child is thin or appears to be undernourished in spite of adequate food, more sleep may change the picture. Loss of sleep probably is the most important contributing factor to ill health. Sleep cannot be made up, and every lost hour of normal sleep means an added load on the organs of the body that throw off waste.

LOW GRADE INFECTION.

J. C. M. writes: If the urine tests O. K. but is full of short and long threads, is there something wrong?

REPLY.

These are probably mucus shreds. They occur as the result of a low grade inflammation that may be attended with no other symptoms in a portion of the urinary canal. When you were told that the urine was normal, this meant that no sugar or albumin was present.

CAN'T CONCENTRATE.

J. B. writes: I have been troubled for some time with an inability to concentrate. My physician seems to think it is from nerves, but I feel it is something beyond this.

REPLY.

There may be an insufficient flow of blood to the brain, caused by a narrowing or sclerosis of certain arteries. Again, you may be worried or disturbed by minor details, or you may be jumping too rapidly from one task to another. You can bring the body to its maximum efficiency [and this includes nerves] by good food, plenty of restful sleep, moderate exercise, and free elimination.

STOMACH ULCERS.

F. L. G. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of ulcers of the stomach?

2. Can they be cured?

REPLY.

1. Pain after eating, bleeding from the ulcer site, vomiting. There are many other symptoms, all associated with indigestion. Because eating brings on pain, many ulcer patients are able to eat but little food, hence they appear undernourished and anemic.

2. Stomach [peptic] ulcers can be treated medically and, in a high percentage of cases, can be cured. The treatment consists of special diet, frequent but small feedings, and the use of some substance to absorb or neutralize excessive acid in the stomach if it is present. Some ulcers fail to heal under medical treatment and require surgery.

PUT YOUR HAT ON.

G. B. writes: I have been told that going without a hat in the winter will bring later complications. In cold weather I sometimes cannot breathe with one nostril. Would this have anything to do with going without a hat? I am 14 years old.

REPLY.

Going without a hat is a fad with no common sense basis. It may do no harm. On the other hand cold drives blood out of the skin, with the result that congestion of the mucous membrane of the nose may follow.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State.—Irish poetry is deteriorating; Irish poets have lost their old-time facility and happiness of expression; they have not the same inspiration. These are some of the commentaries one hears these days.

As one old-timer put it recently, "the present-day poets think and write in italics; they are obsessed with the desire to produce something which is so obscure that none can understand what it means; sometimes with a pretense of rhyme but more often just merely words without rhyme and certainly without reason. Labeled poetry and printed in italics, that's all. Ireland is no longer the Land of Song."

Fred R. Higgins, Irish poet and member of the recently formed Irish Academy of Letters of which Yeats and Bernard Shaw are the leaders, is very scornful of the present tendencies of Irish poetry. In an interview he dubbed the efforts of the rising generation as "poetic hysterics." He doesn't think the Gaelic revival has done anything toward the creation of great poetry.

The poetry which emerged following the political weariness consequent on the downfall of Parnell and up to the Volunteer Insurrection of 1916, was imbued, he said, with romantic nationalism, maintained by turf fire enthusiasm. It threw a feminine glamor over cottage cults; but as the political firebrands flared up, the poetic rushlights faded out. Pure poetry, he contends, maintained its own independent fight, while Thomas MacDonagh emphasized new tendencies, compatible with the race spirit, in muscular metrics of dramatic intensity.

He deplored the decline of interest in cultural affairs since the establishment of a native government. Gaelic is now mainly a schoolroom subject. So far as he knew only two original Gaelic works of any consequence were recently published.

Higgins, while deprecating the phrase "Anglo-Irish" as an untrue application to those writers of Gaelic stock writing in English, sympathized with the young Irish poet of today as an author between two chasms.

One chasm was mainly due to the home situation, the lack of interest in pure poetry, and the appalling ignorance of many responsible leaders of our people in matters of art.

The second chasm before the young Irish poet is a European one. It is largely due to the fear of being considered out of date in matters of poetic craft and subject.

Higgins denounced the "insincere slickness" promoted by the "cultural racketeers." He added: "We are still fundamentally rooted in rural life." Not that the Irish poet must avoid experiment—no; but he must evolve his own technique in keeping with himself. His craft should be as personal as his handwriting. He cannot avoid the influences of tradition any more than he can avoid his memory. He must build upon it, grow above it, soar from off it while he lives in direct contact with the advances of his own age. Poetry soars; it does not crawl. Its symbol is Pegasus, and that is neither the jackass nor the hobby-horse."

MARRIAGE ABROAD.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—Can an American born girl of Italian parentage, who is spending a two year vacation in Italy, marry an Italian citizen and bring him back with her to the United States? M. C. B.

The American born girl and her husband, if they marry, should consult the nearest American consul and apply to him for the necessary documents upon which the husband may come to the United States. The alien husband of an American citizen woman may, under existing law, enter the United States outside the quota only if the marriage occurred prior to July 1, 1932. Otherwise the husband is entitled to preference status only.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Immigration and Naturalization, Chicago District.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A, who has two children, B and C, marries D. A dies and leaves his insurance and the major share of the business to D. D has never been appointed guardian of B and C. If D should now suddenly die do [1] B and C automatically inherit the entire business? 2. Can D will her share [and what would be her share] to party E? 3. If D dies leaving a will [both children are minors], what share can B and C acquire of the estate? 4. According to Illinois laws [business is located in Illinois], what share of business is D entitled to, assuming A owned the major part of it and left no will? 5. Are minors B and C entitled to a share of the business, and if so what per cent? C. H. D.

1. No. B and C are not relatives of D.
2. Yes.
3. Only what the will gives them.
4. The major share which you state was given to her by the will.
5. Not if the will provides otherwise.

PATENT RIGHTS.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the inventor of a new article. Funds being unavailable for patent application at present, a way is sought by which my rights as the inventor of the aforesaid article are protected. A friend tells me that if I have a manufacturer make some of these articles for me and I then sell them in interstate commerce [1] I will have established priority, which, he says, is better protection than any patent I can get. 2. If this is true [3] would the manufacturer who made the articles have any claims which would interfere with my claims as inventor? C. M.

1. Such sales would bar your rights by abandonment unless you prosecute the patent promptly.

2. You can improve your chances of proving priority by placing a dated and witnessed description and drawing out of your possession and control.

3. Conceivably he might claim to be the inventor and you might have difficulty in disproving his claim.

EXECUTOR'S RIGHTS.

Kankakee, Ill., Jan. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please let me know just what the executor of an estate can do when the will provides: 1. The executor can sell at private sale or at public auction all the real estate and to serve without bond. 2. Has the executor the right to give deed? 3. If heirs object to purchase price what can be done? E. D. W.

1. We doubt if this is the actual wording of the will.

2. It seems probable that he has the power.

3. Depends on the basis of your objection. If you claim that the sale is fraudulent you should report your facts to the probate judge. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A PROFITABLE WAR.

Sterling, Ill., Jan. 7.—The United States made a profit out of the Spanish-American war of $6,800,000,000, the revenue from which up to the present time amounts to $22,000,000,000, or a total profit of $28,000,000,000.

One of the results of that war was the discovery of the cause and cure of yellow fever and the hookworm disease, which has saved 200,000 lives a year in the United States, or 6,000,000 lives in the last thirty years.

The government has placed a value of $10,000 on a single life. At that rate 6,000,000 lives would be worth $60,000,000,000, and this added to the profits of the war makes $83,000,000,000. This sum, if divided among the survivors of the Spanish-American war, would give every veteran $440,000, which, invested in United States government bonds, would yield an income of $1,400 a month.

The world war cost 30,000,000 lives and $400,000,000,000 in money and property. In contradistinction to this, the result of the Spanish-American war was to save 30,000,000 lives and add $400,000,000,000 to the wealth of the world.

SPANISH-AMERICAN VETERAN.

THE LINCOLN LOG CABIN.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The picture of the Lincoln log cabin which appeared in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE is most interesting. The original photograph was taken by George O. Garnsey, a Chicago architect, now deceased, who occupied offices for many years in the Adams Express building at 115 South Dearborn street, and who was commissioned to transport the log cabin from its original site on Goose Nest Prairie to Chicago for exhibition at the Columbian Exposition in 1893. To insure the perfect reassembling of the cabin Mr. Garnsey photographed it before removing. Six prints were made and he had the photograph copyrighted. One hung for many years in his office; what became of the other five I never knew.

I was well acquainted with Mr. Garnsey and he lent me the one that hung in his office that I might make a drawing of it, and I have a perfect reproduction in crayon.

My crayon picture was in the exhibition of Lincoln souvenirs held some years ago at the Chicago Public Library under the supervision of Mrs. Jessie Palmer Weber [now deceased], librarian of the Illinois State Historical library and secretary of the Illinois Historical society, both of Springfield, Ill.

MILDRED SAMMONS.

THE SALES TAX.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—I note "Druggist's" remarks regarding the 2 per cent Illinois retail occupational tax and wish to inform him that this tax is not a sales tax, viz., a tax on sales, but is, as stated in the act, an occupational tax, viz., a tax on the occupation and is based on sales. It is a tax on the dealer and not on the consumer. The merchant has no more right to pass this tax on to the customer by adding it to the bill as a separate item than he would have to add real estate or personal property taxes. The merchant is not a collection agency for the state. This occupational tax should be considered as an expense of doing business, as are other taxes, rent, labor, advertising, etc. "Druggist" failed to mention that the United States treasury recognizes the fact that the tax is paid by the merchant, who is allowed to deduct the total taxes paid in his income tax return, while the customer is allowed no credit for these taxes if paid to the merchant. A. F. R.

A MADMAN AT THE WHEEL.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—An argument in favor of requiring the driver of an automobile to secure a license is found in the following incident:

On Sept. 4, 1934, a pedestrian, crossing with the green light, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile at 63d street and Ashland avenue. His leg was broken and he suffered other injuries. He was confined to a hospital two months and may be permanently handicapped.

The driver ran through a red light at an excessive speed and was arrested. After several continuances he was committed to the Elgin State hospital.

I was preparing to bring suit against him in behalf of the injured man. I have received a letter from the Elgin State hospital, from which I quote:

In reply to your letter concerning Mr. ——— we wish to inform you that he was admitted to the hospital Sept. 14, 1934. . . .

He has a history of having been in the Psycopathic hospital previously in 1930, and has also been a patient in three private institutions. . . .

He is diagnosed as a case of paranoid dementia præcox and the prognosis appears unfavorable. It is difficult to say how long it will be necessary to keep him at the hospital. . . .

Is it conceivable that such a man would be given a driver's license? Yet if he is released from the hospital what is to prevent him from driving an automobile again? CHARLES F. MCELROY.

ABOUT A FAST TRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Sara Moore Eastman deplores the fact that the railroad runs its fast train through her town at precisely the time their school is out. She does not stop to consider that if the train were scheduled to leave earlier it would still be going through some town along the way at the same time that school is out in that town. If it was scheduled to leave later the traveling public would not take it, but would wait for a night Pullman train rather than arrive in the Twin Cities at or after midnight. The "genius," as Sara Moore Eastman describes the person responsible for scheduling this train, in my mind spent a lot of time on this and beyond a doubt selected the best possible time for all concerned.

One more thing: Can Mrs. Eastman or any one else explain why a train traveling 80 miles per hour is any more dangerous than one traveling 60 or 65 miles per hour? An accident happening at either of these speeds would be just as serious.

Let's not criticize the railroads for trying to progress. It's about time they were making the attempt. J. T. J.

FINED.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—In this morning's paper we are again treated to the spectacle of a couple of public officials posing with a law violator who, having been fined $10 for violation of trafic laws, stands with an apparently inherited, self-satisfied smirk on his face as though he had done something which, like the depression, could be laughed off.

If we are not mistaken this is not the first offense.

With 36,000 killed in motor vehicle accidents and countless thousands injured, and the country at large clamoring for a reduction of these accidents, it's high time some of these young punks, regardless of who their fathers are, were allowed to laugh it off in a cell.

DEBT REFUNDING IS URGED TO EASE CITY TAX BURDEN

Citizens' Group Outlines Comprehensive Plan.

Finance of several Chicago taxing bodies are in a critical state due to waste and inefficiency of previous administrations. Details in Finance and Commerce section.

Details of a comprehensive bond refunding plan, which would enable the major local governments to lighten the enormous tax burden confronting Chicago and Cook county property owners in the six year period just commencing, were given out yesterday by the Chicago Committee on Public Expenditures. The plan is based on the studies of John O. Rees, director of the committee, who is an expert on public finance.

JOHN O. REES.

This committee, headed by Ernest R. Graham, the architect, is composed of leading citizens who for several years have been helping to solve public fiscal difficulties in the interest of taxpayers.

Total Bond Debt 518 Millions.

The plan proposed would level out the peaks of the total bond and interest debt of $518,416,322 which will fall due during the next twenty years. Thus the property owners, who must foot that bill, in addition to other governmental expenses, would need to pay only about $45,000,000 annually instead of $75,000,000 for the years 1935 to 1940 inclusive.

If the project does not go into operation fully—there lies ahead a gloomy prospect of increased taxes, increased tax collection resistance, and greater bond and interest defaults, the committee said.

On the basis of estimates, a total of about $450,000,000 in bond principal and interest is scheduled for payment by the local governments under the present setup of maturities during the next six years. This does not include operating expenses.

Billion in Taxes Coming.

The aggregate of all taxes staring property owners in the face for 1935-1940 is $1,050,000,000. Even this huge sum does not tell the whole story, because it does not include the expenses of a myriad smaller taxing agencies in the county.

The committee's statement points out the need for expedition in putting the proposed refunding plan into effect. Legislation, it said, should be passed within the next few months at the regular session of the general assembly, and the plan should go into operation by Aug. 1. Drafts of a final bill for presentation to the legislature are now being studied by Henry Cutler of the law firm of Chapman & Cutler, municipal security experts.

If the refunding plan is not operating by Aug. 1, the committee said, there will be increases in the 1934 tax rates ranging from $1 to $1.50 for each $100 of assessed valuation, or a 20 per cent increase over the 1933 rates.

What Refunding Plan Is.

The main provisions of the proposed refunding plan are these:

1. Outstanding bonds of the local governments, in default or not, maturing in the years 1935 to 1954, would be exchanged for twenty year bonds, and at the rate of interest which the original bonds bear. Exchanges would be put into effect when owners of a substantial proportion of the bonds agreed to them.

2. An annual tax would be levied for an amount equal to twice the interest requirements to insure interest payments, allow for loss and cost in tax collection, and provide a residue to be applied on the bond principal.

3. All refunding bonds issued for defaulting bonds would be callable at any interest date, and all other bonds would be callable at the maturity date of the original bonds, for which they were given in exchange. Thus the bonds could be retired as fast as money is available, removing the possibility of having revenue lie idle while interest costs pile up, especially should tax collections improve.

$30,000,000 in Default.

The county, forest preserve, sanitary district and old west park district now have $30,000,000 of bond principal and interest in default. The city, school board and old Lincoln park district have so far avoided defaults by the authorized issuance of refunding bonds, in some cases at higher interest rates.

The existing "piece meal" refunding legislation was criticized by the committee as not adequate in some cases and unsound in others. None of the major local governments can refund bonds falling due in the future except the West park district. And the latter, even though now a part of the consolidated Chicago park district, cannot carry out its refunding plan without an adjustment of future annual tax levies as regards its existing obligations, the committee said.

Both the city and the school board can continue their present refunding operations temporarily, but eventually it would be desirable for them to come within the proposed comprehensive plan, the committee believes.

"An examination of the tax collection experience in recent years indicates the impossibility of any major local government meeting bonded debts and interest as scheduled," said the statement. "There is little doubt that large increased debt levies would stir up added tax resistance.

"With present tax collection prospects, there will still result continuous and increasing defaults with the present schedule of maturities in the next few years.

"It would appear to be out of the question to consider further bond issues for any purpose until the annual tax load is rearranged, until the existing defaults are cleared up.

"As the debt and tax collection picture now stands, any further bond issues will be obviously an exceedingly precarious investment."

TAX PENALTIES TO BE IMPOSED AFTER TUESDAY

There will be no further extension of the 1933 tax penalty date after Jan. 15, County Treasurer Sweitzer said yesterday as he warned taxpayers to pay their current tax bills by Tuesday or incur the full penalty of one per cent a month.

During the last week the treasurer's office collected a total of $14,964,877 in current and delinquent taxes. Current real estate and personal property tax collections for the week amounted to $13,312,706, making a total of $30,745,432 taken in thus far in current taxes.

Tax collections last week follow:

1928......	$ 41,034	1931....$	384,678
1929......	124,513	1932....	667,307
1930......	434,541	1933....	13,312,706

The treasurer explained that although the original penalty deadline for the payment of 1933 taxes was Jan. 1, the additional 15 days' grace was allowed to give ample time to taxpayers who received their tax bills after Dec. 30.

BLAME INSANITY FOR SUICIDE.

A coroner's jury returned yesterday a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in the case of Mrs. Lillian Solomon, 49 years old, 1309 North Oakley avenue, who hanged herself Friday in the Magnus institute, 2720 Prairie avenue, where she had been confined since Dec. 30.

GOVERNING UNITS FAVOR REPORTS TO TAXPAYERS

Heads of All Major Local Bodies Back Plan.

Heads of all the major local governments yesterday had indorsed the proposal that the governments make monthly or quarterly financial reports, prepared in a simple and understandable manner, so the taxpayers may know how tax revenues are spent.

"I think it will be a good thing not only for the taxpayers but for the officials as well," said President Clayton F. Smith of the county board. "Monthly statements of our income and expenditures should warn us if certain departments are spending too fast, information which we can't afford to wait for until annual reports come in at the end of the year. I believe that if we can show the citizens of Cook county how we are spending their money and what they are getting for it they will be more willing to pay taxes.

Stresses Cost of Interest.

"When they see how much of our present revenue is eaten up by interest payments they may be a little more cautious than they have been in the past about calling for bond issues."

Mayor Kelly and City Controler Upham both indorsed the plan yesterday. Mr. Upham said that he will instruct the auditors in his department to start preparation of some trial statements at once.

President McCahey of the board of education, which in expenditures and number of employés ranks next to the city, also indorsed the fiscal report proposal yesterday.

Indorsed by Woodhull.

President Woodhull of the sanitary district gave the plan his approval several days ago, and ordered the district's first statements, which will be issued on a quarterly basis, prepared as quickly as possible.

Although the Chicago park district has been in active operation only since last October, at which time it faced a condition of chaos in the accounts of many of the 22 park districts which were consolidated to form it, the district's accounting department has already restored order and it will be able to render reports, said Robert J. Dunham, president of the district.

GAS, OIL MEN PLAN TO JOIN GARAGE STRIKE

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Complete tie up of motorized transportation threatened the Twin Cities tonight. Filling station operators were planning to join the garagemen's strike in which seven men were shot during the last week.

Minneapolis filling station operators have scheduled a strike vote Monday night. St. Paul operators are being organized and also may walk out.

Drawing the filling station operators into the strike is planned as a master stroke by union leaders to focus public opinion and force settlements. Filling station men are protesting that pending contracts would force them to discharge helpers and contribute to unemployment.

Meanwhile, the year's first blizzard raged through the Twin Cities, quieting fears of new outbreaks in the strike of 2,000 garage mechanics and repairmen. Their ranks would be swelled to 2,600 if filling station men struck. Negotiations in the garage strike were almost at a standstill.

The general public has been affected but little. Irritations were increasing tonight as many motorists tugged at snowed-in automobiles, and then plunged through the blizzard to a street car line.

HINES HOSPITAL PRESSES FIGHT AGAINST CANCER

$100,000 Radium 'Bomb' Added to Equipment.

Seven years ago the state American Legion convention at Waukegan voted to obtain and lend to the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital at Hines, Ill., a small quantity of radium to be used in the treatment of war veterans afflicted with cancer. The machine procurred was a small one. It contained two milligrams of radium, but it was a start.

Tomorrow, coincident with the holding of the annual cancer clinic at the hospital, Col. Hugh Scott, the manager, and his staf will display to the visiting doctors, leaders in the fight against the disease, a new machine known as a radium "bomb." The bomb contains two grams of radium valued at $100,000.

Chicago a Leader in Work.

In the world there are only twelve major cancer clinics. Six are in the United States. The opening of the Hines radium room places two first rate clinics in Chicago, the other being at Michael Reese hospital.

At Reese there are two radium bombs, one containing four grams of the element and the other two grams. The radium at Michael Reese hospital is valued at $300,000. Thus $400,000 worth of radium is concentrated in Chicago for the treatment of cancer patients.

The other major cancer clinics in the United States are in New York, Buffalo, and Baltimore. There are two in New York and one in each of the other cities, but the Baltimore clinic is not operating at present.

Tells Growth of Clinic.

"Before the establishment of the cancer clinic at Hines in 1928, the United States veterans' administration purchased nongovernmental cancer treatment at $50 a case," said Col. Scott yesterday.

"Today cancer patients from all over the United States and its possessions are hospitalized at Hines for treatment. Of 28,008 hospital admissions from Jan. 1, 1931, to Jan. 1, 1935, 4,556, or 16.27 per cent, were tumor cases."

The Hines clinic is headed by Dr. John W. Turner, assisted by Dr. A. E. Williams, chief radiologist. The clinic is used as a model by the American College of Surgeons to assist in organizing others. Among its consultants is Dr. Max Cutler of Michael Reese hospital, a leader in cancer research and treatment. Cancer specialists from all parts of the United States and the world, including Australia, Japan, England, France and Italy, have visited Hines hospital to study its clinic.

Early Treatment Essential.

"We try to educate the physician as well as the layman to the dangers of this disease," said Col. Scott. "We do not like to frighten people, but the only way to cure cancer is to catch it in its incipient stages. A competent medical examination of any suspicious ache or pain may save a patient's life later."

Cancer is recognized by medical men as the second largest cause of death. Every twelfth person who dies, Dr. Scott pointed out, dies of cancer. Among women more than 45 years old the rate is one in seven.

It was estimated after the world war that the future would develop approximately 250,000 veterans' applications for cancer treatment out of a probable figure of 400,000 cases among veterans.

The program at Hines hospital's annual cancer clinic tomorrow will include talks by Ralph F. Greer, senior clinical photographer, and by Dr. Cutler. Others reading papers will be Dr. Aristid Von Grosse, professor in the department of chemistry at the University of Chicago; Dr. Charles M. Griffith, medical director of the Veterans' administration, Washington, and Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, associate professor of medicine at the University of Minnesota, an associate at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn.

The radium "bombs" at Hines and Michael Reese hospitals are of special construction. A balanced arm, which for want of a better name is termed "cannon" by the hospital authorities, carries the radium in one end and a counterweight in the other. The balance is so delicate that the slightest pressure allows the radium to be put to any position on a patient's body.

SPANISH INFANTA JOINS REHERSAL FOR HER WEDDING

Tries Gown for Last Time; Marriage Tomorrow.

ROME, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A gown of ivory satin combining regal splendor worthy of a king's daughter with the simplicity of a modern girl was tried on today by the Infanta Beatriz, eldest daughter of former King Alfonso of Spain, for the last time before her wedding Monday with Prince Alessandro Torlonia of Italian nobility.

The princess, who is anticipating an American honeymoon, joined the entire wedding ensemble in a rehersal preparatory to the wedding.

Train 7 Yards Long.

The gown, made by Mme. Bellier of the Maison Rosine in Paris—dressmaker to the royal family for many years—is of exquisite material with a train nearly seven yards long, richly trimmed with a broad band of ermine.

It is cut in the broad, full lines of a court dress, yet it manages to enhance the princess' youthful slimness. The majesty of the gown will be offset by a simple diadem of orange blossoms brought fresh from Valencia, and a veil of tulle.

The regal train will be borne by two little flower girls clothed in red. They will be Joanna Bagno, daughter of the old Spanish royalist house, and Tacolata Chigi, a cousin of Prince Alessandro.

The bride's two witnesses will be her brother, Don Jaine, and her uncle, Don Carlos, who was the witness of the marriage of her father to the granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria of England, Beatriz's mother.

Spaniards continued today to give most generously to the wedding of the daughter of the king they drove into exile. One of the princess' attendants said more than $14,000 had been received through popular subscription in Spain for a household linen service.

Injured Ex-Club Steward, Is in Critical Condition

John Saracino, 49 years old, former steward in New York and Chicago clubs, who fired on a policeman when the officer served a disorderly conduct warant on him ten days ago in his home at 4011 West Jackson boulevard, was reported in a serious condition in Mother Cabrini hospital yesterday. Saracino is suffering from bruises and internal injuries which police say were self-inflicted, but Saracino's family has demanded an investigation. Saracino was held for psychopathic examination after the shooting. The warant was sworn out for alleged disorderly conduct after he left the employ of the Medinah club.

NAZIS SENTENCE SUITOR TO JAIL FOR LOVE LETTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Heinrich Rothe of Jessen today was sentenced to three months in jail by a court at Halle because of a love letter he wrote to a girl, according to the Berliner Tageblatt.

In the letter Rothe explained that he was a former member of the forbidden association of "earnest students of the Bible," and that now he was a "witness of Jehovah," which he thought would make him specially desirable as a suitor. He said he hoped the girl was also a member of this fraternity.

The court ruled that this was incitement to join a forbidden association.

MORO STUDENTS GO ON WARPATH; BEAT UP TEACHER

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Nineteen Moro students at Willart Strait Agricultural school, near Jolo, ran amuck today, cowed their teachers, tortured one, and rampaged through the school, dispatches to the newspaper La Banguardia said today.

Order was restored by police armed with shotguns. Juan Mercado, 23 year old Filipino teacher and the object of the student riot, was unconscious when officers arrived. The school's chief patron, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer of New York, now is at Jolo.

Reported to have been incensed by Mercado's scolding, the temperamental Moros went on the warpath through the school building after much the same fashion as their fathers frequently do in Jolo jungles. After order was restored they threatened to walk out unless Mercado was removed. The authorities are reported to have agreed to dismiss him. Provincial Governor James R. Fugate went into conference over the situation with American and Filipino officials.

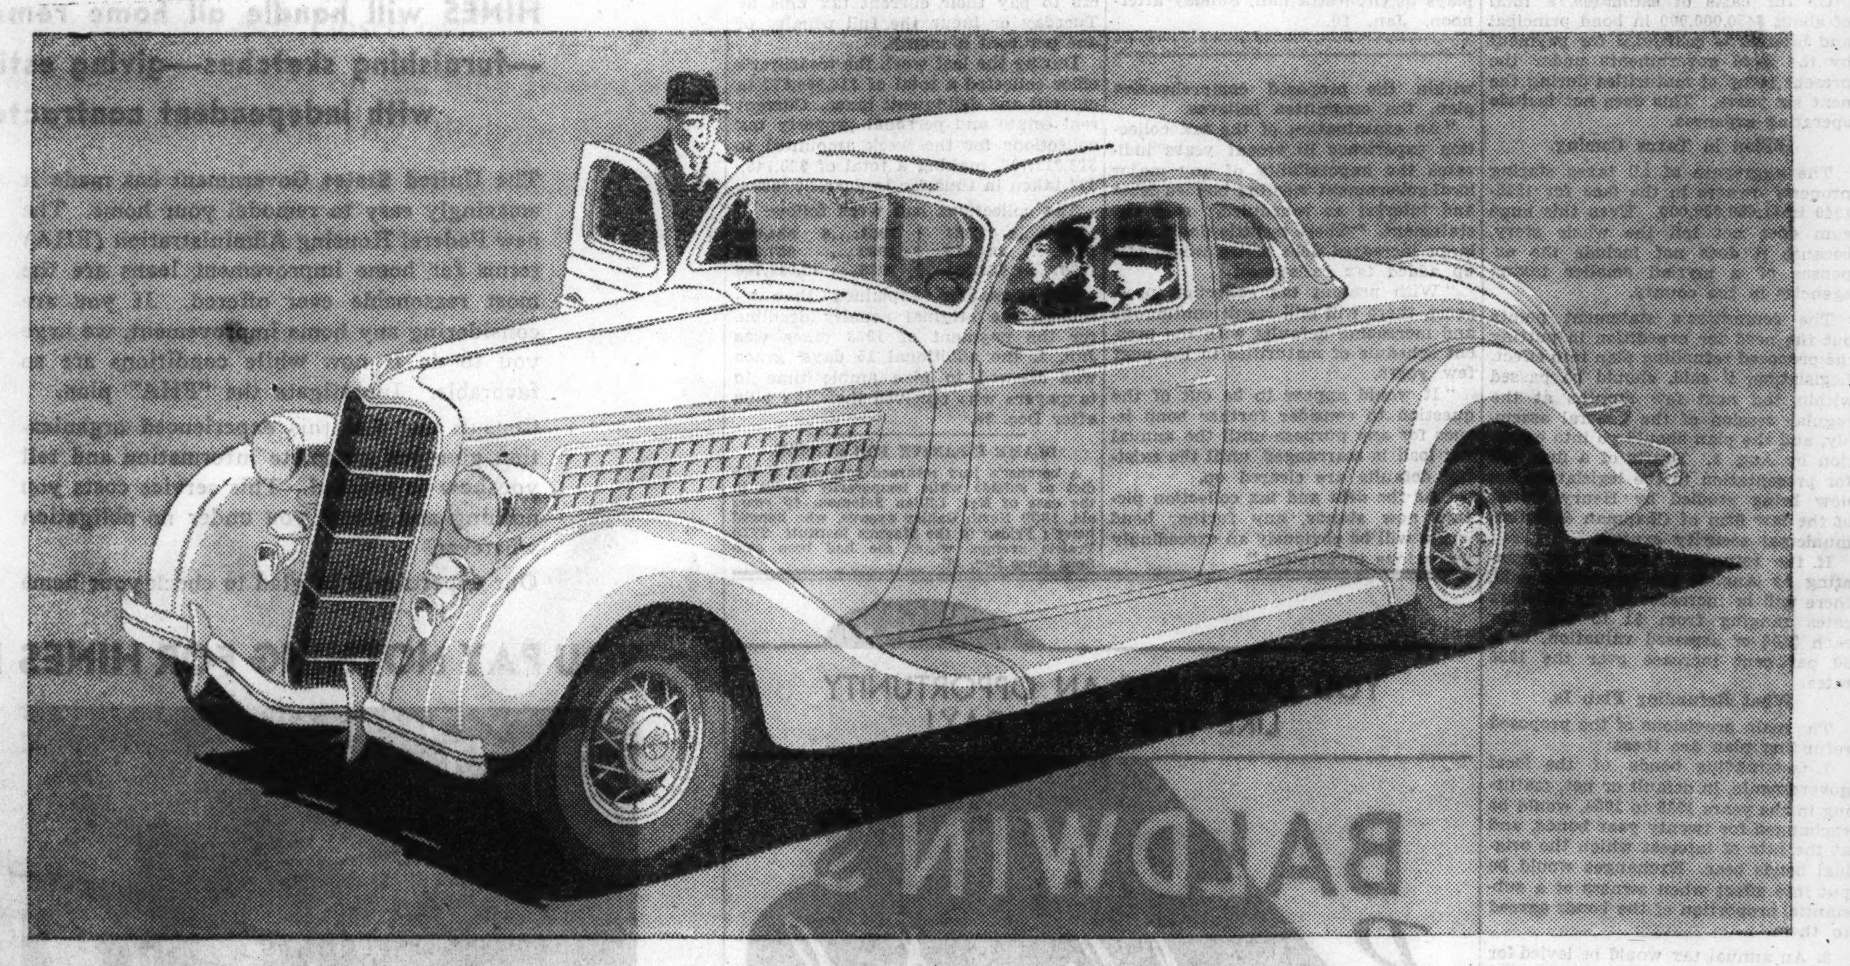
The New Ford V·8 for 1935

A New Kind of Motor Car—Designed for Easy Riding



NEW SEAT POSITION
NEW WEIGHT DISTRIBUTION
New Longer, More Flexible Springs

In the New Ford V-8 for 1935, all the weight of car and passengers is correctly balanced and distributed. Seats are moved forward so that passengers on the rear seat ride nearer the center of the car. This, with new spring suspension, and longer and more flexible springs, gives new smoothness, ease and riding comfort on any kind of road.

For 1935, Ford has taken another revolutionary step forward. To the proved performance of the famous Ford V-8 engine has been added remarkable riding comfort. And the entire car has been clothed with a new and modern beauty, both inside and out.

The illustration on this page shows the distinctive modern lines of the New Ford V-8 for 1935. When you see the car in the showrooms or on the road you notice at once its larger size as well as its handsome appearance. It is longer, with more body room, more leg room and more baggage room. It is lower to the ground—easier to step in and out. The front seats are as much as 5½ inches wider in some body types. The curved gear shift lever gives additional front-seat comfort.

NEW, LONGER SPRINGS OF UNUSUAL FLEXIBILITY

The springing of the New Ford V-8 for 1935 is entirely new. The springbase of the car (the distance from the front to the rear spring) is 123 inches, or eleven inches longer than the wheelbase. This has been accomplished by mounting the front spring in front of the front axle and the back spring in back of the rear axle. This design gives you increased comfort without sacrificing ease of handling.

Front and rear springs are longer and more flexible, with tapered leaves for the most effective spring action and quieter operation.

NEW FEATURES FOR SAFETY, COMFORT AND EASE OF HANDLING

See the New Ford V-8 at the showrooms of Ford dealers. They have many interesting things to tell you and show you about its outstanding V-8 performance and comfort, luxurious new upholstery and appointments, improved, quiet-stopping brakes, new easy-pressure clutch, easier steering, new rigid X-type frame, Clear-Vision Ventilation and the many other features of the car. All Ford V-8 cars for 1935 are equipped throughout with Safety Glass, at no additional cost. All have welded all-steel bodies.

YOU TRAVEL UNDER A ROOF OF SOLID STEEL

—in the new

"TURRET TOP"* FISHER BODY

*Registered

Featured on all OLDSMOBILE closed car models for 1935

THE New "TURRET TOP"
This is the way the new Fisher "Turret Top" looks—a single seamless sheet of tough drawn steel, steel reinforced with steel like a battleship turret—better-looking, stronger, safe with the safety of solid steel

The giant press (at the right) had to be specially designed to make possible the new type safety roof. It is one of several that were built for Fisher and are the only presses of their kind in the world. Four stories high this huge press is used to draw and shape the tough steel into the new "Turret Top" under pressures as high as 750 tons

THERE is something satisfyingly NEW in automobile bodies now, something hugely important to every intending buyer of a new closed car.

You can see it for yourself on the 1935 Oldsmobiles—it's the new solid steel "Turret Top" Body by Fisher.

At first glance you will want it for its beauty, because it puts a fresh allure into the sweep and contour of the closed car roof.

But far more important than this, it puts over your head a protection hitherto missing in all closed cars.

The strongest structure designed by man to withstand outside shock—the turret of the modern battleship. Wholly of steel, arched and crowned for strength, it affords utmost protection to the men who serve the guns, and is the highest development of the principles utilized by Fisher in the new solid steel "Turret Top" for closed cars

This protection is a roof of seamless-drawn steel, steel braced with steel, like the battleship turret from which it takes its name!

As the largest manufacturers of automobile bodies in the world, we have been working for years to design and perfect this difficult construction.

It was far from a simple job, requiring not only the drawing and forming of unprecedentedly large sheets of tough metal, but the designing even of the huge presses to handle the steel.

Which explains why—despite all you have been enthusiastically told of "all-steel" protection—no one has successfully built a steel-roofed automobile body until now.

If you want the most complete protection which steel can give you in an automobile, the new "Turret Top" Body by Fisher meets your desires.

Even the solid steel roof is supported by steel-roof-bows and is welded to the other steel body panels.

There is no rumble, drum, or rattle—and the safety "Turret Top" is scientifically insulated against heat and cold as well as against sound.

Finally, the outstanding beauty of Body by Fisher is notably enhanced by the smooth, flowing, uninterrupted arch of the roof.

When you examine Body by Fisher for 1935 you'll find other notable advantages—Fisher No Draft Ventilation, of course, and full streamlining, windstream V-type windshield, wider seats, more headroom, bigger doors, more roominess and other improvements.

And you'll find the solid steel Fisher "Turret Top," now featured on the 1935 Oldsmobiles, just as you will find Body by Fisher, only on General Motors cars.

FARMERS REJECT PRICE SET BY U. S. FOR CREAM MILK

Act as Figure Is Fixed at $1.09 a Hundred.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

The Pure Milk association, coöperative bargaining agency for 18,000 member dairy farmers, promptly refused to accept the farm price of $1.09 a hundred pounds for class 2 milk [used for cream] delivered to the city in December after the price announcement was made yesterday afternoon by Frank Baker, federal market administrator for the Chicago sales area.

FRANK BAKER.

Mr. Baker's announcement of last month's farm milk prices, made on a new basis adopted on Dec. 2, said that the average price on milk delivered to Chicago dealers during December was $1.70 a hundred [3.63 cents a quart]. This includes a price of $2 a hundred [4.30 cents a quart] on class 1 milk, which is the milk sold in fluid form to Chicago consumers. The average price of all classes of milk in November was $1.65 a hundred pounds [3.54 cents a quart].

Association Explains Stand.

L. D. Oranger, market manager of the Pure Milk association, said that the organization refused to accept the administrator's announced price on class 2 or cream milk because it actually would be less than the price on the "surplus milk," that is, the milk which is sold on the general market for processing. This disparity, he explained, is due to a check off of 9 cents a hundred on class 2 milk, compared with a check off of only 4 cents a hundred on surplus milk.

Dairy farmers delivered 121,579,272 pounds of milk to Chicago in December. Of this amount 23,610,386 fell in class 2, which is involved in the controversy.

Ask Increase Here.

Last Friday farmers and distributors of the Chicago area agreed on a request which they sent to the department of agriculture in Washington asking for an increase in the farm price of milk. In his price announcement yesterday Mr. Baker predicted that this plea, if granted, would improve conditions.

STOCKYARDS 'L' TO RESUME FULL SERVICE JAN. 16

Full service on the stockyards branch of the "L" will be resumed Wednesday with 166 trains at 6 minute intervals to be operated daily. The branch has been reconstructed since the fire of May 19, Bernard J. Fallon, executive officer for the receivers of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, announced yesterday.

The trains will again circle the Packingtown loop and will make five stops within the stockyards, at the Exchange, Racine avenue, Swift's, Packers' avenue, and Armour's, according to Bernard J. Fallon. A stop will also be made at the Halsted street station adjoining the main entrance to the stockyards.

The schedule of 166 trains daily will not be maintained on Saturday and Sunday, but will be regulated to meet the needs of the passengers on those days, Mr. Fallon said.

Special service trains leaving Jackson park terminal at 7:49 a. m., 42d place on the Kenwood branch at 8:05 a. m., and Swift's and Armour's at 4:35 p. m. will be operated. All stockyards branch trains will directly connect with loop trains at Indiana avenue.

SISTER OF MERCY EDUCATOR MARKS 86TH BIRTHDAY

Sister Mary Isabel O'Brien, believed to be the sole surviving member of the Catholic Order of Sisters of Mercy who went through the Chicago fire of 1871, celebrated her 86th birthday yesterday at Mercy hospital.

Recovering from a slight heart attack, Sister Mary Isabel told friends of her memories of the fire. She was an instructor at the old St. Xavier academy at that time situated at Wabash avenue and Madison street.

With other members of the order she went to a private residence at 34th street and Cottage Grove avenue which had escaped the flames and helped in the reorganization of the school with which she was connected until her retirement two years ago. Sister Mary Isabel was born in Burlington, Vt., on Jan. 12, 1849. She is known as a leading educator in the Sisters of Mercy.

Weekly Review of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Rain Delays Hunt.

January 12, 1935.

LAST week will go down on the farm calendar as the "boot and mud week" of January because the mild weather, fog, and rain swept away the snow and converted frozen ground into mud around the barnyards. All the boys had to don their rubber boots to do chores and to work in the fields putting up fences.

The weather disappointed not only the boys on the experimental farm, but also many of the neighbors, because it caused the postponement of an old fashioned coon hunt. A good bunch of coon hounds was straining at the leash ready to romp through the heavy timber. All the farm-neighbors around here were counting on an exciting evening, and then came fog and rain which made it impossible to conduct the hunt.

As Clarence said yesterday when we discussed plans for either a fox hunt or coon hunt next week [depending on the weather], it has been many years since they have had a "regular old round up of a hunt" in the valley, so everybody was looking forward to watching the hounds work and the sociability of the occasion. However, the coon and fox hounds are still waiting the call, and with the proper break in the weather, there will be a hunt this week. A light snow and weather that isn't too cold is the order to the weather man to produce suitable conditions for the hunt.

The farm marketed 44 of the Hereford steers last week. [Details of this sale will be described tomorrow by Frank Ridgway, agricultural editor of THE TRIBUNE.] Taking 44 to market meant a lot of work for everybody here on the farm, because first came the selection and cutting out of the animals from the herd of 117 and then the arduous work of trucking the 44 to Chicago in foggy, rainy weather. Included in the shipment was our old favorite of the herd, the white face with the single horn. He was in such good condition that he went along with the picked bunch.

Although driving conditions [by night] were extremely difficult on account of the fog, the five trucks delivered the steers to the stockyards without trouble and also made the return trip without any serious difficulty, but when the machines wheeled into the yard they bogged down in the barnyard. The boys had to get the big tractors to pull the trucks out of the soft, thawed ground.

The farm now is down to the bottom 30 feet of silage in the towering 80 foot silo, and how Herman, Eddie, and Charley do mutter under their breath when they try to fork the silage out these days in order to distribute it to the stock. The feed is packed so tightly that it is all the boys can do to get their forks into it. The worst of it is, the deeper they go the more concretelike it is going to be.

I counted 7 pheasants in the buckwheat field near the lower woods the other day when Louis and I were cruising around to see if we could find any fox tracks. Four of the gaudy ringnecks were perched right on top of the shocks, and how they were wading into the wheat. South of the road we were surprised to flush three mourning doves which are staying on the farm this winter. Again it was buckwheat left in the fields for the birds that made it possible for us to see these doves.

They were digging into the shocks for the wheat and weed seeds. On the auxiliary farm at Wheaton a hen pheasant came into the poultry yard shortly after sundown last night and panicked the turkeys by calmly walking up to the feeding places and helping herself. The turkeys had gone into their favorite tree to roost when this pheasant crashed the poultry yard. The way they squawked and gobbled at the rinkneck brought Rawlings out of the house on the run with the idea that possibly a dog was invading the place.

KERNER SEEKS UTILITIES-SALES TAX SUIT REVIEW

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Attorney General Otto Kerner today asked the Supreme court to review the case in which it held the sales tax does not apply to water, gas, and electricity sold by utilities.

In petitioning the Supreme court to reverse its recent decision, the attorney general claimed the court had failed to decide the one point at issue—"Are utilities which supply water, gas, and electricity to consumers engaged in the business of selling tangible personal property at retail?"

The petition contended any decision which does not settle that issue leaves the sole question in the case undetermined.

Convicted Impersonator Trips Up on His Old Habit

William Franklin Jones, 29 years old, of the Maplewood hotel, Clark and Maple streets, was released from Leavenworth federal penitentiary, where he had been sent for impersonating a government officer, on Nov. 24. He was arrested last night by Sergts. Edward Hayes, John McDonough and Henry Jaeger for returning to his old habits. George Pappas, owner of a fruit market at 2612 Lawrence avenue, complained that Jones had tried to obtain $20 from him on a promise to get citizenship papers for Mrs. Pappas. The policemen hid in the fruit store and seized Jones when he went there to collect.

TRANSLATE 4,000 YEAR OLD SIGN WRITING BY KING

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Translations of sign writing 4,000 years old, telling of lyrical tributes ancient Sumerian kings living in southern Babylonia paid to their goddesses, have been made for the first time, it was announced tonight by the Semitic museum of Harvard university.

This writing, antedating even cuneiform writing, appears on a brick, an agate charm and a clay cone, which recently was purchased by the museum, and which will be placed on display there.

These objects, said Dr. Robert H. Pfeiffer, curator of the museum, who made the translations, were excavated from the ruins of the Sumerian city now known as Tello.

The most interesting of the inscriptions is that on the clay cone, on which Libit-Ishtar, king of Isin, reigning about 2150 B. C., recorded for posterity his social reforms and the construction of a temple of justice. This reads in part, as translated:

"Of Ininni, [a Goddess] am I.
When justice
In Sumer and Akkad
I had established
In the market place,
In its permanent site
For the Goddess Ininni
The Temple of Justice
I built."

AUTHORESS WILL TALK HERE.

Dr. Margaret Mead, assistant curator of ethnology of the American Museum of Natural History and author of several anthropological books, will lecture at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the Masonic temple, 32 West Randolph street, on primitive education.

Snub Pollard, Comic, Weds Concert Pianist

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Snub Pollard, veteran comic of the screen, was married tonight to Ruth Bridges, concert pianist. The marriage culminated a romance that began when Pollard heard Miss Bridges in a recital in Chicago. The informal ceremony occurred at the home of Rev. Stewart MacLennan with only four friends of the bride as witnesses.

Threaten 2 in Delicatessen, Rob Owner of $370 in Cash

Two armed men yesterday held up William Koenig in his delicatessen store at 4101 Fillmore street, a block from the Fillmore police station, and escaped with $370 in cash. The bandits forced Koenig and Miss Mary Austin, a clerk living at 3503 West Monroe street, to face the wall while they took the money which Koenig had just brought from a bank.

Responsible medical care at low cost

The United Medical Service is giving to Chicago its first and only fixed fee, low cost, responsible medical and dental service available to all; a service which many private, charitable and philanthropic organizations, including leaders of the medical and dental professions, have for many years considered necessary to public welfare . . . yet have been unable to provide.

ADEQUATE medical care is of paramount importance to individuals and to society yet it has been denied to more than one-half of our population. This is due to the increasing costs which have accompanied the advances made by medicine in the knowledge, treatment and prevention of disease.

For the past twenty years or more leaders in organized charity, philanthropy and public health have been striving without success to find a solution to this problem of the high cost of medical care. One group called "The Committee on the Cost of Medical Care" composed of prominent medical men and lay individuals and financed by philanthropic funds, spent five years of investigation and study at a cost of almost $1,000,000 without reaching an agreement as to the proper solution of this tragic problem.

The seriousness of this condition has been recognized by our National Government, and largely based upon the studies made by "The Committee on the Cost of Medical Care," the Government is at present endeavoring to evolve a plan that will make medical care available to all. Plans proposed thus far are based upon some voluntary or compulsory form of health insurance, partially subsidized by taxes levied upon industry and the public for this purpose.

While these various investigations were being made during these many years, Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz, a Chicago physician, with the support of a group of prominent lay individuals organized, as far back as February 1920, a successful low cost medical effort, and was providing medical care to thousands of afflicted persons in one of the most expensive specialties at fixed low fees.

Inspired by his success a large group of responsible physicians decided to apply the same economic principles of organization and group practice to all fields of medicine, and under the leadership of Dr. Berkowitz, without the aid of any charity, philanthropy or tax-supported organizations, they organized UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE; leased four floors in one of Chicago's finest office buildings at 23 East Jackson Boulevard; installed the newest available X-ray, medical laboratory and other scientific equipment; carefully selected a staff of experienced and well-trained physicians, surgeons and dentists, and on January 18, 1933 made available to the public for the first time, all of the values that lie in medicine at a fraction of their former cost. This determined and courageous attack on the high cost of medical care, though bitterly opposed by the so-called leaders in organized medicine, was immediately accepted by the public.

In the two years that UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE has been in operation almost 50,000 persons have been examined, and 270,000 treatments given. Over 3,000 physicians and dentists in private practice referred approximately 10,000 patients for X-ray, medical laboratory tests and other diagnostic services.

Hospitalization and surgical care were provided for more than 2,000 patients, and over 500 mothers have been delivered, and babies cared for in the obstetrical department since this branch of the service was inaugurated. Surgical care was rendered to over 1300 patients.

The medical and dental staff has increased from 20 to 40 members and the non-medical personnel has increased from 15 to 57. Floor space and other facilities have been increased; an entire new floor being added in September 1934 for the Dental, Eye, and Optical Departments alone.

Beginning with an original fund of $35,000, approximately $700,000 has been spent in providing this low cost medical service to the public which represents a saving of $2,000,000 or more over average charges for similar services elsewhere.

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is essentially an organization of physicians operated by physicians of recognized standing and ability; many of whom have contributed articles to medical literature. They gave up positions on the staffs of prominent hospitals, teaching institutions and private practices in support of this effort to reduce the high cost of medical care. These physicians personally render all medical services.

United Medical Service requires five complete floors of this conveniently located modern office building to accommodate all of its diagnostic and treatment facilities. Low costs are possible because of the close association of all the professions such as Medicine, Dentistry, Optometry, Pharmacy, Clinical Laboratory, X-ray, Hospital and all other associated activities under one administration.

FATAL MALARIA SPREAD TRACED TO DOPE NEEDLE

Raid Hotel and Seize 14 After Five Deaths.

An incipient malaria epidemic among Chicago dope users, in which the disease was transmitted by use of a hypodermic needle instead of by the bites of mosquitos, was halted yesterday when police raided the Denorde hotel, 506 North Clark street, and arrested 14 suspected narcotics addicts. Two of the men were potential malaria carriers.

Suspicion of attendants at the county hospital had been aroused by the unseasonal deaths there in recent weeks of five malaria victims, three men and two women. Examination of the bodies disclosed that the wrists of all bore the marks left by use of a hypodermic needle.

Carried Usually by Mosquito.

Malaria is commonly transmitted only by the female of the anopheles mosquito which takes blood from a victim of the disease, and, in attacking a healthy person, injects into the blood stream some of the malarial parasites. The disease, it is said, can be transmitted only by direct introduction of the malaria parasites into the blood stream.

In the case of the victims who died at the county hospital, a hypodermic needle passed around a circle of addicts performed the same function as the mosquito's proboscis. Medical literature contains previous instances of similar epidemics among dope users, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical association, said yesterday. New York addicts suffered such an epidemic about 18 months ago.

Hotel Raid Ordered.

Two of the men who died of malaria in the county hospital had lived at the Denorde hotel. When this was reported to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, he arranged with Lieut. William Cusack of the police narcotics squad to have the hotel raided.

The raiders took possession of the hotel shortly after midnight yesterday and waited until 5 a. m. During that time they arrested fourteen men. Two of them, Walter Erlandson, 50 years old, and Robert Carroll, 44 years old, said that they had had attacks of malaria several years ago.

The parasites might still be active in their blood stream, even though they show no present symptoms of the disease, health department physicians said.

They were subjected to blood tests yesterday, of which the findings will not be known for several days.

Erlandson and Carroll, with five others, confessed that they were narcotics users, and had been in the habit of meeting in the room of one of the group and passing the same dope-loaded syringe about.

JEWS SEEK U. S. AID IN GETTING A NATION OF OWN

Want Immigration Bars in Palestine Lifted.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A campaign in the United States for support of Jewish immigration into Palestine and the establishment of a Jewish national state there will be inaugurated shortly by Vladimir Jabotinsky, president of the World Union of Zionist Revision.

Jabotinsky will leave Cherbourg Thursday for the United States, where he will seek the support of American Jewry for his world petition to the British mandatory government to facilitate this immigration. Zionist revisionists claim that immigration is the only hope for Jews who now are being persecuted in the countries of central Europe.

Wants a "New Deal."

To make immigration into Palestine practicable for Jews, Jabotinsky said, a change in governmental policy must be effected. Immigration bars must be let down and the economic problems of Jews dealt with.

"A new deal for Palestine is necessary because the whole face of Zionism has radically changed," the famous Zionist said. "It is still a national enterprise backed by much idealism, but it now has the added support of several million individual Jews who must personally go to Palestine or perish."

Has 600,000 Signatures.

Jabotinsky explained that Jewish contentions for changes are based on the fact that while Jews represent only 22 per cent of the population in Palestine, they account for 60 per cent of the government's taxation revenue.

So far 600,000 signatures have been obtained to a world-wide petition to enlist aid from Britain in making government changes in Palestine.

TREASON CHARGE FLUNG AT CLERGY IN MEXICAN CLASH

Two Slain as Church Members Fight Police.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A charge that Catholic clergy "deliberatly inciting the people to acts of sedition" planned last night's outbreak in suburban Tacubaya, in which two persons were fatally injured and seven others wounded, was flung into Mexico's turbulent religious controversy today.

The newspaper El Nacional, which supports the government, made the charge. It said five persons were killed in the fighting. Three bodies, the newspaper said, were in hospitals and two were carried off secretly.

Deney Fatalities.

Hospitals and police, however, vigorously denied the reports, also emanating from residents of the district, that the disorder resulted in more than two fatalities.

Five persons suffered bullet wounds. Four were hit by stones. A policeman and three firemen were among the casualties.

The fighting between townspeople and police broke out after the arrest of a Catholic priest accused of holding religious services without a permit.

Worshippers attempted to go to the priest's aid, precipitating the conflict. Most eye witnesses confirmed the official version that the crowd was the aggressor. Officials said 100 or more would have been killed had the police turned their guns on the rioters.

100 Questioned.

With order restored in the Tacubaya district, police were patroling the vicinity of the church. More than 100 men and women, taken into custody after the battle, were being questioned.

At Coyoacan last month, five Catholics were shot to death as they emerged from worship. Subsequently headquarters of the Red Shirt organization, sworn enemy of the church, was attacked and five students were seriously injured. Twenty-two received minor injuries.

The Catholic church has opposed the revolutionary government's progrant of compulsory Socialistic education for school children, and strong repressive measures directed at the church followed.

CALLES REPORTED IMPROVING; HE GOES FOR SHORT AUTO RIDE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The condition of Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, "strong man" of Mexico, is improving, it was announced today by Dr. Verne C. Hunt, attending Calles with two Mexican colleagues.

Calles is in St. Vincent's hospital with a gall bladder disorder. He was brought here two days ago from his home in Culiacan, Sinaloa, Mexico. He went for a short automobile ride today.

"As long as he continues to gain strength," Dr. Hunt said, "we shall wait until he is in the best possible condition before we operate. There is no emergency, although the diagnosis has determined there must be an operation."

SUSPECT 2 IN FOWL MURDERS; SQUAWKERS DIE

Falls Church, Va., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Ten fuzzy black and tan suspects of the same breed were put in a line-up in an effort today by dog authorities to solve the community's "fowl" murder mystery.

Two tail-waggers were picked as probable slayers of fourteen costly game cocks that died squawking.

Three hundred citizens saw S. Herbert Payne, farmer, walk down the canine line and pick "Buster" and "Pal" as the killers.

Buster's master, six year old Hewitt Covington, tear-fully and loudly declared his dog's innocence.

Eight year old Jimmie and his three year old brother, Sam P. Grubb Jr., stoutly pleaded non participation by "Pal."

Guilt or innocence is to be decided Monday, when Game Warden W. Harry Johnson reports to County Judge Ben Hedrick, who ordered the canine lineup.

SENATORS TALK MUNITIONS QUIZ FUND FILIBUSTER

Committee Asks $100,000 to Continue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The first filibuster of the new session of congress was threatened today by members of the senate committee investigating the munitions traffic. The group determined to block all other legislation until they obtain an appropriation of $100,000 to carry on their inquiry.

As the first step in the potential filibuster, Senator Gerald P. Nye, [Radical, N. D.] announced he will take the floor Monday to point out the need for the additional appropriation and the revelations that may be expected from continuance of the investigation. Other committee members plan to hold the floor in debate almost continuously until the further appropriation is voted to their committee.

Suspect Blocking Plan.

Committee members suspect the administration of an attempt to block further examination of the activities of munitions makers. This suspicion arose yesterday as the President conferred with Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of a special committee appointed to draft legislation to "take the profits out of war."

After the conference, Mr. Baruch said he had reported findings of himself and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, deposed NRA chief. He indicated the committee will shortly transmit its recommendations to the President and they will shortly reach congress in the form of a message.

The senate committee interpreted the Baruch conference as a move on the part of the President to end the investigation by the submission of a legislative program regulating manufacture and sale of munitions. Committee members declared they will prevent any action on the impending presidential recommendations until their inquiry is completed.

See Months of Inquiry.

Members of the committee estimated that they would be occupied for several months in their investigation if the appropriation is granted. They plan to complete their study of war and peace time activities of American munitions, ship building, and steel industries in relation to foreign munition rings.

"We are going to pound ahead and keep our subject squarely before the senate day in and day out, until we get our resolution approved," said Senator Arthur P. Vandenburg [Rep., Mich.]. "Each day I fear debate will get more acrimonious."

Members of the committee virtually began a filibuster at the last session of the senate when two of their membership, Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.] and James P. Pope [Dem., Idaho] spoke for more than three hours in behalf of the resolution.

Nye Confident of Victory.

Senator Nye was confident that the administration will yield to the committee, possibly before the proposed filibuster gets under way. At any length, he said, he believes the demand will be granted after the filibuster gets under way.

FLAMES PERIL HISTORIC LONDON SKINNER'S HALL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Skinner's hall, one of the landmarks of London, was damaged by fire and water today. General alarms were sent out because the historic building is situated in the danger zone of the city of London, but firemen were able to keep the flames from spreading.

The fire started in scaffolding on the roof where part of the roof and ceiling had been removed for repairs because deathwatch beetles had eaten away the old woodwork. Some old timbers caught fire after short circuits occurred.

Skinner's hall was destroyed in the great fire in 1666, rebuilt immediately afterward and restored in 1891.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Martha Scott, 100 year old resident of Milford, Ill., maintains a tract of virgin timber to supply her home with fuel because she does not like coal. Disdaining all the modern luxuries, she sticks to the woodburning stoves. Mrs. Scott celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary last Monday.

Mrs. Dorothy Miller Strong, socially prominent in Chicago, arrived at Reno, Nev., yesterday to establish residence and secure a divorce from her husband on the grounds of incompatibility. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Franklin M. Miller, of 1500 Lake Shore drive. Mr. Miller, the bride's father, said last night that after his daughter is granted a divorce she and her mother plan to sail for Europe. Bruce Willis Strong, a resident of the Oak Park Arms hotel, is in the automobile business. The Strongs were married in 1925 at St. Chrysostom's church.

RUSSIAN RAILWAY WRECKS LAID TO RACES FOR BONUS

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A mounting toll of train wrecks in Russia brought the startling newspaper declaration today that Russian locomotive engineers are playing a sort of "game," running past closed semaphores seeking to earn premiums for being on schedule time.

There have been two serious train wrecks this month, with twenty-nine persons killed any many injured. Investigations determined both these wrecks were brought about by disregard of signals.

The Leningrad correspondent of Izvestia said that during 1934 there were sixty-three cases reported of engineers on the line between Leningrad and Moscow passing closed semaphores. The correspondent said this practice has become a sort of game in which trainmen gamble on making a good record for time in disregard of the danger of accident.

CUBA CHARGES EX-ENVOY TO U. S. STOLE $50,000

HAVANA, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Special Judge José Soublette of the national court of sanctions today indicted Orestes Ferrara, secretary of state under former President Machado, on charges of misappropriating $50,000 of government funds.

The judge ordered Ferrara, who is now in the United States, held without bail, if he is arrested, and extradited. The government plans to ask the United States to extradite him.

The former secretary of state, who also served as Cuban ambassador to Washington, was accused of misappropriating funds set aside by the National Institute for the Stabilization of Sugar for the purpose of advertising Cuban sugar in the United States and other foreign countries.

2 New York Policewomen Muss Up Man Pickpocket

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Two patrolwomen who believe in taking their commissioner literally warned a pickpocket suspect they would "muss him up" if he did not come quietly, and then carried out their warning by virtually dragging him half a mile to a station house, it was revealed at the lineup at police headquarters today. Both the policewomen, Lillian Burck and Martha Mirsberger, are considerably taller and heavier than their prisoner, who later said he was Frank Madeo.

Wife Divorces Applegate, Texas Racehorse Owner

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday granted a default divorce to Mrs. Ann Applegate of the Oak Park Arms hotel, Oak Park, from Clark L. [Red] Applegate of Fort Worth, Tex., a race horse owner. They were married in 1926. Mrs. Applegate charged cruelty.

IDENTIFIED AS ROBBER.

Michael Conteducca, 23 years old, 2224 Erie street, was identified yesterday as one of the three robbers who held up the station agent of the Western avenue station of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad last June and robbed the safe of $91.12. Conteducca was arrested Friday night.

JOHNSON OPENS BATTLE ON U. S. IN WORLD COURT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Opening the battle against American entrance into the world court, Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] tonight asserted adherence would be because of a "maudlin" spirit of "internationalism to muddle and meddle in world political affairs that admittedly has no concern for us."

In a formal statement issued in advance of senate consideration of the ratification resolution next week, the veteran senator assailed the court for permitting "politics" to enter its judicial rulings and said American accession would be "but a prelude to joining the league of nations."

"What a pity," he said, "that we must turn for even the briefest period from the trials of our own people to trials in a foreign moribund league of nations and, if its proponents are right, its futile court.

Reservation Is Repudiated.

"Becoming a part of the court officially is the first false step in the complete abrogation of the foreign policy from which our republic never has deviated."

Johnson said a hint of this abrogation may be seen in the action of the senate foreign relations committee in repudiating the reservation of 1926 to prevent this country from internal political situations in foreign states and to guard against relinquishment of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions.

This reservation was offered in committee by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] and was rejected 11 to 9. Johnson said it would be reoffered on the floor.

Idle and Futile Action.

"We oppose as vigorously as we can such a new and startling American doctrine," he said. "We ought not to join this league of nations court because if it is merely what our proponents insist, our entry would be an idle and futile action.

"We have at hand in the Hague tribunal the mode of settling every existing controversy we may have. If behind this court are sanctions of the league of nations, and high authorities to assert joining the court does not mean the promotion of peace, but may involve us in war.

"We have no controversy with any foreign nation that we cannot settle by arbitration. We have no international problem we desire to be passed upon by foreign judges.

"Peace, it is asserted, is brought nearer by the court and by our accession. The present state of the world answers this plea. The conditions existing in Europe, volcanic as they are, make this the most unpropitious of all times for our republic to join in controversy there, or to be a part in their decision.

"All the high promises that were held out for the league of nations in 1919 and 1920 have utterly failed. With the treaty of Versailles over Europe like a sinister cloud, those promises of league advocates could not be, and never will be redeemed. The old diplomacy is the order of the day across the sea."

FIND METHYLENE BLUE INJECTIONS BENEFIT LEPERS

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Highly beneficial results have been obtained in the leper colony of Orofara, Tahiti, with the use of methylene blue injections, says a medical report in the Journal Official of the French Establishments in Oceania. So encouraging have been the effects of the treatment for one month upon ten subjects that all of the 122 lepers in the colony have demanded the same treatment.

Dr. Dias, medical captain in charge of the station, said that in all cases treated there had been definite amelioration, disappearance of pain due to degenerating tissues, and subsidence of leprous lesions with ulcers in process of cicatrization.

While it is impossible to say yet that definite and permanent cures will be effected, Dr. Dias stated there is a possibility of transforming very rapidly a contagious leper into one of the noncontagious type.

FINANCIAL LAWS CURB AUTO TOLL, ANALYSIS SHOWS

Death Increase Smallest in Protected States.

BY HAL FOUST.

States with financial responsibility laws, such as proposed for enactment by the current Illinois legislature, are not suffering as much from the nation-wide increase in automobile fatalities as are states without such statutes, it is revealed in a survey just completed by the American Automobile association. Under these laws the driver's license of a person found guilty of recklessness in a civil suit for damages is rescinded until after the judgment has been paid and an insurance policy issued to protect the public against any future recklessness of the defendant.

10 Months' Accidents Analyzed.

The automobile association, in an analysis just completed of trafic accidents for the first ten months of 1934, found that in the twenty-one states having financial responsibility laws there was an 11 per cent increase in trafic deaths as compared with the same months of the previous year. In the states with out such laws, the increase was 23 per cent. The increase for the country as a whole was 16 per cent.

Eight states reported a decrease in the motor toll for these ten months. Seven of these states have a financial responsibility law. They are Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and South Dakota. The one state without such a statute that reported a lower accident toll was West Virginia.

Called Proof of Law's Value.

"This is further evidence of the efficacy of the financial responsibility law," said Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club and for the Illinois conference on highway safety legislation. "The statistics should prove an incentive for the Illinois legislature to pass such a bill."

Sponsors of the legislation point out that the law rules from the streets and highways recklessness borne of judgment immunity. At the same time it does not penalize the careful motorist financially unable to carry insurance. Unlike compulsory insurance, it does not require an automobile owner to purchase a liability policy until after he had been proved negligent in a damage suit.

DISTRIBUTION OF SAFETY PLEDGES GETS UNDER WAY

Large scale distribution of pledges in Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe campaign was started yesterday under the supervision of Barnet Hodes, general manager of the drive. The pledges are being distributed through safety councils organized by service clubs and industrial plants and through various district safety councils being organized under the Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Children will be enlisted in the campaign, and pledges will be sent to all pupils in the public schools, Mr. Hodes said. Both motorists and pedestrians may sign the pledges, in which they promise to drive safely and to avoid "jay walking." Windshield stickers will be sent to motorists coöperating in the drive, and safety pledge buttons will be forwarded to children and pedestrian signers.

A district safety council meeting will be held for the Rogers Park area Wednesday night at 1716 Lunt avenue, Mr. Hodes announced.

CITE HARLEM AV. ACCIDENTS; ASK BETTER LIGHTS

Because of the large number of automobile accidents along Harlem avenue north of North avenue, residents of the northwest side have sent requests to Mayor Kelly and the village officials of Elmwood Park that the thoroughfare be better lighted. Nearly half a mile of the west side of the street is under the jurisdiction of the village. It was estimated that more than 100 accidents have occurred along the street during the last year. The crossing at Harlem and Diversey avenues was pointed out as being extra hazardous because of the poor lighting there.

War Figure Dies

GOTTLIEB VON JAGOW.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The death of Gottlieb von Jagow, who at the outbreak of the world war conducted Germany's foreign affairs under Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, was announced today. He was 71 years old and had retired in 1916.

Von Jagow once was blamed by Kaiser Wilhelm for responsibility for the war. The German government's policy, said the ex-kaiser in 1918, was conducted by Von Jagow and Bethman-Hollweg alone during the last weeks before the outbreak of hostilities.

Von Jagow entered the German diplomatic service in 1895 and after having been Prussian minister at Munich, German ambassador at Rome and German minister at The Hague, was appointed German foreign secretary in 1913.

Preceding the outbreak of the war he was concerned in particular with German relations with Austria. He was the first member of the imperial government in Berlin to become acquainted with the terms of the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia.

DETECTIVE FINDS PAIR TAMPERING WITH HIS AUTO

Detective Frank Kehoe, assigned to the Des Plaines street station, attended services last evening at Holy Family Roman Catholic church, 1086 Roosevelt road. When he left the church, he found two men sitting in his automobile, attempting to solve three trick locks with which he had equipped it.

Drawing his revolver, he ordered the men out, and found that each of them was armed. One of the pair, Saul Gonzales, 20 years old, 1114 South Halsted street, carried a .45 caliber automatic pistol apparently stolen from the United States army. The other prisoner was Luis Aleman, 20 years old, 1722 Roosevelt road. Gonzales and Aleman admitted, according to Detective Kehoe, that they had intended to steal his automobile and go on a holdup tour.

Aleman told police that he is a relief "client" and has been working recently as a special trafic guide for school children at Sacramento and Fifth avenues, under supervision of the Warren avenue police.

COURTNEY ASKS FURTHER CUT IN AUTO INSURANCE

Committee Agrees Fewer Thefts Warants Slash.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 22; recovered, 19; stripped, 2 [from police records for the 24 hours ending at midnight Friday].

Further reductions in automobile theft insurance rates were asked yesterday by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney in a conference with a subcommittee of the western advisory committee of the National Automobile Underwriters' association. The committee agreed that the reduction in automobile thefts did justify a lowering of insurance costs and is to report back to the state's attorney before March 1.

Mr. Courtney said he felt certain the reduction would be ordered. Last May 1 he obtained a 26 per cent reduction from the automobile insurance companies and he said the results of his campaign against automobile thieves should result in a much greater saving to car owners.

Cut from 97 to 33.

In 1931 and 1932 the average was 97 cars stolen daily, and when recovered 27 were stripped of all accessories. Mr. Courtney asserted the daily average now is 33 cars stolen and 3 stripped.

"The committee said it is awaiting an actuarial report of the loss experience during the past year of 157 companies represented by the committee," Mr. Courtney said.

"Insurance rates are based on the loss experience of the previous year and the outlook for the coming year. We have cut thefts more than 60 per cent and they have reduced rates 26 per cent. I gave assurance that our crusade would continue and told them the benefits must be passed on to the public."

Insurance Men Hear Plea.

The committee members were E. A. Henne, vice president of the Continental Insurance company; John C. Harding, manager of the Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance company; George H. Bell, manager of the National Fire Insurance company; A. F. Powrie, manager of the Fire association, and S. M. Buck, manager of the Fireman's Insurance company.

Mr. Courtney said he also expected a reduction in fire insurance rates. Except for the stockyards fire the losses in Chicago in the past year through fire were far less than in previous years, he said, and the breaking up of a number of arson rings helped to make this record. He has brought about twenty-two consecutive convictions in arson trials, resulting in the sentencing of fifty-four defendants involved in fires set to defraud insurance companies.

Mr. Pyne was a veteran precinct captain in the Twenty-ninth ward and for many years worked in Democratic headquarters. At the time of his death he was a deputy clerk of the Municipal court, a job he had held for three years. He died Thursday in the Garfield Park hospital, where he had gone for an examination after being ill for some time. He is survived by his widow.

DRIVES AUTO ON RAILROAD TRACK; STRUCK; MAY DIE

Driving his automobile up the tracks of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad as a short cut home, Edward Lang, 38 years old, Du Page county deputy sherif, living on the outskirts of West Chicago, was struck by a train early yesterday, receiving injuries which may cost his life.

Lang had been at a wake for his aunt, Mrs. William Kreklau, in West Chicago, and had left there about 2 a. m. On reaching Prince Crossing he decided to take the short cut up the right of way for about two blocks, then turn on the next street to his home.

He had progressed about a block along the tracks when his engine stalled. Lang got out, opened the hood and was tinkering with the mechanism when a train bore down on the auto and demolished it. Lang was taken to the Geneva hospital, suffering a fractured skull, several broken ribs and numerous cuts and bruises.

Two auto fatalities brought the 1935 Cook county toll to 22. The victims:

Mrs. Annabelle Messersmith, 32 years old, 1632 South Cicero avenue. Died in Berwyn hospital last night of injuries incurred Jan. 9 when she was struck at 50th avenue and Cermak road, Cicero, by an automobile driven by Joseph Gembera, 2510 South Whipple street. Mrs. Messersmith's daughters, Mareline, 5, and Darling, 7, were slightly injured in the accident. Gembera, who was released on a $2,000 real estate bond after the accident, has been ordered to appear at the inquest.

Violet Onisk, 9 years old, 1628 West 21st place. Died in the County hospital last night of injuries suffered several hours earlier when she was struck by an automobile at 21st street and Ashland avenue. Witnesses told the police that the child darted out from a safety island and ran against the car. The driver, Thomas Oshinski, 3011 North Ashland avenue, was not held.

The Spreckels family has had a large part in California development history. The founder of the family, Claus Spreckels I., came here in 1856. Claus, who died today, is survived, in addition to the widow, by four children.

WARNING TO TRIBUNE READERS ABOUT "B. O."

ONE of the most common mistakes made among men and women is the belief that "white collar" people are never guilty of "B.O." (body odor). It is often assumed that only manual workers, or those who are active physically, can be victims of body odor.

But this belief is decidedly untrue. For any doctor will tell you that everyone—regardless of the work he does—perspires at least a quart a day, even during the Winter—when the perspiration may be invisible.

The guilty rarely know the truth

The tragedy of "B.O." is the fact that the first one to offend is usually the last one to know. That is why it is possible for so many people, men and women, to offend unknowingly.

Millions of men and women now know that it is needless to take chances when there is a soap like Lifebuoy. For Lifebuoy's purifying, deodorizing lather ends "B.O." quickly—protects you against offending.

Wonderful for complexions, too

Lifebuoy's bland, abundant lather agrees with the skin as no other soaps do, say millions. It penetrates deep into the pores, coaxing out dirt and clogged waste. It stimulates, soothes and refreshes. Use Lifebuoy and watch your skin gain healthy radiance.

Try Lifebuoy Free

If you never have tried Lifebuoy, send a clipping of this offer with your name and address to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. S-73, Cambridge, Mass. Two full-sized cakes will be sent you without cost.

FRANK DANIELS, NOTED ACTOR, 74, DIES IN FLORIDA

Famed for Giltedge Role in "Little Puck."

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Frank Daniels, 74, one of the best known stage actors of yesteryear, died at his winter home here today.

Thirty years ago he was at the top of a career that brought him fame and a fortune which enabled him to spend his declining years in peaceful retirement.

Career Began at 19.

Born in Dayton, O., Daniels started his stage career at the age of 19 when he played the sherif in "The Chimes of Normandy," at Chelsea, Mass. In 1887 he played the part of Packingham Giltedge in "Little Puck," one of his most remarkable successes. He played the part almost continuously for seven years.

Traveled Great Deal.

In 1912, after amassing a considerable fortune, Daniels retired to his estate at Rye, N. Y. He gained a large personal following during his years on the stage and was called one of the most popular actors of his generation. Much of his career he spent on the road. On some of his early tours through the west his companies traveled in stage coaches.

An adopted daughter, Mrs. Maud Daniels Smith, of West Palm Beach, survives.

THOMAS HUNTER DIES; 'UNCLE' TO STAMP SEEKERS

Thomas C. E. Hunter, stamp collector familiarly known to philatelists in many parts of the world as "Uncle Tom," died yesterday of a heart attack in his room at the Brevoort hotel which he had occupied for more than a quarter of a century. He was 66 years old.

Mr. Hunter formerly was a salesman for the American Radiator company. When he retired from that position a few years ago he changed stamp collecting from a hobby to a business. He died amid his books, which bulged with stamps worth thousands of dollars. He is survived by a son in Australia and a sister, Mrs. Peter Sorenson, of West Chicago.

LADY IRVING DIES AT 91; WIDOW OF FAMOUS ACTOR

FOLKESTONE, England, Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Lady Irving, widow of Sir Henry Irving, one of the world's famous actors, died today after a long illness. She was 91.

Lady Irving was a daughter of the late Daniel J. O'Callaghan, surgeon general, who claimed descent from a 10th century Irish king. Her marriage in 1869 to the young actor caused an estrangement from her family, although her husband lived to be knighted and to win world renown.

Lady Irving was estranged from her husband soon after their marriage and went into retirement with her two sons, both of whom are now dead.

Found Stabbed to Death in Flat; Woman Is Held

Responding to a call from a flat at 4408 Hazel avenue, Lieut. William Blaul's squad found Andrew Jegervitch, 40 years old, dead on the floor there last night. He had been stabbed under the heart. In the room was Miss Roberta Wilson, 40 years old, who said she had lived with Jegervitch, also known as Andrew Russell, for two years. She said she stabbed Jegervitch in a drunken quarrel.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, which set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime, no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Spermatic Shield-Complex (Patent No. 747,247, No. 1237700 and other patents pending) is a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method or operation and produces results in no other way obtainable. All cases are permanently relieved against any further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award at the International Medical Congress held in London, England, producing results without surgery or harmful injections. Has been supplied to U. S. Surgeon General's Bureau, U. S. Naval Hospital, Penn. R. R., etc. Get booklet, "The Fallacy of Surgical Procedure."

SOUTH TO HONOR MEMORY OF LEE; FAME LIVES ON

Dixie Forgets Some, but Not "The" General.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

On a gusty day that was Jan. 19, 1865, the commander of the Army of Northern Virginia sat in his headquarters tent and gazed out to the north; out past the sentries in tattered gray and the flagpole where fluttered the Stars and Bars. Out there were his men, 35,000 of them, stretched across a 35 mile front, ready to meet the onslaught of Grant's hosts.

It was his 58th birthday and Gen. Robert E. Lee wondered somberly how many more would pass before the coming of peace.

In the midst of his reflections Gen. Lee was interrupted by one of the sentries, who saluted and apologetically indicated three little girls, the oldest about 8, who had followed him into the tent. The general dismissed the sentry and smiled kindly at his visitors, who now stood timidly before his camp table, uncovering baskets from which they took eggs, cucumber pickles, and parched corn.

Birthday Gifts.

They were gifts—birthday gifts—and precious, too, as was anything edible in those last days of the confederacy. The general thanked them gravely, then lifted and kissed each little girl.

But before he sent them away he gently replaced their presents and filled their baskets to overflowing with apples, to the consternation of his mess steward.

To Gen. Lee it had been a bright interlude in the darkness of war, and he so related it to his wife in a letter, published afterward by his son, Capt. Robert E. Lee, in "Recollections and Letters." But 70 years later the story is still one of the south's favorite anecdotes of their civil war leader.

Though other great generals of the southern cause are partially forgotten, except in the sections where they won their fame, this seems to be less true of Lee, whose birthday, Jan. 19, is universally remembered there.

His Personal Sacrifice.

Besides his humanity and military genius Gen. Lee is remembered also for the personal sacrifice he made to lead the armies of the south.

He was already widely known before the start of the war in 1861. Born at Stratford, Westmoreland county, Va., in 1807, he had risen rapidly in the United States army after his graduation from West Point in 1829. He was made a lieutenant of engineers in 1836 and a captain in 1838. It was with this rank that he distinguished himself in the Mexican wars and, marked for further honors, returned to the family estate at Arlington, just outside Washington, in 1848.

In 1852 Capt. Lee was appointed superintendent of the United States Military academy at West Point with the temporary rank of colonel of engineers.

But with trouble brewing in half a dozen quarters it was said freely in army circles that an officer of such wide experience would not long be kept at this assignment, and this was borne out in 1855 when Lee was appointed lieutenant colonel in command of the Second cavalry, which was being recruited and assembled at Jefferson Barracks [St. Louis], Mo.

Captures John Brown.

In 1859, while on leave at his home in Arlington, Va., to settle the estate of his father, he was chosen by the secretary of war to suppress the John Brown raid and, in command of United States troops, was sent to Harper's Ferry, where he rescued the citizens held as hostages and arrested Brown and Stevens, Copple and Shields, the three of Brown's men who were not killed in the skirmish.

In February, 1860, Col. Lee was placed in command of the department of Texas and went to San Antonio.

It was at this time that the secession of the southern states began. In February, 1861, after Texas had seceded, Col. Lee was ordered to report to Gen. Scott, commander in chief of the United States army, which he did March 1, in Washington. There he was kept while President Lincoln prepared to raise an emergency army of 75,000 volunteers, of which Col. Lee was to have command. Then, on April 17, 1861, came the secession of Virginia, Lee's native state, and on April 20 he resigned his commission in the army of the United States.

Resignation Explained.

Through his years in the army Lee had seen the nation expand and had engaged in battle along more than one of its widening frontiers. It undoubtedly was a struggle for him to take this step, but he would not make war against his native state. In a letter to Gen. Scott on the same day asking that he recommend acceptance of the resignation, Lee wrote:

"It [the resignation] would have been presented at once had it not been for the struggle it has cost me to separate myself from a service to which I have dedicated the best years of my life and all the ability that I possessed. . . . Save in the defense of my native state, I never desire again to draw my sword."

He was called upon, however, only two days later when, upon reaching Richmond he was introduced to the state convention and offered command of the Virginia military forces.

Then followed the war—four years of hardship and suffering. In the early spring of 1865 Gen. Lee found himself bottled up with less than 35,000 hungry, ragged men, and with Grant, Sheridan and Sherman closing in. The battle of Five Forks on April 1 started the final retreat from Richmond and Petersburg. For nine days the Army of Northern Virginia battled vainly for a foothold from which it could make a stand, and on the morning of the 9th its commander saw further attempts could only bring more slaughter.

"Then there is nothing left for me to do but go and see Gen. Grant," said Lee. "History will say hard things of us; they will not understand how we were overwhelmed by numbers. But that is not the question. The question is, is it right to surrender this army? If it is right, then I will take all the responsibility!"

His Farewell to His Men.

Gen. A. L. Long's "Memoirs of Robert E. Lee" describes the general's farewell to his men:

"When, after his interview with Gen. Grant, Gen. Lee again appeared, a shout of welcome instinctively went up from the army. But instantly recollecting the sad occasion that brought him before them, their shouts sank to silence, every hat was raised, and the bronzed faces of thousands of grim warriors were bathed in tears. As he rode slowly along the lines, hundreds of his devoted veterans pressed around the chief, trying to take his hand, touch his person or even lay their hands on his horse."

His formal farewell address was issued the next day—the last order published to the Army of Northern Virginia.

Gen. Lee's last words to his men were to return home and take up their broken lives, to become useful citizens and ignore the bitterness and political discord that were certain to follow the war. He was the first to put these preachings into practice.

Late the same year he became president of Washington university [now Washington and Lee], but the war had undermined his health and he died Oct. 12, 1870.

N. U. APPOINTS WALDORF FOOTBALL COACH

3,274 COMPETE IN SILVER SKATES DERBIES TODAY

AMATEURS RACE ON LAGOON IN LINCOLN PARK

Transfer Site from Waveland Rink.

Silver Skate Facts

Event—Eighteenth Silver Skates Derbies.

Place—North lagoon Lincoln park, one block north of Fullerton avenue on the inner Lincoln park drive.

Time—Contestants report for racing numbers between 9 a. m. and noon; first preliminary in boys' midget class starts at noon.

Contestants' numbers—Report at fieldhouse at north lagoon, where clerks will pass out numbers.

Prizes—Silver, silver plated, and bronze skates and silver and bronze medals for first five skaters in each of seven Derbies; souvenir buttons for all contestants.

Transportation—Clark street cars to Fullerton, then walk east to north lagoon; Addison, Sheridan, Wilson, Diversey buses through Lincoln park and ask for nearest stop to north lagoon.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Silver Skates derbies will be held today at the north lagoon, Lincoln park, one block north of Fullerton avenue between the inner and middle drives through the park.

DR. EDWARD H. RATEGAN.

The change in location—the derbies originally were announced for the Waveland avenue rink—was made to take advantage of the north lagoon's excellent ice surface, which was frozen Friday night. Several hundred boys and girls were practicing on the lagoon yesterday and officials, measuring the ice, found it to be a depth of six inches.

This morning two crews of Lincoln park workmen with teams of horses and scraper will prepare the lagoon surface after Paul Staff has surveyed the racing track. The success of the derbies, of course, hinges on the weather.

Promises Good Weather.

While yesterday the ice was perfect, W. P. Day, weather bureau forecaster, last night predicted rising temperatures this morning. However, despite last night's snow, the temperature is expected to fall in the afternoon.

All contestants must report for their racing numbers between 9 a. m. and noon. The clerks will have these numbers at the fieldhouse on the north bank of the north lagoon.

The first preliminary in the boys' midget class will start at noon and will be followed by preliminaries in the boys' juvenile and boys' junior classes. The exact order of the other events will be determined by Harry Berz, chief of the clerks.

Early Start Imperative.

The early start is necessary because 3,274 skaters have registered for the seven Derbies. In order to give all an opportunity to compete, the preliminaries must begin at noon. The registration for each of the age classes follows:

Boys' midget, under 12 years, 468.
Boys' juvenile, 12 and 13, 633.
Boys' junior, 14 and 15, 693.
Boys' intermediate, 16 to 17, 596.
Men's senior, 18 and over, 589.
Girls' junior, under 16 years, 162.
Girls' senior, 16 and over, 133.

In order to conduct the races with the same efficiency that has characterized the other derbies, all clerks are asked to report at 9 o'clock. Judges, starters, inspectors, timers, scorers, physicians, announcers, and other officials should be ready at noon for the first preliminaries.

Gen. Clinnin Is Referee.

Dr. Edward H. Rategan will be in charge of the group of physicians who will be prepared to supervise the races. Gen. John V. Clinnin is referee of the meet. Capt. Roy E. Davis is chief of the starters. Judge Walter P. Steffen is in charge of the judges of finish and J. J. Lipp is chief of the group of timers.

For the benefit of the contestants the distances for the preliminaries and championships in all divisions are printed again.

Boys' midget, qualifying 110 yards, final 220 yards.
Boys' juvenile, qualifying 220 yards, final 440 yards.
Boys' junior, qualifying 440 yards, final half mile.
Boys' intermediate, qualifying half mile, final one mile.
Men's senior, qualifying one mile, final two miles.
Girls' junior, qualifying half mile, final one mile.
Girls' senior, qualifying one mile, final two miles.

Programs will be distributed without charge to all contestants as soon as they report. Skaters who are 16 years of age and over must register with the Illinois Western Skating association, under whose sanction the meet is held. This registration costs

SCORER, MARK DOWN A WILD PITCH!

Golden Gloves Guns Boom in 38 Sectors; Chicago Prepares!

BY FRENCH LANE.

The first rumblings of this new year's Golden Gloves tournament of champions are coming in from the distance.

And when we say distance we do so advisedly.

For an original Golden Gloves Chicagoland of five states has so far extended its chest that it now includes eleven states and 38 centers from which sectional teams will come.

This does not include our great army of Chicago Golden Glovers nor the championship team from the Catholic Youth organization.

We could end our story here because the best way to explain popularity is to enumerate admirers.

New Sectional Centers.

But we go on to tell you with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction that in addition to the vast territory from which came thousands of entrants last year, this year's tournament of champions will include battlers from the following new sectional centers:

Dayton, O.
Akron, O.
Sioux City, Ia.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Chillicothe, Mo.
Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.
Louisville, Ky.

Each of these tournaments is vouched for by up and coming newspapers which have become convinced that the best way to handle the youth of today is to pit the energy of one individual against another.

They'll Be Here!

So on the night of Feb. 25, when the Tournament of Champions opens here, will come the victorious gladiators who have become champions at tournaments conducted by the following newspapers:

Carrie Carries a Little Help in Basketball Game

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Jan. 12.—(AP)—That cats may look at queens is axiomatic but, it seems, mice may not look at girls playing basketball if the game is to go on in regulation style.

Some one [small boys suspected] loosed 22 field mice in the gymnasium where the Poplar Bluff senior and junior girls were playing. Some players scaled the balcony as the mice scurried across the floor. Others ran screaming to the showers. Officials finally restored order.

Miss Carrie Fann, hardy senior center, captured one of the rodents and carried it in a pocket for the rest of the game. The outcome was never in doubt. When Miss Fann received the ball she had it to herself, all other players maintaining a respectful distance.

Final score: Seniors, 14; Juniors, 8.

DE PAUL QUINTET HANDS ST. LOUIS TRIMMING, 35-25

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—De Paul university of Chicago defeated the St. Louis university basketball quintet tonight, 35 to 25, after leading at the half, 17 to 12. Yost, center, was the star in De Paul's fast passing offense, scoring six baskets and one free throw for a total of 13 points, the evening's high.

IOWA'S SPEED WHIPS PURPLE QUINTET, 38-35

6,000 See N. U. 2d Half Rallies Fail.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Iowa's brilliantly fast quintet paced Northwestern throughout last night's game at Patten gymnasium to win its third consecutive conference victory, 38 to 35. Six thousand, a capacity throng, cheered Northwestern's vain second half rallies which thrice pulled the Wildcats to within five points of the Hawkeyes and then reduced that margin to three points just before the timer's gun sounded.

The game was fought at so furious a tempo Northwestern was in difficulty on defense throughout the first half. In those twenty minutes, after which Iowa led, 27 to 18, it was definitly proved that Lyle Fisher, Duke Vance, and Jess McAnally, Northwestern's largest players, could not match the speed of Sid Rosenthal, John Barko, John Grim, and Albert Bobby.

Barko Is Leading Scorer.

Most of Iowa's ten field goals in the first half were scored from under the basket or very near. Barko was the scoring star with five goals and two free throws in this period. He added another in the second period to total 14 points, the best individual performance on either side.

Close guarding by Grim and Bobby, who covered Fisher, in the first half, brought their ejections on four personals. Bobby left at the end of 13 minutes, while Grim fouled out in the middle of the second half. Fisher was lost to Northwestern after 16 minutes of the first half when he fouled Grim twice within a minute for his third and fourth penalties.

Fisher's Ability Missed.

Fisher's scoring ability—he garnered eight points—was sadly missed later, for the other regulars, with the exception of Elmer Blume, who started in place of Guy Mercer, sophomore forward, scored only six points between them.

Iowa was leading, 30 to 21, when Jones replaced Kawal at guard and scored two long goals to cut the margin to five points. Later Vance, who played the pivot line, finally scored to lead another sortie. This time Ivan Blackmer, Hawkeye center; Barko, and Tangeman, substitute for Grim, made three goals on close in shots to bring Iowa's total to 38 points. With a nine point lead Iowa, led by Rosenthal, stalled to the end.

WISCONSIN, 30; INDIANA, 23

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Displaying their greatest offensive power in three Western conference starts, Wisconsin's Badgers defeated Indiana in the Hoosiers' first home Big Ten basketball contest, 30 to 23, here tonight.

Pete Preboski led the Wisconsin attack with six field goals and two free throws, while Kenney Gunning, sophomore forward, scored three field goals and two free throws for Indiana.

Badgers Take Lead.

Getting away to a 19 to 12 lead at the half, Wisconsin was never threatened in the second period. Near the finish, Gunning twice dribbled down the floor to score, but Wisconsin's advantage was too great to overcome.

Jones had a slight edge on the tipoffs over Indiana's 6 feet 7 inch center, Fechtman of Indianapolis, and the Badgers controled the ball a majority of the time.

Sink One-Handed Shots.

Preboski, Poser and Demark had unusual luck on sinking one handed shots. Despite the fact that Indiana missed many shots from close range, the Badgers had the best of it on under the basket drives. Lineup:

ILLINOIS, 44; OHIO, 23

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Superior height, used to advantage, led to the defeat of Ohio State by Illinois tonight, 44 to 23.

Illinois took the lead in the first few minutes and ran the score to 21 to 8 before the first half was over. From here on the Illini were never headed, toying with the Buckeyes in the second half.

Frank Froschauer led Illinois in scoring, accounting for 18 points on seven baskets and four free throws, while Combs, lanky Illinois left forward, and Riegel, tall center, each made ten points on four baskets and two free throws.

Altogether Illinois made 17 baskets and ten free throws, out of 17 chances,

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs' famed kid line—Charley Conacher, Harvey Jackson, and Joe Primeau — tonight swept through the world champion Chicago Blackhawks for a 5 to 1 victory. The triumph enabled the Leafs, who have been leading both sections of the National Hocky league since the start of the season, to increase their advantage over the Montreal Maroons, who were defeated tonight, to four full games. It was the third time in three meetings this season that they had beaten the Hawks, who left immediately after the game for Chicago, where they will meet the Boston Bruins tomorrow night.

A crowd of 12,500 saw the game, which produced some of the year's best hocky, in spite of the one sided score. It saw Howie Morenz of the Hawks play one of his finest games, only his own erratic shooting and a great exhibition of goal tending by George Hainsworth of the Leafs keeping him from scoring three or four goals.

Morenz Scores Early.

The game was not five minutes old when Morenz scored the only Chicago goal on a pass from Johnny Gottselig. Before t e end of the period, Charley Conacher of the Leafs had scored the first of his three goals to tie the score. In the second period, Conacher and Primeau scored two goals within 65 seconds, and in the final period, Jackson got the fourth goal and Conacher the fifth.

The Leafs' power tonight was reflected in the number of goalie stops, Lorne Chabot of the Hawks being called on to make 42 while Hainsworth halted 24, most of them by the Morenz-March-Gottselig line.

Morenz put the Hawks ahead at the 4.08 mark on a pass from Gottselig. Johnny carried the puck over the Toronto blue line, went on into the corner and passed out to Morenz, who was posted 15 feet in front of Hainesworth. The veteran center scored with a terrific shot.

Leafs Harry Chabot.

The Leafs set a dazzling pace thereafter. Conacher almost scored on an around-the-net play. Art Jackson, Kelly, and Cotton made it hot for Chabot and Clancy took a pot shot that sent the Chicago goalie sprawling, but none of these efforts beat Chabot.

Couture high sticked Kilrea and the Leafs ganged on Chabot. Harvey Jackson slashed a terrific shot against the Chicago goalie's pads. On the next drive he passed out from a corner to Thoms, who slammed the puck at the goalie. It came out to Conacher, who backhanded it into the cage, tying the score.

Conacher raced through the whole Chicago team at the start of the second period, but Chabot picked off his

INGWERSEN TO JOIN WILDCATS AS ASSISTANT

Kansas State Post Goes to Fry.

Lynn Waldorf will succeed Dick Hanley as head football coach at Northwestern university. This announcement was made yesterday by Kenneth L. Wilson, Northwestern university's athletic director.

Wilson arranged the final details of the deal yesterday in a telephone conversation with Waldorf, who was at Manhattan, Kas. For the last year Waldorf has been head coach at Kansas State university.

It was also announced that Burt Ingwersen, former head coach at the University of Iowa and more recently Biff Jones' assistant at Louisiana State university, would join the Northwestern staf as Waldorf's assistant.

Wilson Lauds Record.

Wilson said that the new coach had been selected from an imposing list of candidates.

"Coach Waldorf is equipped with the qualities essential for the success of a coach," Wilson said. "His experience both as a player and a coach, together with his enthusiasm for the game, has made him one of the outstanding younger coaches in the country."

Wilson expressed himself as highly pleased with the selection of Ingwersen, whom he regards as an outstanding line coach.

"I am glad to welcome Coach Ingwersen back into the conference where he has a wide circle of friends," Wilson said. "Ingwersen's record as a player and coach has been excellent and I am confident that he will make a valuable addition to our staf."

Kent, Fisher Retained.

The remainder of the coaching staf will consist of Maury Kent, head freshman coach; Waldo Fisher, line coach; and Dutch Lonborg, assistant back field coach. Lonborg is also basketball coach. Both Kent and Fisher have been on the staf for a number of years.

Coach Waldorf will arrive in Evanston next week. While here he will meet members of the squad and establish connections at the university. He will take over active charge March 1 at the start of spring practice. Coach Ingwersen will join him at that time.

Wins Title at Kansas State.

The appointment of Waldorf settled a situation which has given rise to numerous reports and counter-reports since the resignation of Hanley, Dec. 15. In recent days the field of possibilities had narrowed down to Waldorf and Ossie Solem of Iowa.

Waldorf gave an example of capability by bringing an inexperienced Kansas State team to such a peak of efficiency that it won the Big Six championship last season—his first year on the job at that institution. In the final game on Thanksgiving day, Kansas State defeated Nebraska, 19 to 7.

Waldorf had his early football training at Saracuse, playing on the teams of 1922, 1923 and 1924. He also was a member of the crew. He was president of the senior class, president of the inter-fraternity council and also of his own fraternity chapter.

Has Wide Experience.

After graduation he coached at an academy for a short time and then got a job as head coach at Oklahoma City university. The team had gone through the preceding four seasons without winning a game in its conference. During Waldorf's first year it won four out of ten.

After two more years at Oklahoma City Waldorf went to the University of Kansas for a season as line coach. Then he was offered a job as head coach at Oklahoma Aggies, which he

Illinois Flyer First in Air Race at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Venezuelan trophy, chief prize of the all American air meet here, was captured today by Art Chester of Glenview, Ill., who sent a tiny plane of his own design skidding about the pylons of a 15 mile course for an average speed of 220.255 miles an hour.

Just before Chester's dash, Ben Stegall of Savannah, Ga., roaring three times around the five mile triangular course, flew his plane for an average of 165.269 miles an hour to win an all American free-for-all event and $200 in prize money.

Sterman Is Second.

Alton B. Sterman of Cape Cod, Mass., considerably behind the victorious Georgian, was second with an average speed of 140.526 miles an hour, and Roger Don Rae of Lansing, Mich., third with 132.737 miles an hour.

Sterman collected $100; Rae, $75; H. Doyle of Erie, Pa., fourth place money of $50, and Jack Loesing of Miami, $25 for fifth position.

Jack Wright of Utica, N. Y., who established new speed times here last year, finished second but was disqualified for cutting a pylon.

Wright Wins Dash.

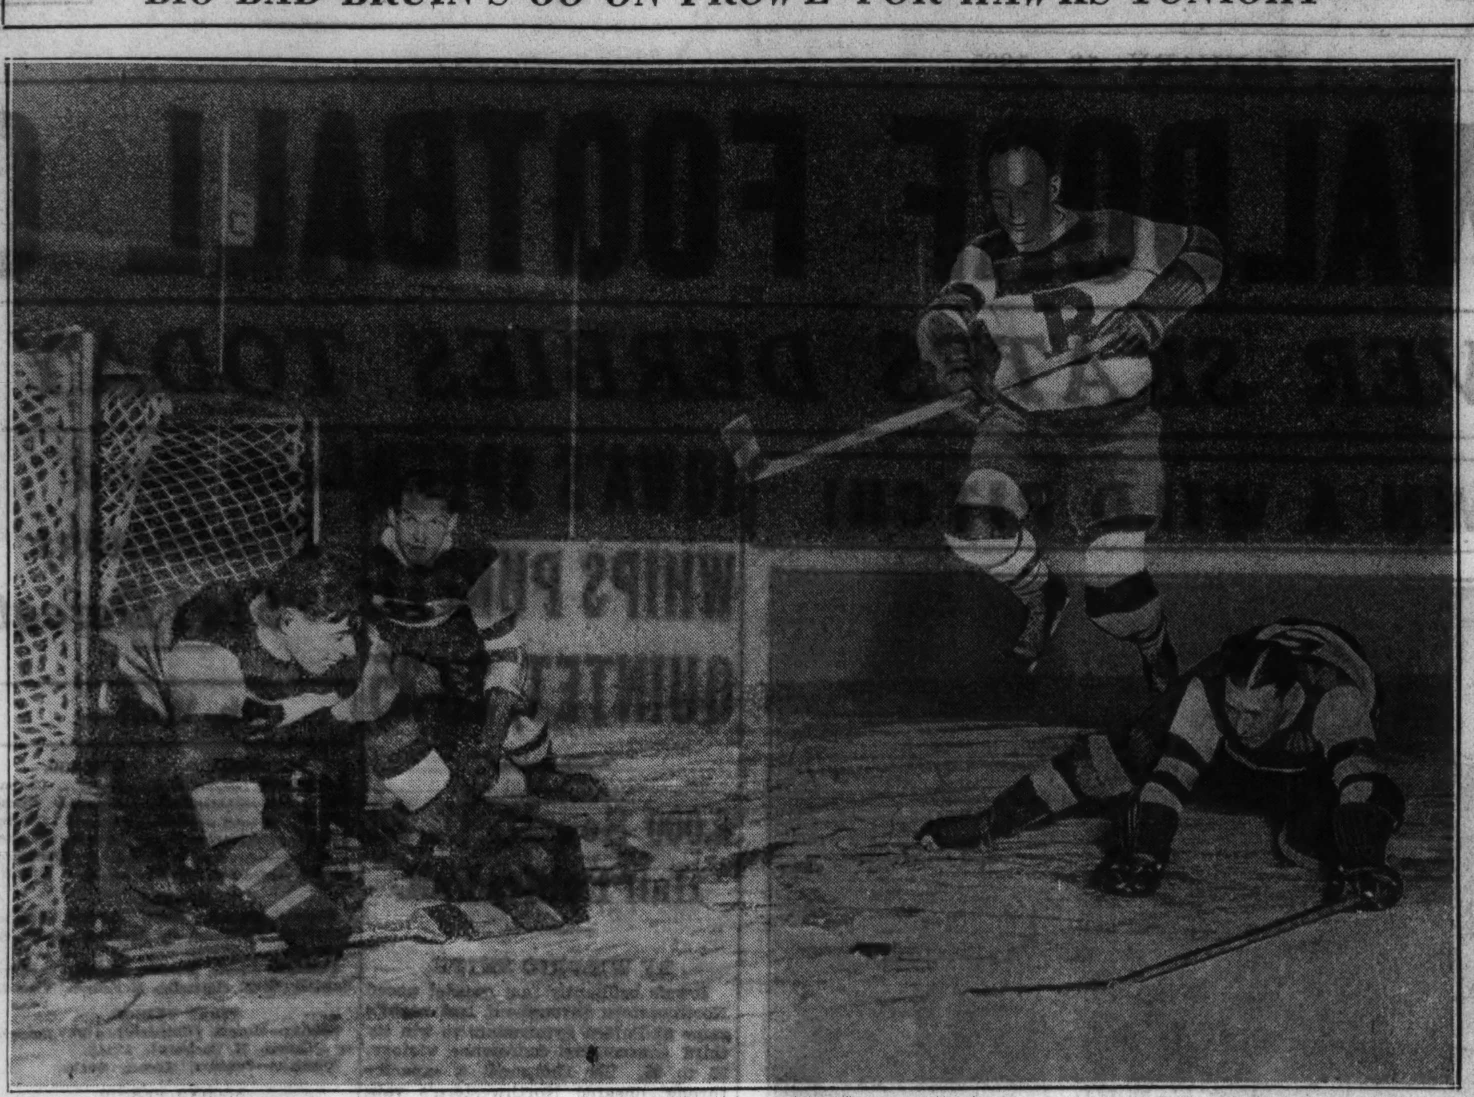
Wright, however, came back to win a speed dash limited to commercial cabin planes with engine displacement of 550 cubic inches or less, three laps over the five mile course.

Wright's average speed was 140.658, and he won $150. Doyle, who raced plane-and-plane with Wright much of the way, was flagged down for second place. His average was 133.978 and prize $100.

Archery Club Moves to Winter Range on Midway

The Chicago Archery club of Washington Park, now in its 52d year, has moved to its winter shooting range in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. This range gives the archers an opportunity to use regulation targets at regulation distances. E. L. Randle, president, yesterday invited everybody interested to attend the Thursday evening shoots.

BIG BAD BRUINS GO ON PROWL FOR HAWKS TONIGHT



Boston's Bruins take a workout on the Stadium ice in preparation for their game with the Blackhawks tonight when possession of first place in the American division of the National Hocky league will be at stake. The Bruins above (left to right) are: Tiny Thompson, goalie; Babe Seibert, Eddie Shore, and Dit Clapper.

hurried shot. Again the big wing snared a pass from Horner and pounded a shot straight at the goalie.

Conacher gave Toronto the first of two quick goals, batting in a rebound of Primeau's shot. The procedure was reversed a minute later, Primeau scoring from a difficult angle on Conacher's pass.

Chabot made a remarkable save when Boll was right in on him. Chabot was accidentally cut on the mouth during a mêlée in front of his cage. He was given first aid at the bench and stayed in the game.

McFadyen and Couture staged one dangerous attack, and then Harvey Jackson made the score 4-1 for the Leafs on a solo rush. His back hand shot from 10 feet out gave Chabot no chance.

Conacher raced right back for the fifth goal, 49 seconds later, bagging a pass from Primeau. Horner also got an assist.

BRUINS HERE TONIGHT

When the Blackhawks confront the Boston Bruins on the Chicago Stadium ice tonight they will meet a team that has stubbornly dogged their footsteps since the season started. By winning from the Eagles Thursday night while the Maroons were vanquishing the Hawks, the Bruins passed Clem Loughlin's players to dominate the United States division for the third time this season, and this despite three straight defeats handed them by the Hawks.

If past performances mean anything, tonight's game should be a walk-away for the Hawks, who have made 13 goals to 2 for Boston in the three games this season. Two of them were shutouts. However, these figures are likely to mean exactly nothing.

Manager Clem Loughlin, who has had encouraging reports while on the road regarding the progress of Taffy Abel, who trained at the Stadium and at Postl's gymnasium during the team's absence, is expected to order the big defense player to be in readiness to play tonight. Abel's return to the game has been eagerly awaited by not only the Chicago hocky fans, but by the whole Blackhawks organization. His presence on the Hawks' defense line will do much to relieve the burden which Art Coulter and Marty Burke have been carrying.

LOTT, STOEFEN BEAT TILDEN AND VINES IN DOUBLES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 12. — (AP) — George Lott and Lester Stoefen tonight scored their first doubles victory over Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines since they began their professional tennis careers last Wednesday night. A crowd of 4,000 in Duquesne Gardens saw Lott and Stoefen win, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The veterans won the first set handily and had a lead of 4 to 2 in the second when Lott and Stoefen broke through Tilden's service, and continued the bombardment until they won. In the third set each player won his own service until the count reached 4 to 3 for Lott and Stoefen. Tilden's service again was broken and Stoefen won his own service at love to take the set and match.

Vines needed an hour and 45 minutes to beat Stoefen in a singles match, 10-8, 6-8, 6-4.

PERRY IS BEATEN BY CRAWFORD IN MELBOURNE FINAL

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Fred Perry of England today lost the Australian singles tennis championship to Jack Crawford of Australia. A remark Perry made after the match started a new wave of speculation concerning his prospects of turning professional either as a player or motion picture actor.

Showing signs of tiring mentally and physically under the strain of his campaign and lacking accuracy, the world champion Briton was beaten in four sets by the Australian Davis cup star, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

In the latter part of the game an entire new Illinois team was used. It seemed to function almost as well as the first squad. Here again Illinois' superior height told against Ohio.

The attendance of 5,182 was the largest this season.

PURDUE, 39; MAROONS, 21

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Purdue's basketball team had an off night at hitting the basket, but the Boilermakers had no trouble defeating Chicago in a Big Ten battle, 39 to 21, tonight. It was the eighth victory in nine games for Purdue, and the second Big Ten triumph in three conference games.

Until the final minutes Chicago offered feeble resistance, and in the middle of the second half Purdue, despite the fact that reserves had played a good part of the game, held a 32 to 10 lead.

Bob Kessler and Norman Cottom piled up an 11 to 0 lead for Purdue in the first five minutes of play, and the Boilermakers held an 18 to 6 margin at the half. Another scoring spurt marked the opening of the second period, with reserves leading the way for the winners.

The Maroons started to connect from long range in the last few minutes to keep the game from turning into a complete rout. Haarlow's three field goals featured the late drive.

Kessler, Purdue's little forward, took high point honors with three field goals and six free throws. Lineups:

MINNESOTA WINS, 31-24

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota broke into the Big Ten basketball race here tonight with a 31 to 24 victory over Michigan. Minnesota and Iowa remain the only two unbeaten teams in the conference.

The Gophers were not impressive tonight, and on several occasions threatened to kick away the game. But Michigan was ineffective at the free throw line, which accounted for the loss. The Wolverines made good on only four of 16 chances.

The Gophers started slowly, but finally held a 7 to 5 lead. Michigan then went ahead, 13 to 7, but Minnesota rallied to make it 15 to 15 at the half.

Gordie Norman, veteran center of the Gophers, scored four field goals in the first half and four free throws in the second period to lead the scoring.

Rudness, Michigan guard, played one of the best defensive games seen on the field floor in a long time. He held Kupperberg, sophomore flash, without a basket. Lineups:

NOTRE DAME 30, BUTLER 29

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Notre Dame squeezed a 30 to 29 victory over Butler here tonight before a crowd of 6,100. The sensational work of Johnny Ford, forward, enabled the Irish to whip the Bulldogs. Ford scored two baskets and a free throw in the closing minutes to halt a Butler rally. One basket came after an interception by Joe Okane, forward, who passed the ball to Ford for a sleeper shot.

Notre Dame, clicking on a good percentage of its shots, piled up a 21 to 12 lead in the first half. Oakane, who led in scoring with 14 points, made ten points in the first period.

Butler, with every one in the lineup hitting from all angles, started a rally which scored 11 points and brought about a 23 to 23 tie with half of the second period gone. Oakane and Ford then scored in rapid succession, but Batts and Armstrong countered for the Bulldogs to tie things, 27 to 27, with three minutes to play. Ford's sleeper and free throw on Armstrong's foul offset Batts' long field goal. Ford's numerous interceptions and the work of Marty Peters, Notre Dame center, were instrumental in the Irish victory. accepted. The Aggies had been having a series of bad years, but during the five seasons of Waldorf's régime neither Tulsa nor Oklahoma university, their chief rivals, was able to win a game. His teams won four state championships, two Missouri Valley championships, won 33 games, lost 10, and tied 7.

Son of Bishop Waldorf.

Leaving Oklahoma Aggies last season, Waldorf took charge at Kansas State, replacing Bo McMillin. In winning the Big Six title, Kansas State was undefeated in the conference. Its record for the season consisted of seven victories, two defeats, and one tie.

Waldorf is 32 years old, is married and has two daughters. His father is Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Chicago area.

Plenty of Victories.

Waldorf's coaching record follows:

OKLAHOMA CITY UNIVERSITY.
1925—Won, 4; lost, 6; tied, 0.

Wes Fry, former quarter back at the University of Iowa, who has been an assistant at Kansas State, will take full charge as head coach after Waldorf goes to Northwestern, it was learned yesterday. Fry had been Waldorf's assistant at Oklahoma Aggies before coming to Kansas State.

Ingwersen, who will assist Waldorf in the task of regaining Northwestern's prestige on the football field, was an outstanding tackle on University of Illinois elevens in 1917, 1918, and 1919. He was captain in 1918. He also starred in baseball and basketball for three years. He coached the Illinois freshmen from 1920 to 1923 and then went to the University of Iowa where he was head coach from 1924 to 1931. In 1932 he went to Louisiana State as Biff Jones' assistant and has been there until the present.

REVISED ILLINOIS SHOOTING RULES CONSERVE DUCKS

Waterfowl Season Ends Today.

BY BOB BECKER.

This is the last day of the waterfowl hunting season in Illinois. This state, by virtue of its dividing the thirty days of shooting into fifteen two day week-ends, was able to continue its hunting later than other north central states. From today on through the summer the question is: where do we go from here in trying to settle the question of future waterfowl hunting?

Looking back on the 1934-'35 waterfowl season the average hunter will mark it off as a mixture of good, bad, and indifferent hunting. There were some good week-ends to produce fine shooting. But there were a number of disappointing hunts, too. The idea was to conserve ducks this fall. There isn't much doubt but what the two days per week schedule did save birds. As a matter of fact many hunters found that instead of two open days in a week there really was but one, as far as the birds were concerned, because on many a Sunday the crafty mallards and wild geese [all tired out after dodging shot on Saturday!] refused to do much flying or decoying when the first day of the new week dawned.

Kill Is Cut in Half.

As a concrete example of how kills of mallards were reduced this year we can look at the figures of one of the outstanding day shooting places on the Illinois river, a series of field pens where the shooter has the use of live flying decoys. Last year this place had a kill of around 2,600 birds during the season. This year fifteen week-ends of hunting will bring the total mallards killed by day shooters to just about one-half of that number.

As for the future, no one knows what developments will come to the duck hunting game. Possibly we can get some idea of the way the wind is blowing on Jan. 21, 22, and 23, when we attend the American Game conference in New York and hear the reports of the investigators.

Good Flight in Illinois.

Illinois had a pretty good flight of pintails and mallards, as was predicted in this department before the season opened. There were at least two reasons for this. First, these species had a better nesting season than the open water ducks. Secondly, there was little water west of the Mississippi, so the birds were glad to get into the Illinois river valley.

Next fall it may be necessary to place further restrictions on the shooting of certain species like the canvasback, redhead, and other waterfowl whose ranks are at a dangerously low stage. Possibly a closed season on these birds is needed. We do not know about this, nor does any one except those scientists who have done nothing but study our bird population.

Must Keep Up Fight.

However, sportsmen are warned that there will be demands made to close down all waterfowl shooting. We are hearing this sentiment every day now. Therefore, it is up to the waterfowl hunter to be on his toes to keep in touch with the facts about the situation, and be prepared to campaign for laws or regulations that are consistent with good common sense and the future of all waterfowl hunting.

PREP FOOTBALL RULE CHANGES TO PROTECT PLAYER

Several minor rule changes to protect high school football players in the United States were adopted at the close of the annual meeting of the National Federation of High school athletic associations yesterday. The important changes follow:

Compulsory wearing of head gear.

When a foul occurs on the last down of a period, both teams may be liable to a penalty. Formerly only the defensive team was liable.

Revision of the "unnecessary roughness" clause of the rules to provide greater safety for the forward passer after the ball has left his hands.

Officers of the rules committee elected at the meeting were E. A. Thomas, Topeka, Kas., chairman; H. V. Porter, and H. L. Ray, Chicago.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12.—The Chicago Bears, making their first appearance of the season here, will oppose the Chicago Cardinals, playing their final game before returning home, at Gilmore stadium tomorrow before what is expected to be a capacity turnout of 22,000.

The Bears' claws, dulled by nearly a month's layoff following the regular National Professional Football league schedule, have been sharpened by three intensive workouts which removed their few pounds of excess weight and brought them back to form. At least, such is the opinion of Owner-Coach George Halas. All except Bronko Nagurski will be able to participate, including Beattie Feathers, who was out of the play-off against the New York Giants. Special protective shoulder equipment arrived today for the former Tennessee scoring ace. His last harness restricted use of his passing arm. Nagurski, because of wrestling activities, will not arrive for the game.

Hinchman Out of Game.

The Cardinals, quartered in a Hollywood hotel at the other end of the movie neighborhood from the Bears, await the issue with confidence. Owing to Horstmann's injury and McNally's absence, Coach Schissler recruited two college coast stars for the occasion. They are Jolting Joe Keeble, a back from U. C. L. A., and Brick Bright, once a Southern California back and in his last year a tackle, now a Cardinal line replacement.

These additions caused protest from Halas because the players were not signed within the date specified by pro league rules. Schissler in turn protested Jim McMillen, former Illini, now a pro wrestler. This writer suspects both protests were for publicity purposes. Anyway, the American Legion arbitration commission, as expected, ruled all three players eligible on the ground that this was 1935, therefore a new season.

Finally Get Officials.

There was some concern over officials because the Pacific coast conference has just promulgated an edict, similar to that of the Big Ten, that pro arbiters may not work in college games. Lee Dempsey, once of Dubuque college, and Ab Young, once of Oklahoma university, now coach at Black Fox Military academy, apparently have defied the ukase. Their names are announced along with Ernie Pinckert of the Boston Redskins and Dick Supplee, once of the University of Pennsylvania.

Apply for Dog License at Braves' Field

Boston, Mass., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The final word on dog racing at Braves field is going to be said by the Massachusetts racing commission and not by the directors of the National league, who have had much to say about the subject.

Proof that this harassing matter had been taken out of baseball hands came today when the Boston Kennel Club, Inc., with Sheldon H. Fairbanks, prominent Boston horseman, as president, filed an application to conduct dog racing at Braves field, which it obtained by subleasing from the Commonwealth Realty company, owner of the National league baseball park.

Fuchs Is Mum.

Beyond admitting that the kennel club had obtained the lease, which must have been done with the consent of the baseball club, President Emil Fuchs of the Braves refused to comment on this subject which has become highly distasteful to him since last month's meetings in New York, when his fellow magnates viewed his own dog racing plans with wild alarm.

The plans that accompanied the kennel club's application called for a track of from three-sixteenths to five-sixteenths of a mile, the building of which would require so much reconstruction that the park would be unsuited for baseball.

May Have to Move.

Fuchs has repeatedly stated that he has not discussed transferring his team's home games to Fenway park with General Manager Eddie Collins or any other Red Sox official, but it is certain he will be forced to do this if the racing commission acts favorably. The commission will not do anything about it, however, for at least two weeks, when its three members return from the national convention of state racing commissions at Miami.

If Fuchs is forced to take baseball out of Braves field, he will have no trouble moving into the American league's Boston plant. Collins, now visiting Tom Yawkey's South Carolina hunting camp, has let it be known that the Red Sox would welcome the Braves as a tenant.

WHERE SILVER SKATES CHAMPIONS WILL BE CROWNED

The north lagoon in Lincoln park, where The Tribune's annual Silver Skates Derbies will be held today. Better racing conditions necessitated a switch from the Waveland Avenue rink in Lincoln park to the lagoon, which is just north of the zoo and Fullerton avenue.

Miss Ruth Grotha, 21 years old, member of the Norwegian-American team entered in The Tribune's Silver Skates Derbies, didn't let rainy weather of the last week keep her from practicing. Here she is on the Chicago Stadium ice.

Sound the Trumpets! Dr. Krone Comes Back—and with Londos

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

"Extra! Krone Comes Back! Rassling Booms Again! Extra!"

EVERETT MARSHALL.

The citizens of our town were interrupted in the midst of their evening ale yesterday by the shrill cries of newsboys bringing these tidings. Before they could recover themselves and scramble to the safety of the storm cellars, a breathless courier came out of the night, gasping, "It's Londos, men. Londos, Krone, Marshall, Pretty Boy Coleman, and all the rest of them. Next Friday night at the Coliseum. We haven't got a chance. Get a hold on yourselves, now, because Krone is due any minute."

Three citizens crumpled up in their chairs. Two others knocked over foaming beakers of good, honest brew. They had not done with shuddering before what might have been a once comfortable figure, now shorn of its former upholstery, lumbered onto the scene. The hardier ones present, realizing that ale was a poor defense for what was coming began to signal for a noggin of grog.

It's Really the Doc!

The visitor draped himself over the largest portion of the furniture handy and began to beam shyly upon all those who had not fled. There was a happier time when his very bulk would have identified him at five and a half furlongs, but no more. The funereal broadcloth hung too loosely, and the gleaming white collar, with its black propeller, did not fit as snugly as of yore. Finally he doffed the historic bowler and the unveiling was complete. It was, without a doubt, Doctor John Krone, the old apothecary himself, the man who made wrestling what it is today in Chicago at least. Several citizens called for a double noggin of the same.

It's No Use, Boys!

"Ah, gentlemen," said the doctor, as his foot detained one desperate listener in the midst of escape, "it is good to look upon you once more. True, I have been away, but I have not been idle, mind you. In fact, I have arranged a special surprise for all of you loyal followers of wrestling. It is so special that I can't help myself from letting out the secret now."

The ears of the doctor's audience began to twitch uneasily, and one brave soul made a last effort to run him out of bounds.

"What do you think Stengel will do to the Dodgers this season, Doc?" he feinted.

"First of all, gentlemen," Dr. Krone proceeded blithely, "the surprise will be presented at that cradle of the grappling art, the Coliseum, not on next Thursday, nor yet Saturday, but Friday. The first course will consist of Lou Plummer, one of the better Frankensteins, and Tiger Joe Marsh of Omaha. This will be followed by a little number featuring Abe [Pretty Boy] Coleman, the Rose of Brooklyn, and Casey Birger, the Ohio dog fancier. Mehmet Yousuf, the curse of Constantinople, will then exchange faces with Thomas Marvin of Oklahoma, and a fair exchange it is, too. Ray Steele, the finest place horse in wrestling, will next join Olaf Olseson in their own version of the Continental. But, gentlemen, as fine as these will be, they don't compare with the big surprise, who will be——"

"O, not that, Doc, not that!" screamed one of the citizens, and fell into a fit of babbling.

Whaddya Think of This?

"I repeat, gentlemen," the doctor rumbled on, "the surprise will be the return of that old box office pulmotor, James Londos. Yes, THE James Londos, gentlemen. And with his return there will be a resurrection of wrestling. My good friends, Nate Lewis and James Mullen, have done well in reviving boxing hereabouts, so why shouldn't I do likewise with the noble science of the grip and grunt.

"What is more, I have arranged to have James hazard his world's championship in this joyous return, and no less than Everett Marshall will face him in the big struggle of the night. Marshall is a model of self-control. He tied the Olympic record for restraint last year in a three hour battle with Londos, after which Everett knocked out the referee, his manager, two policemen, and a marine. And before I bid you good night, gentlemen, may I be permitted to state that your humble servant will be at the gate, greeting one and all?"

The doctor then wandered out in search of new victims, and the survivors among his late listeners returned to their ale, well aware that they were a beaten lot. They all bore the mark of Londos, and to bear it is to beat the Coliseum Friday next.

PARE, PARKHILL PLAY TONIGHT ON ARMORY COURT

Headed by Emmett Pare, professional star, six of Chicago's leading tennis players will compete in the weekly exhibitions at the Broadway Armory indoor courts, Broadway and Thorndale avenue, tonight. Two singles matches and an outstanding doubles contest are scheduled.

Pare, noted for his performance as a professional while touring with Bill Tilden's troupe, will meet Bill Parkhill in the first singles match. Parkhill won the western indoor championship in 1933, and his flat driving game is especially adapted to the indoor boards.

Karl Kamrath, city outdoor titleholder, engages George Jennings in the second singles encounter. Jennings, now a professional, won the city public parks championship for four successive years.

A doubles match will bring Pare and Frank O'Connell against Jennings and Roland Bloomstrand, Swedish pro.

Schulmerich, Former Brave, Sent to Toronto by Reds

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Edward W. Schulmerich, Philadelphia and Boston Braves outfielder, has been sent to the Toronto International league baseball club by Cincinnati, it was announced today. Schulmerich broke in with Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league in 1927. He was with the Braves in 1933, batting .318.

Olympic Skating Trials Postponed by Snowstorm

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 12.—(AP)—A driving snowstorm today forced postponement of the speed skating trials here to select the team to represent the United States in the 1936 Olympics in Berlin.

The 500 and 1,500 meter races, originally to be run off today, were moved ahead to tomorrow. The 500 meter trial, set for tomorrow, will be run off Tuesday night at Powderhorn park here, the 10,000 meter race will be skated next Saturday.

Officials worked all morning in keeping the track cleared of the snow, but at noon, when no signs of a break in the weather appeared they decided it would be impossible to hold the races.

The weather forecast called for continuance of the snow tonight and tomorrow, indicating possibility of further postponement.

Thirty-eight of the nation's best skaters will compete for the four places on the Olympic team.

Lesnevich Knocks Out Lawless in 2d Round

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Gus Lesnevich, 166¼, Union City, N. J., knocked out Bucky Lawless, 161, Syracuse, in the second round of an eight round bout tonight.

Cubs' Pitching Staf Short of Pennant Class

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke, Tex Carleton, Bill Lee, and Larry French, the Cub pitchers counted upon by Manager Charles Grimm to serve as big four heavy duty boys in the 1935 pennant competition, won 63 games and lost 53 last season for a percentage of .543. No team ever won a pennant by playing .543 ball.

If all the pitchers on an outfit were to pitch .545 ball in a 154 game season their team's final standing would be:

W.	L.	Pct.
84	70	.545

How far this is from being a pennant pace may be judged by the fact that the Cardinals won the pennant in 1926 with the lowest percentage since the adoption of the 154 game schedule. The final standing of the Cards that year was:

W.	L.	Pct.
89	65	.578

No American league team ever has won the pennant with fewer than ninety victories, the number of wins, incidentally, which the Cubs registered when they won the pennant in 1932. In 1929 the Cubs won the championship with 98 victories. Last year they were third with 86 won and 65 lost in a curtailed schedule.

Other Gents Must Win.

If the Cub big four duplicates its composite record of 63 won and 53 lost that means that the remainder of the staf will have to win 23 and lose 12 to give the Cubs as good a record as they had last year. The other pitchers who worked in the National league last season, as per the Cub roster at this date, are Charley Root, who won four and lost seven, and Roy Joiner, who won none and lost one.

Suppose the pitchers of the big four are as good as they were last year and Root and Joiner repeat. The sextet of pitchers who were in National league competition would turn in 67 wins and 60 losses.

The Cubs, however, have some bushers whom they naturally expect to win some games. On the foregoing hypothesis these rookies as a group will have to be better than .500 workmen in the National league. They were better than a .500 lot in the minors—then won 58 and lost 34. But they won't approach that figure in the National league. There will be four of these freshmen and perhaps two of them will stick. Two freshmen stuck last year, Lee and Joiner. Their joint record showed 13 wins and 15 losses.

Still Not So Good.

Continuing, then, with the hypothesis based on last year's accomplishments, let us suppose that two remaining rookies next season will be as good as two remaining rookies last season. Combining their totals with the six National league veterans on the Cub roster, we are confronted with a record for the year of 80 games won and 75 games lost. To stay in the confines of the 154 game schedule you have to forget about one of the losses.

Eighty games won would leave the Cubs ten games under the total with which they won the pennant in 1932.

St. Louis expects to win the 1935 pennant by as good a ratio as they won last season. The world champs finished the 1934 season with:

W.	L.	Pct.
95	58	.621

It is apparent from the foregoing that the six National league vets and the two remaining rookies of the Cubs will have to show vast improvement to win as many games in 1935 as the Cards did in 1934.

This Is All in Fun.

In so far as the Cubs' big four for 1935 are concerned, suppose we credit them with a season equivalent to the best they ever enjoyed in the league. We find the following:

	W.	L.	Year.
Lon Warneke	22	6	1932
Tex Carleton	17	11	1933
Bill Lee	13	14	1934
Larry French	18	13	1933
Totals	70	44

Of the four Lee is the only one who is likely to top his all time National league best. If you take ten losses off Bill's one National league season record and add it to his anticipated wins next year, the big four would turn in 80 wins. And what rabid Cub fan is wild eyed enough to think the big four is going to win an average of 20 games each in 1935 when their average was 15.9 in 1934.

Not a Chance, Folks!

If the big four gets its 70 wins to 44 losses as per their all time National league best, Root, Joiner, Roy Henshaw, Fabian Kowalik, Clay Bryant, and Hugh Casey will have to win 25 while losing 14. They haven't got a Chinaman's chance to turn in any such ratio.

It would seem that the vast array of Cub officials will do well to come out from behind the forest of mahogany desks and buy themselves at least one more pitcher of class.

CLUB NOT LIABLE WHEN BALL HITS FAN, COURT SAYS

A jury yesterday returned a directed verdict of not guilty in a $10,000 suit against the Chicago National league ball club by a fan who was struck on the head by a batted ball. The case was heard by Judge Chalmer C. Taylor of Bloomington, sitting in Circuit court.

John Mueller, 29 years old, a barber, 3505 Beach avenue, charged that he was struck by a foul ball batted by Don Hurst, then Philadelphia's first baseman, on Sunday, July 28, 1929, while sitting in a right field box at Wrigley field. The blow caused a fracture of the right cheek bone, Mueller said.

Judge Taylor sustained a motion for a directed verdict at the end of Mueller's testimony on the ground of the doctrin of assumed risk, holding that a person going to a baseball game assumes the risks connected with the sport.

Indiana Wrestlers Win from Vincennes Y. M. C. A.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Indiana university's Big Ten championship wrestling team opened its home schedule here tonight by defeating the Vincennes Y. M. C. A., 31 to 3. Vincennes' only victory was scored by its coach, Bob Emmons, former Illinois champion, who won a decision over Cellini in a 135 pound class bout.

REVOLTA, GHEZZI LEAD COAST GOLF WITH 68 SCORE

Dick Metz Ties for 2d at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Golf stars in their twenties dominated the play in the opening round of the Los Angeles open today. Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, Wis., tied for the lead with scores of 68, two under par.

Metz Ties for Second.

Tied for second place were two other youngsters, John Perelli, Lake Tahoe, and Dick Metz, bronzed Chicagoan. They traveled the 18 holes at a 69 clip.

Only four of the field of 130 starters took old man par into camp, but Stanley Kertes, Los Angeles; Willie Goggin, San Francisco, and Jimmy Hines, veteran Long Islander, slugged it out on even terms with 70 blows each.

Tied at 71 were Al Krueger, Beloit, Wis.; Henry Kaiser, Racine, Wis.; Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., national P. G. A. champion.

Enforce Mud Rule.

The initial round was played under a brilliant sun, but recent rains made the going heavy and there was little roll on the ball. The players were handicapped, too, in many cases by having to putt with mud on the balls, a rule being enforced against cleaning balls on the greens.

Many a ball was short of the green through carrying extra weight in mud and many a putt remained out of the cup on the same account.

Some first class performers were bracketed in the 74 rung, including Gene Sarazen, who has won practically all possible titles except the Los Angeles open; Olin Dutra, national open champion, and Denny Shute, former British open champion.

Flush Kidneys of Acid and Poisons

Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent. The right harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules — the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic. Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are backache, leg cramps, puffy eyes, moist palms and nervousness.

In addition a team of boxers from the University of Illinois will compete and there will be another team from Northwestern university. There is a possibility that a tournament center will be established in a twelfth state within the next few days.

It's Tougher Than That.

Even that can give you but a faint picture of the situation because before each of these newspapers holds its tournament other cities and towns and hamlets surrounding it will conduct bouts in order to enable them to send their best material into these sectional jousts.

For instance, if a boy wins his way to a place on the final big Golden Gloves team, say from Grand Rapids, it means that he has successfully finished on top in his meetings with representatives sent to the Grand Rapids Press tournament by the following newspapers in Michigan:

Muskegon Chronicle.
Bay City Times.
Pontiac Daily Press.
Jackson Citizen-Patriot.
Battle Creek Moon-Journal.
Ann Arbor News.
Kalamazoo Gazette.
Flint Journal.
Grand Rapids Press.

The same holds true of every other sectional tournament. The Davenport Times champions will represent territory from three states whose boundary lines come together nearby. These states are Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Eight Out of 10,000!

The territory surrounding every sectional tournament is combed and recombed for red blooded, hard punching kids who will be striving to win championships in the greatest amateur boxing spectacle presented in America and in the world.

A better understanding of the vastness of the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions may be had if one can visualize a huge scale—on the one side a team of eight—on the other an entry list of 10,000. The eight winners will have proved themselves, at one time or another within the next few weeks, superior to each one of the other entrants.

Chicagoans Start Training.

In Chicago something that was considerably louder than a rumble was heard during the week when more than 2,500 lads, each ambitious to win a Golden Gloves championship, went into training.

They will begin fighting their way toward the Tournament of Champions on the night of Feb. 11 when the south side sectional tournament opens at the White City arena. On Feb. 13 the west siders begin fighting at Community Center and on Feb. 19 the north side sectional meet opens at Loyola university gymnasium.

The eight champions from the three Chicago sectional centers will be Chicago's color bearers in the great Tournament of Champions.

Never before have so many as 2,500 Chicago boys sought Golden Gloves titles.

Bryan Defeats Minkley in Miami Amateur Golf

Miami, Fla., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—After more than a week of brilliant golf, Arnold Minkley of Cleveland lost to Curtis Bryan of Jacksonville, Fla., 4 and 3, in the semi-final round for the midwinter amateur championship at the Miami Country club today. In the other title division match Bob Gormly of Miami beat Henry Russell, 17 year old Miami school boy, on the 20th hole.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

TONTI TO MEET DAMEN TODAY IN K. OF C. LEAGUE

Races in the south and west divisions of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league will reach their climax this afternoon with some of the season's most important games on the schedule.

The first round race will end Jan. 27, with the teams being rebracketed into two divisions, based on their first round finish. A new schedule will then be played, with inter-divisional games in each, but only the upper division teams will have a chance to meet in the playoff for the league championship. The winner of the lower half playoff can get no better than fifth place.

With nearly every team in both divisions still battling for places in the upper half, plenty of action is assured. In the west section the feature contests will bring together Damen, league leader, and Tonti, which has won its last three games. St. Cyr vs. Carroll is another standout.

Calumet vs. Santa Maria and McHale vs. Loyola-Hyde Park are the features at White City in the south section. Loyola is leading the section, with the others tied for second place.

The schedules:

WEST DIVISION.
[4711 Madison street.]
Hennepin-Shields vs. Barry.
St. Cyr vs. Carroll.
Damen vs. Tonti.
Setters vs. Lafayette.

SOUTH DIVISION.
[White City.]
Calumet vs. Santa Maria.
Aquinas vs. Englewood.
McHale vs. Loyola-Hyde Park.
Quigley vs. Perez.

INDOOR DRIVERS TO COMPETE FOR TITLE TONIGHT

Twenty-three pilots will compete tonight in the seventh series of indoor auto races to be held at the 124th Field Artillery armory, largest indoor auto track in America.

The midseason championship race will top the card of eleven races. The winner of this 20 lap race will receive a cup from the Midwest Racing association.

Some of the best drivers ever to compete in auto races in Chicago will be in action. Tony Willaman, Milwaukee champion; Jimmy Nickells, Cincinnati; Wally Mitchell, Chicago, and others will compete in the big race.

Ted Tetterton, who won top honors in the outdoor races last summer, also will be seen in action. The qualifying trials will start at 7:30 o'clock and the eleven race program at 8.

State Handball Tourney to Be Held at Medinah

The Medinah club of Chicago has been awarded the Illinois state singles handball championship tournament. The event will be under the jurisdiction of the A. A. U. and will be played in the Medinah courts Feb. 11 to 16. The Medinah club has registered eleven contestants, including Dick Preston, club champion; Art Marquette, Dick Burns, H. Kahn, Jack Bloom, and A. J. Cavanaugh.

Classic League Bowlers Out to Cut Down Baby Ruth Five

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

For the first half of the Classic Bowling league race the cry was "Catch the Pabst Blue Ribbons!" As the second half of the season swings along the business at hand seems to be "Get the Baby Ruths!"

Thus it may be gathered that the Baby Ruths are leading, but their margin is so small that any of tonight's four matches at the Garden Recreation can change the complexion of the race. One game behind the pace setters are the Budweisers, Monarchs, Pabsts and Vrba Motors.

Tonight the pairings will be:
Pabst Blue Ribbons vs. Baby Ruths.
Edelweiss vs. Cardinals.
La Salle-Windsor vs. Monarch Beer.
Vrba Motors vs. Budweisers.

Randolph League.

Zajac's 747 wasn't the only 700 series turned in by members of the Randolph league. Limberg of Anheuser-Busch did not do badly with his games of 268, 222 and 220 for 710. Others who did well by themselves were: Geiser and Krisch of the Birk Brothers who had 691s, Omsberg of the Live Stock Press with 681, and Gauer of the same team who picked up 673. Another high count was the 679 of Malecki, anchor man of Sunkist Pies. Thursday's schedule:

7 O'CLOCK—Mary Ann Bread vs. Rebholz Gardens; Wagner and Hanson vs. Mason Mints; Curtiss Buy Jimmy vs. Mineralites; Greyhounds vs. Curtiss Butterfingers.

9 O'CLOCK—Mell-O Ice Cream vs. Birk Brothers; Burlington Route vs. Live Stock Press; Anheuser-Busch vs. Arlington Country Club; Sunkist Pies vs. Goldammer's Milford.

North End League.

A poor last game prevented the Miller High Lifes from setting a season record in the North End Traveling league. After opening with 1,114 and 1,154 they slumped to 960 for a 3,218 total, which gave them two games from the Birk Brothers, who collected 3,099. Gus Fetz of the Millers set the pace for the league with a 697 series. Tomorrow night the Butterfingers and Milfords will meet at the Gold Coast alleys to break their tie for first place. The schedule:

Milfords vs. Butterfingers at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Superbs vs. Fox De Luxe at Kaadland, 9 p. m.; Millers vs. Idle Hours at Idle Hour, 9 p. m.; Westers vs. Michelobs at North Town, 7 p. m.; Samuelsons vs. Birk Bros. at Lincoln Square, 7 p. m.

Here and There.

Bowlers young and old, members of the Randolph league, and various league officials and their friends are awaiting Thursday evening, the time set for the bowlers' ball in the grand ballroom of the Medinah club. Among those who will be present are Elmer Baumgarten of Milwaukee, secretary of the American Bowling Congress; Betty Ramsey, president of the Chicago Women's Bowling association, and Al Sindelar, secretary of the city and state men's association. . . . Latest 300 games: Walter Tesch and William Flesch of the Northwest Suburban Traveling league.

Fifty councils are represented in the fourth annual state Knights of Columbus tournament now in progress weekends at the Congress Recreation center. . . . The last half of a doubles sweepstake will be rolled today at Goldammer's Karlov Recreation. . . . Suburban bowlers tonight will wind up the two day individual sweepstakes at the Niles Center alleys. . . . The entry list for the annual Elks national tournament will be open until March 1. The meet will get under way March 23 at the Windy City alleys. . . . Jerry Peck closed the lists yesterday for the 23d annual Windy City tournament, one of the big local events of the year. First firing will start next Saturday.

Another of the North End Traveling league's sweepstakes is set for next Saturday and Sunday at the Gold Coast alleys. At the last sweep the Birks and Milfords topped the 22 teams entered with 3,123 apiece.

On South Side Alleys.

Although handicapped by a substitution, the James Whalens pulled the third game out of the fire, 1,058 to 1,057, in a Woodlawn Major league series with the Woodlawn. H. W. Bernhardt's 277 finish was the clincher. Joe Strand of the league leading Crest Recreations topped the individuals with 715. Other leaders were: Sherman, 696; Lassen, 692; Bernhardt, 684; Carlson, 668; Hile, 646; Kuglin, 634; Darling, 630; Kluge, 629; Hess, 626; Brown, 612; Winsberg, 608; McClintock, 605, and Weiss, 602. . . . The Birk Superbs piled up a 3,335 series in the Bruck Major league. Games were 1,089, 1,059, and 1,187. Individuals contributing high totals were J. Plunge, 696; W. Narten, 693; W. Boyce, 677; R. Hayes, 675; W. Marshall, 674, and W. Gausselin, 673. . . . The Wesley Smiths strengthened their lead in the Stevenson & Schalk National league by taking two games from the second place Stevenson & Schalk team. Foremost individuals were: Halgren, 674; Stephenson, 647; Gasey, 642; B. Levine, 629 [including high game of 276]; McClintock, 624, and Johnson, 615. . . . Mrs. T. Kennedy and E. Rehfuss totaled 1,118 to win the mixed doubles tournament at Stevenson & Schalk's. Second were Mrs. Anna Wightman and Al Blomant, 993.

Windy City League.

Jim Krizek rolled high game of 288 as the Windy City Major league resumed operations. Krizek's 677 also was high series for the week. Trailing him were: Lane, 668; Lenzen, 663; Coles, 658, and Jarosik, 651. Tomorrow's schedule:

McKesson's Old Crow vs. Betinis Boosters, Charles Denby Cigars vs. O'Keefe Coals Curtiss Buy-Jiminy vs. J. M. Kralovecs, Blazek Tailors vs. Pilsen Olympia, Bender-Bluemke Dairy vs. Lauterbach Coals, Vrba Motors vs. Mayor Cerny, Arcade Tavern vs. Vogel Bros., Mineralities vs. Soper Bros.

By winning two games while the Kralovecs lost a pair the General Food Marts went into a tie for first place in the Windy City Junior league. Joe Martin was high with a 655 series, one more pin than Eddie Thielen coaxed to fall.

On North Side Alleys.

New pins held down scores in the Gold Coast Major league, but apparently they did not affect Williams, who crashed through with 635, and Krause, who came through with a 228 game. The Curtiss Butterfingers lead with 32 won and 16 lost, which is a margin of three games over the Luxor Cigars. A. Sandquist of North Town showed how to massage the pins with a 683 series in the Northwest Traveling league. J. Mutl with 661 and Japzyk with 641 were next. . . . The Orlikoskis won three more games to increase their lead in the Chicago Junior Traveling league to five games. The Parker-Thomas team broke the league record with a 2994 count. M. Kleich's 663 was high individual series.

About the Women.

The Monte Cristo's 2,817 is high in the Chicago Women's city tournament. In the doubles Grace Smith and Angie Zipperle lead with 1,255 and Alice Sullivan with 677 is showing the way in the singles. First place in the all events at present is the property of Alice Strassburger with 1,782. The meet will end next Saturday and Sunday. . . . Sara Evans collected 595 for high series of the week in the Congress league. Among the high games were those of L. Stellmacher, 200; B. Kleine, 202; M. Schroeder, 213; Fritzi Trettin, 203; Edith Kirg, 201; Celia Grob, 224; H. Wilman, 201; S. Evans, 210; M. Gordon, 244; H. Foell, 212, and G. Hannon, 209. . . . The Budweisers' 2,516 was high series in the Samuelson Major league, while Hector's Beauty Shop's 898 was second best game. Individual sharpshooters were: M. Ladene, 559; E. Sullivan, 559; I. Wirth, 543; L. Walder, 542; B. MacEwan, 538; F. Scholz, 536; T. Berlinger, 532; C. Dick, 532; M. Shaw, 531; B. Brown, 525; M. Bendick, 521; F. Strohmeyer, 522; S. Walz, 519; E. Haisch, 508; M. Sbertoli, 506; I. Johnson, 502, and F. Luecker, 506. . . . Pins a-plenty were spilled in the Monte Cristo-Lorel Rug league, with these women doing the heavy work: A. Hogman, 546; E. Ehlmann, 532 [including high game of 212]; C. Ritchie, 518; T. Hirschmann, 516; I. Dedic, 515; M. Jenkinson, 514; E. Ehrns, 513, and B. Brown, 512.

Bolton, Senator Catcher, Signs Contract for 1935

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Cliff Bolton, young catcher who was a holdout for more than half of last season, today signed with the Washington Senators. Bolton's contract was the tenth returned to the Senators. President Clark Griffith said he expected to have no trouble with holdouts this season, although two pitchers, Pettitt and Cohen, already have rejected contracts sent them.

Grant Defeats Bell in Miami Biltmore Final

Miami, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Bryan M. Grant of Atlanta, national clay courts champion, today won the third annual Miami Biltmore tennis tournament, defeating Berkley Bell of New York in straight sets, 6—4, 6—2, 6—3.

LOUIS, IT SEEMS, STILL HAS A FEW BOXERS TO BEAT

King Levinsky May Get His Chance Next.

Boxing fans are wondering about available future opponents for Joe Louis following the hard hitting Detroit boxer's conquest of Patsy Perroni of Cleveland at Detroit Jan. 4. Perroni, ranked No. 7 for a shot at Max Baer's heavyweight championship, was Louis' thirteenth consecutive victim. The general opinion seems to be there is no suitable foe remaining for Louis, 1934 Golden Gloves light heavyweight titleholder, except Baer himself. A glimpse at ratings and records of candidates proves this belief erroneous. A ranking by experts throughout America released just before 1935 got under way tends to assure fans competition for Louis still is plentiful. The concensus follows:

Champion—Max Baer, Oakland, Cal.
1—Primo Carnera, Sequals, Italy, former champion.
2—Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J.
3—Art Lasky, Minneapolis, Minn., now of Los Angeles, Cal.
4—Max Schmeling, Berlin, Germany, former champion.
5—King Levinsky, Chicago.
6—Jack Peterson, London, England.
7—Patsy Perroni, Cleveland.
8—Joe Louis, Detroit.

Levinsky May Be Next.

Of course, Perroni's defeat by Louis displaces him as the No. 7 contender and lifts Joe into that position. An analysis of the other warriors in the list reveals Levinsky is the most logical to give the Detroit wizard his next professional test. A week ago Levinsky's handlers expressed willingness to sign for such a contest. Co-Manager Harold Steinman contends the King punches too hard for Louis. He added the Detroit fighter has not yet met a hard hitter, a factor which would be in Levinsky's favor. The latter is in Florida, eager to get back into action after his setback Dec. 28, when Champion Baer registered a knockout in the second round.

Among the other likely antagonists for Louis are Hamas and Lasky. Although each is more than anxious to face Baer they may have to whip Joe to earn the match. Inasmuch as the former Golden Gloves king is the best drawing card in the central states, financial terms will not be a barrier. Lasky is booked to clash with James J. Braddock at New York Feb. 1 and Hamas is matched to oppose Schmeling at Hamburg or Frankfort, Germany, March 10.

Although the impending Hamas-Schmeling bout is attracting interest because of its international aspect, the winner is not expected to be in line for a title chance unless he vanquishes one or two of the other leaders. The result of the Braddock-Lasky fracas won't affect the standing of either as far as gaining ground in the championship chase goes. In either case the winner may have to whip Louis to earn his objective.

Carnera Losing High Rating.

Next is Carnera, now on tour in South America. Despite Primo's high rating, he must return soon and eliminate a few contenders if he hopes to be rewarded with a return tussle with Baer. The giant from Italy has done nothing since being dethroned by Max last June to merit consideration.

Those not listed in the current ratings, but who may give Louis serious contention, include Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion; Johnny Risko, Cleveland spoiler; Natie Brown, Washington, D. C.; Al Ettore, Philadelphia, and Tony Cancela, Tampa, Fla. Loughran recently won a twelve round decision over Arturo Godoy of Chile at Buenos Aires. Risko refused an offer to clash with Louis at Pittsburgh last Friday, but only because his schedule could not accommodate such a bout. Brown perhaps will be tickled pink to receive an opportunity against Louis. As will Cancela, stablemate of Levinsky and Ettore.

Louis vs. Ramage Again.

Louis will clash with Lee Ramage for the second time at Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 21. Louis, behind on points, knocked out Ramage in the eighth round Dec. 14.

Orville Drouillard, Windsor, Ont., featherweight, will have a weight advantage over Paul Lee, Indianapolis, Ind., bantamweight, in their eight round main event tomorrow at Marigold Gardens. It will not be new to Lee for with the exception of engagements against Frank Mirabel, Dave Barry, Frankie Wolfram and a few others, most of his opposition has come from featherweights. The Indianapolis fighter stopped Mirabel, and beat Barry in eight rounds and Wolfram in ten. However, Drouillard has demonstrated that he is not averse to giving away weight himself. In his eight round draw with Bus Breese Jan. 4 the latter scaled 136 pounds.

Holman Williams, Detroit Negro lightweight, will make his second Chicago appearance at Midway arena tomorrow in a six round bout with Harry Booker. Williams knocked out Lee Shepard, Eddie Carroll, Battling Gizzy, and Tommy Corbett in succession in recent weeks.

TWO GAMES ON TODAY'S CARD IN AMATEUR HOCKY

Chicago Amateur Hocky league teams will play another double-header at the Stadium this afternoon with the first game starting at 2 o'clock and bringing the Whiting Macs against Waukegan. Then the C. Y. O. All-Stars will meet Oak Park.

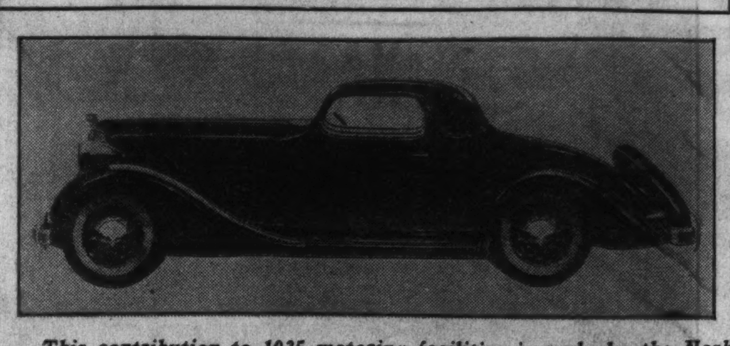
The latter game is important in the Stadium division, for these clubs are tied with Postl's for third place and the winner will go into a deadlock for second place with the Baby Ruths.

Waukegan and Whiting Macs, playing in the metropolitan division, will be out for their first victory. Another game in this division will find Vodrazka Hornets, the leaders, traveling to Highland Park.

If ice conditions are anywhere near favorable for play, the Intermediate league will open its season this afternoon with three games at 55th and Kolin avenue, the first at 1 o'clock. The schedule calls for Chi-Clowns vs. Berwyn Shamrocks; Americans clashing with Brighton Troys and St. Nicholas meeting Ravenswood Athletic club sextet.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

1935 LAFAYETTE COUPE



This contribution to 1935 motoring facilities is made by the Nash Motors company—its Lafayette special coupe with rumble seat.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

CUT AUTO LICENSE RATES.

Chicago, Jan. 5. — I thoroughly stand with Mr. Si Mayer, president of the Automobile Club of Illinois, on behalf of his excellent effort to lower the cost for Illinois' licenses. Is it not utterly ridiculous for owners of trucks to lay down from $200 to $250 for a license? For the purpose, that amount is seemingly a small fortune. Does not the city already receive one cent from the gasoline tax, which doubles the taxation on Illinois motorists? The duty of the state should be to make the burden of taxation on Illinois motorists as light as possible. Is the burden light? No! For the benefit of the state and the inhabitants as a whole, automobile license rates and also the city vehicle tax rates should be reduced. Paying out from $15 to $20 at once is a tremendous sum to operate one's auto on the city's streets and the state's highways. VICTOR WOOLF.

LICENSE FEES.

Cicero, Ill., Jan. 6.—Sometime ago Mr. Edward J. Hughes, secretary of state, said that he would try to have all 1935 license fees reduced. So far, the fees are still the same, so what?

Some states have license fees reduced every year; I mean that every year the value of the car depreciates and that it applies to the license fees also.

I have a 1929 Ford and I am not making as much as when I bought the car, so I think they are too high; buying gas and oil and paying taxes on parts, etc.

Here is what I would like to know: If the state fee is to pay for the building of highways and roads, and the vehicle tax for the city streets, what is the gas tax for?

I'd like to hear from others now that we have to apply for new licenses.
J. IMUNDO.

AUTOS AND REPEAL.

Leland, Ill., Jan. 4.—It is rather tiresome to read the ever recurring groan of the fanatic drys about the alarming increase of fatal auto accidents due to repeal. While it is probably true there has been some increase in intoxicated driving, still there are some contributing factors which all may well consider.

In the first place, there has been a noticeable increase in trafic flow in 1934, accompanied with a noticeable and dangerous increase of speed in later car models.

The later cars have such high hoods and small windshield that the visibility is greatly decreased. I drive a late model and cannot see the front fenders.

Quite recently I saw a small woman driving a high powered, late model, expensive sedan in trafic in Aurora. She had evidently slid down some in the seat to reach the pedals and she was looking for her path through the steering wheel.

Try it! Slide down in your seat and view trafic through the steering wheel and see how much you can see. So all the blame for fatal accidents should not be placed on the repeal act.
FRED S. BRADY.

SPEEDING TRUCKS.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 7.—In compliance with the city's drives to end trafic killing, I propose we boycott vicious driving truck firms—by publishing their names.

Wonderbolts, Schwabens to Clash Today

BY OFFSIDE.

The Wieboldt Wonderbolts, only undefeated team in Chicago soccer, who are tuning up for the coming National Cup series, will meet the Schwabens, leaders in the International league, today in which is regarded as their hardest test of the season. They will meet at DePaul field, Sheffield and Webster avenues, at 2:30 o'clock. A preliminary between the Hansa seconds and the Schwaben seconds will start at 1 o'clock.

Another attempt to play off two National Amateur challenge cup games will be made today. If the weather man permits, the Viennas, fast German team, will take on Sloboda, last year's western finalist, at Kedzie and Elston avenue. Both are from the International league and rate equally in the standing.

The other cup match will be between the Armours of the Major league and Bratislava, at 59th and Wood streets. The Armours are second in the Major league.

The Sparta Leaders of the professional league face a hard match today when they meet Harvey United, which last week whipped the Maccabees in a Peel Cup battle. The game starts at 2:30 o'clock at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue.

Road Engineer Measures Skid on Highways

Skids—the apprehension if not the fear of every motorist—have received scientific study by R. A. Moyer, assistant professor of highway engineering at Iowa State college.

Tests showed that at 35 miles an hour on a rainy day there is less chance of an accidental slip on an untreated gravel road than on any of twenty-five types of pavement on which the experiments were made.

Surprising results were obtained on that variety of pavements classified generally by the layman as "black top." Motorists are inclined to associate all asphalt materials with the official warning signs reading "Slow—slippery when wet."

The engineer found that a sandstone rock asphalt surface offers more resistance to skidding than portland cement concrete. On the other hand, a fine aggregate type asphalt plank and an asphalt penetration macadam with soft seal coat were both dangerously slippery when wet.

The Feel of the Road.

These are technical descriptions of various types of "black top" difficult even for an engineer to distinguish from a fast running automobile. So as long as highway departments continue to build or maintain dangerous roads, it behooves a motorist to slacken his pace when changing from one type of pavement to another until the driver has the feel of the new road.

The relative skid resistance of the various types of road surface were reported by Mr. Moyer in co-efficients of friction. By co-efficients of friction is meant the ratio of the force causing the skid to the load on the tire.

The engineer found the following coefficients of friction of rubber tires on these materials when wet: sandstone rock asphalt, .59 to .77; sheet asphalt, .47 to .63; bitulithic, .50 to .63; asphaltic concrete, .65 to .60; asphaltic retread, .40 to .51; road oil mix, .35 to .50; penetration macadam, .20 to .28; repressed brick with grout filler, .35 to .48; vertical brick with asphalt filler, .38 to .52; portland cement concrete, rough finish, .37 to .48; portland cement concrete, smooth finish, .40 to .46; medium hard tar macadam, .66 to .47; oiled gravel, .45 to .46; untreated gravel, .68 to .71.

What Figures Mean.

"From a theoretical analysis," Mr. Moyer reported to the highway research board, "it is deduced that to be reasonably free from the danger of skidding a road surface when wet should have a straight skid co-efficient of .40 or higher at forty miles an hour and a static or side skid co-efficient of .50 or higher at thirty miles an hour.

"Although the highest co-efficients were obtained on high type asphaltic surfaces," the engineer commented in another part of his report, "the co-efficients obtained on the asphalt penetration macadam with soft seal coat and the fine aggregate type asphalt plank were among the lowest co-efficients mentioned.

"A maintenance patrolman reported frequent skidding accidents on the penetration macadam when wet. This report checks with the finding of these tests. It is interesting to observe that by providing a mineral surfacing on asphalt plank, the co-efficients of friction were raised to the values obtained for wet portland cement concrete."

Other Conclusions.

Other conclusions from the study were as follows:

1. An important factor in surfaces having high co-efficients of friction is the presence of gritty particles which give the surface a "sand paper" texture. Conversely, the glazing or polishing effect of trafic on certain surfaces is responsible in part for the decrease in the co-efficients observed for these surfaces tested wet.

2. The increase in co-efficient obtained for the tire with the larger contact area but with the same tread design substantiates the theory that the total frictional resistance for tires on road surfaces is equal to the true frictional resistance for the two materials plus the mechanical resistance which increases with the contact area of the tire.

3. On wet surfaces the squeegee action of the edges in the tread design of the new tires provides a more intimate contact of the tire with the road surface, which reduces the lubricating effect of the water, and thereby increases both the true frictional and the mechanical resistance for the two materials.

SAWYER, BRISKO TO RENEW AUTO FEUD THURSDAY

The rivalry between Johnny Sawyer and Frankie Brisko, Milwaukee auto race drivers, will be renewed Thursday night at the International amphitheater when they clash in one of the events on the midget auto race program.

Thorne Donnelly, Chicago sportsman, has built a car said to be the fastest midget ever constructed. It will be driven in Thursday night's race by Jimmy Snyder.

Ronney Householder of California is here with a new car. Harold Shaw will make his only Chicago appearance in this race.

COALS VS. CHICAGOANS.

The Oberheide Coals, formerly the P. J. Cullerton's, will meet Halick's Chicagoans in a basketball game at Portage Park fieldhouse, Central and Berteau avenues, tonight. The game between two girls' teams will start at 7:30 o'clock.

N. Y. AUTO SHOW SET DEPRESSION MARK IN SALES

BY HAL FOUST.

The annual automobile show in New York closed last night with new sales records for motor exhibitions during the depression. At the same time a similar display of 1935 cars opened a week's run in Detroit. The annual show in Chicago's Coliseum will be held from Jan. 26 to Feb. 2 inclusive.

The week in New York demonstrated that there is a market for the 1935 automobile. Unofficial reports (there was no official announcement) said that attendance dwindled toward the middle of the week, but that the number of retail buyers increased.

The Detroit show has more than usual significance this year. The manufacturing city for the first time will entertain the annual meeting of the National Automobile Dealers' association. Approximately 5,000 are expected to attend.

Richberg to Speak.

The Washington brain trust is alert to its job of keeping the dealers in line on the code. Donald Richberg, new head keeper of the Blue Eagle, will be one of the main speakers. Joseph G. Roberts, also of the National Recovery administration, will likewise be in Detroit.

Inquiries in Detroit last week indicated that any frank, adverse criticism of the New Deal will be promptly suppressed. Manufacturers in all likelihood will also have little to say. Speakers on the program for the manufacturers include R. H. Grant, vice president of the General Motors corporation; B. E. Hutchinson, treasurer of the Chrysler corporation; William J. Cameron of the Ford Motor company, and E. H. McCarty, president of the Nash Motors company.

The New York and the Chicago shows in past years have been the only exhibitions sponsored by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, recently renamed the Automobile Manufacturers' association. This year the shows are under the auspices of the local dealers.

Ford in Exhibitions.

The change in management has brought Henry Ford into the exhibitions. He was not a member of the association. His participation added much to the New York show and his associates said he will repeat in Chicago.

Outside of this addition to the displays, the Coliseum event from the public viewpoint will be about as it was in other years, an array of the new models (the only opportunity to see all of them under one roof) interspersed with informative demonstrations of current engineering advancements incorporated in the vehicles. Interest will center on the main show, since the manufacturers, to reduce expenses, have abandoned their independent exhibits in hotels this year.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Oldsmobile has announced as its 1935 cars a new six and a new straight eight, both bigger and roomier. Both cars will retain all the engineering advances of 1934 and will add to them important new developments of the past 12 months. Among these improvements are:

The solid steel "turret top" body by Fisher, having as an integral part a roof stamped from a solid sheet of seamless steel. The body has steel protection for the passengers on all sides, top and bottom. A streamline design in which the entire car slopes gracefully from the new radiator, back over the slanting windshield, rounded top and to the rear bumper in one sweeping line, accentuated by the single piece streamline fenders.

An X-type frame, 40 per cent stronger and more rigid than those of previous models. A complete system of sound proofing of chassis, engine and body. Roomier interiors with ample head and leg space, widened seats and smart new fittings.

Redistribution of weight to permit all passengers to ride between the axles, thus adding to comfort. This is done by moving the motor and the seats about five inches forward from the 1934 position. Longer wheelbase on both cars.

Approximately 500,000 people—including 150,000 in Chicago—attended 1935 Ford V-8 salons in ten Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa cities during the last week, it was estimated by W. K. Edmunds, in charge of activities in the Chicago branch area of the Ford Motor company.

In addition to salons at the Edgewater Beach, Chicago Beach, and Congress hotels and in Guyon's Paradise ballroom in Chicago, exhibitions were held in Peoria, Aurora, Elgin, Rockford, Bloomington, Danville, South Bend, Gary, and Davenport.

Creating new records with the new year the Plymouth Motor corporation reported that retail sales of its 1935 models for the first week of January were more than double those of the same week a year ago. The new models were introduced formally at the New York Automobile show Jan. 5.

President D. S. Eddins of Plymouth announced the sales record. He said dealers delivered 3,972 new cars at retail during the week, compared with 1,690 units during the corresponding week of 1934.

Amplifying his announcement of prices of the two new Chevrolet lines for 1935, W. E. Holler, general sales manager, stated that enclosed knee action, optional on the master de luxe models, will be available at an additional charge of $20 list.

Mr. Holler predicted that at least 90 per cent of persons buying master models in 1935 would exercise the option and obtain knee action at the small price difference involved. He emphasized the fact that knee action will be built in at the factory, not installed by the dealer.

DEFAULTS BRING CRISIS TO LOCAL TAXING BODIES

Many Districts Fail to Meet Bond Debt.

Inefficiency and waste of previous administrations, delay in levying taxes, the low rate of tax collections and heavy serial maturities have brought the finances of several of the major local taxing bodies face to face with a critical situation.

Bonds of the corporate city of Chicago, Chicago board of education, Lincoln park district and south park district are in good standing. Both the city and the board of education have had good fortune in refunding maturing bonds. In addition the latter was helped by an RFC loan later taken over by private investors.

Both the Lincoln park district and the south park district had funds available from the sale of bonds for construction of improvements. The south park district "sold" its own tax anticipation warants to this fund and used the proceeds to retire maturing bonds, and the Lincoln park district "invested' the funds in maturing bonds.

Other Divisions in Default.

The sanitary district of Chicago, Cook county, the west park district, the Cook county forest preserve, and sixteen of the nineteen small park districts, however, find their financial affairs, for the most part, in sorry shape. Every indication points to a continuing state of default for this group of taxing bodies unless the entire funded debt structure is revamped.

The sanitary district, for instance, reported bonded debt and interest in default of $19,468,735 on Dec. 17, 1934, against $17,475,647 on May 17, 1934, and $12,052,500 on Jan. 1, 1933. Total bonded debt was $143,420,055. By Nov. 27, 1934, the district had been able to collect only 62 per cent of taxes levied for 1930, 1931, and 1932 to cover bond and interest charges. Due to dislocation of the taxing machinery the taxes for bonds and interest were not even placed in collection until after maturity date of the interest and bonds which they were supposed to cover.

Sanitary Bonds Below Par.

It is small wonder, then, that the district's bonds are in default, that its bonds are quoted below par and that it is unable to take advantage of the extremely low interest rates now being enjoyed by solvent communities.

In addition the sanitary district has bonds totaling $7,680,500 maturing this year; $9,541,500 maturing in 1936, and $9,543,500 in 1937.

Cook county on Dec. 1, 1934, had slightly more than $50,000,000 bonds outstanding of which $6,514,410 were in default as to principal. In addition, there was $2,128,960 matured interest in default, excluding interest accrued on defaulted bonds.

The notorious west park board muddled through one crisis after another for years. By Jan. 1, 1934, defaulted bonded debt and interest totaled $1,257,380. By May 2, 1934, the total had risen to $3,018,543.

Try to Refinance Debts.

With the installation of Harry Joseph as commissioner numerous economies were effected and on Jan. 18, 1934, a plan to refund not only bonds and interest, but also the heavy floating debt was offered. The plan met with indifferent success.

West park district bonds outstanding on Dec. 17, 1934, aggregated $14,432,070, of which $2,331,000 bore maturity dates earlier than Dec. 17.

However, the sanitary district and the West Park board have made interest payments or will make them within the next few days. Tomorrow the sanitary district will take up coupons totaling $951,000 which were due in July and August, 1934. In addition, on Jan. 17 it will redeem $682,000 of coupons due in September, October, and November of last year. These will be paid from 1933 tax collections. Announcement of these payments has served to strengthen market prices of some of the district's issues. The West Park board paid approximately $267,000 of coupons January 1.

Are Heavily Overbonded.

The majority of the nineteen small park districts are heavily overbonded. Out of total bonded debt of $12,989,667, bonds and interest in default aggregated $2,197,432 on Dec. 31, 1934. One district, Edgebrook, has no bonds outstanding, and another, Calumet, has $82,000 of bonds outstanding, all of which are in good standing.

The park consolidation act has combined Lincoln, south, west, and the small park districts into one park district. It provides, however, that payment of principal and interest on obligations of each district shall come out of the taxes levied on taxpayers in the district that existed before the consolidation became effective.

Under Illinois law a taxing body can levy taxes only to an amount exactly equal to contemplated expenditures, plus only a small amount, "loss and cost," for uncollectables. It provides for little excess for probable tax delinquencies. The only method of picking up delinquencies as large as those recently experienced is by a deficiency levy added to succeeding years' taxes. This throws the burden from those who do not pay on those who do pay.

U. S. Imposing 50 Year Tax Load: Magill

The American taxpayers will be saddled with a tax burden that will stifle independent business enterprise of the country for the next 50 years if the present orgy of national spending continues, Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Utility Investors, declared yesterday.

Dr. Magill charged that consumers, taxpayers, and owners of utility securities alike are victims of fraud and deception in the present government development of hydroelectric plants under the guise of soil erosion and flood control, and in the Tennessee Valley Authority "yardstick."

"The fundamental economies of private business are not observed in government enterprises," he said.

Cites Chicago Sanitary District.

Evidence of waste and extravagance revealed in the Chicago sanitary district graft conspiracy trial was cited as an example of what may be expected as a result of federal government operations.

"While the integrity of the administration itself is not questioned," explained Dr. Magill, "the chances for loose accounting, padded pay rolls, and 'gravy' in the letting of contracts are things that history and experience in politically managed business show will be a likely inheritance.

"No audit of the famous project covering the cost of government propaganda in support of the TVA has been made public, but the taxpayer wonders at the enormous expense, possible waste in construction costs, and possible serious errors in determining real needs of sections for power supply.

Hold TVA Experiment Costly.

"No one knows what the TVA experiment will cost. What it will eventually cost staggers the imagination. Some authorities estimate the Tennessee fiasco will saddle more than one billion dollars upon the taxpayers."

"Offshoots of this notorious waste of money are already beginning to crop up," Dr. Magill declared, in leveling his fire on a bill introduced in congress last week by Senator Henrik Shipstead, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite. The bill proposes an Upper Mississippi Authority to improve navigability and provide development of electric power.

"This bill," he continued, "is the stepson of the TVA and a forerunner of what may be expected if present plans of the government are allowed to continue. Such a program may be the beginning of the end for private business."

Taxpayers to Pay Deficits.

In answer to the contention that government power projects will cut electric power costs, Dr. Magill calls attention to the other side of the picture. The taxpayers will be called upon to meet the deficits, he pointed out, and the ultimate result will be far more costly to them.

"What politically controled business means in the way of padded pay rolls and jewelry store prices for hardware necessities is not a new or surprising story," Dr. Magill pointed out. He also referred to the old Inland Waterways corporation, never self-supporting, as an example of the low resistance of congressmen to pork barrel bills. The waterway agency paid no taxes, took tax money for part of its support, and interfered with railroads, which pay heavy taxes, he asserted.

ECONOMIC CLUB TOLD BIG FIRMS' PROFITS MODEST

Proof that large industries have not sucked up the wealth of the country through excessive profits was submitted to the Economic club of Chicago yesterday by Bertram J. Kahn, chairman of the board of the Kuppenheimer & Co., during a forum on the profit and loss system in the Mid-Day club quarters at 38 South Dearborn street.

Basing his address on a new volume, "Industrial Profits in the United States" by Dr. Ralph C. Epstein, Mr. Cahn proceeded to show that all corporations averaged but 7 per cent net on capital, with this figure falling as low as 2 per cent in depression years. He also showed that corporations with less than $1,000,000 capital showed nearly twice as much profit as their larger brothers. Studie covered the period between 1919 and 1931.

While admitting that there may be some need of regulation, business does not need any government competition, control, or regimentation, Mr. Cahn declared. The present industrial order and the political order are so closely related and dependent upon each other, he warned, that wiping out the profit and loss system would lead to destruction of the country's democratic system of government.

Dean Ralph E. Heilman of the Northwestern university school of commerce, presided. More than 100 persons attended, and a majority of them participated in the discussions.

JEWEL TEA CO. SALES INCREASE 13.1% DURING 1934

The Jewel Tea company yesterday reported sales for the last four weeks of December as $1,422,412, an increase of 13.1 per cent over the $1,257,705 for the same period of 1933.

Sales for the 52 weeks of 1934 totaled $17,161,452 against $14,355,229 in 1933, an increase of 19.55 per cent. Six of the 13 periods of four weeks each produced gains of more than 20 per cent. The greatest advance shown was during the 25th to 28th weeks when a 29 per cent rise was recorded. The least was in the first four weeks of the year, just under 11 per cent.

Exhibits Here Prove Upturn in Furniture

Promises of the best year for the furniture industry since the advent of the depression appeared here last week as 8,000 buyers, representing the entire nation, descended on Chicago for its two major furniture shows.

Attendance has broken all records and sales have exceeded even the fondest hopes entertained by exhibitors prior to the events. Attendance at the Merchandise Mart reached 3,417 persons yesterday, the end of the first week. This was 78 per cent above last year's total of 1,970. At the American Furniture Mart all-time buyer registration records were broken with the total reaching 4,446. Estimates of business booked vary widely but some quarters placed the figure as high as a hundred million dollars.

Buyers Are Enthusiastic.

Buyer enthusiasm is running high. Dealer stocks are extremely low, prices have reached a more stable level and consumer purchasing power has gained sharply, with the result that heavy sales have been reported from the opening day.

Speculative buying which marked the July shows of 1933, when dealers laid in heavy stocks fearing the NRA would send prices soaring, is entirely absent this year, according to leading manufacturers.

Lamp and floor covering manufacturer are sharing equally in the purchasing boom. Many are showing sales 50 per cent above last year, while December for some exceeded the full years of 1928 or 1929. E. P. Schuneman, district manager here for the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet company, said sales have been excellent, running well in advance of last year, despite the fact that new patterns and lines will not be available for another month.

Carpet Sales Above Last Year.

F. I. Monahan, district manager for Mohawk Carpet Mills, estimated an increase in sales of 30 per cent over last year. He said buyers are enthusiastic and are looking more for quality this year instead of price.

A. Terrell, vice president and general manager of the Simmons company, leading furniture makers, declared this year's purchasing is founded on the most solid basis in several years. Sales of the company have jumped sharply, he said, but these are based on evidence of a genuine demand for goods. He said 1934 collections of the company were exceptionally good and that credit losses were small.

Buyers attending the showing of S. Karpen & Bros. during the first three days of last week exceeded all of last January, according to E. S. Munson, sales manager. Sales have been 50 per cent above last year and about equal to the show last July, which normally is heavier than the January event.

Expect Gain of 25 Per Cent.

The Karpen company expects 1935 to witness a gain of at least 25 per cent over 1934 in its business and this figure can easily reach 33 per cent, Mr. Munson believes.

December business of the Mutual-Sunset Lamp company, one of the country's largest lamp concerns, was better than for all of 1928 or 1929, said S. Thau, president.

P. E. Kroehler, a leading furniture manufacturer with factories in many sections of the country, said he believes prices are now stabilized and if there is any change it will be upward.

T. G. Reed, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, said this year's show is the biggest in the Mart's history. Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Furniture Mart, said 90 per cent of exhibitors are doing more business than they expected.

Market dates for the midseason and summer shows of the two organizations were set yesterday for May 6 to 11, and July 8 to 20, respectively.

ADVERTISING EXPANDS 16 PCT. IN LAST YEAR; TREND STILL UPWARD

Advertising linage increased approximately 16 per cent last year over 1933 and now seems definitly in a rising trend, according to a survey just completed by Printer's Ink.

Farm papers and radio led the upturn with increases of 33 per cent each. Magazines followed with a gain of 29 per cent, outdoor advertising was next with a boost of 12 per cent, while newspapers had an increase of 10 per cent.

The study points out that newspaper advertising varied least through the fluctuating business activity from 1921 to 1934. From an index figure of 98 in 1921 volume rose to 119 in 1929 and then started a steady decline, which was halted at 67 in 1933 and now stands at 74.

While the indices make no attempt to estimate volume in dollars, other data indicate the total rose above $735,000,000, with newspaper advertising amounting to $500,000,000 and magazine about $110,000,000. Radio volume is placed at $70,000,000, while outdoor advertising approximated $40,000,000 and farms papers' $15,000,000. Accurate data are not available on direct mail, car card, and business paper advertising, Printer's Ink says:

The indices are based on the quantity of advertising, indicated by linage, for newspapers, magazines, and farm papers, and by gross cost of chain time for radio. Combined monthly billings of 40 per cent of outdoor advertising was used for that index.

"Business conditions and business confidence are quickly reflected in advertising," the survey says.

IDLE INSURANCE IS OPPOSED BY MANUFACTURERS

The Illinois Manufacturers' association's directors yesterday declared against measures now before congress and the state legislature for unemployment insurance.

Industry would be saddled with further tax burdens and unemployment would be increased as a result of reduced consumption in the wake of added costs of manufactured goods, the association set forth in resolutions to the state and national law makers.

"These bills place the chief burden upon the industrial employers of the nation, based upon a percentage tax on payrolls," said the resolution previously recommended by the association's industrial relations committee. It adds that other countries have not been successful with this type of insurance, even with provisions that workmen pay a certain percentage of their wages into the fund.

"It would increase unemployment by aggravating the very conditions which it attempted to correct."

"It would result in further and unnecessary intrusion of the government into the domain of private enterprise, and would materially increase taxation at a time when an unprecedented increase in governmental costs has so burdened productive industry that opportunities for employment are already seriously impaired."

Crosley Holdings in Own Firm Total $3,900,000

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Holdings of three members of the Crosley family in Crosley Radio corporation, Cincinnati, were shown by reports to the securities commission today to total approximately $3,900,000. Powel Crosley Jr., president, held 152,699 of the common shares valued at $2,061,000; Gwendolyn A. Crosley, 130,910 common, valued at $1,770,000 and Lewis M. Crosley, vice president, 4,394 common, valued at $59,300.

Steel Makers Expect Big Rail Orders Shortly

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Inquiry for more than 135,000 tons of rails, estimates that $65,000,000 will be needed for car repair and replacements, and large tin plate releases today cheered Pittsburgh district steel men, whose lagging "heavy" mills have kept down the industry's production rate.

The Norfolk and Western railroad is expected to place an order within a few days for 38,000 to 44,000 tons. Reports said the Burlington wants 19,000 tons; a large southern system needs 51,000, an eastern concern 21,000, and the New York City subways 2,000 tons.

Expect Other Orders.

The trade also heard the government has estimated that the roads will spend $65,000,000 or more for new freight cars, trucks, bars, etc. It awaited with interest also the effect of a "new" steel for freight cars which reduces their weight 25 per cent, hoping for additional orders.

The plate mills up and down the Ohio and Monongahela rivers reported consumers' carryovers far below the 1934 figure. Large releases of orders which spurted the December production rate far above the seasonal trend are continuing, they said.

The Weirton Steel plant at Weirton, W. Va., employing approximately 8,000 men, reached 100 per cent production this week, with many others nearing that point.

Some Nearly Closed.

Other mills which specialize in heavy rails and bars have been almost shut down for several years. The Carnegie Steel company, for instance, which has an approximate capacity of 145,000 tons a week, is operating below 30 per cent, compared with the industry's more than 44 per cent.

Construction steel demand is quiet, but makers have turned optimistic because of the government housing plans and because of a feeling that a general business upturn will swing steel with it. One steel executive was especially enthusiastic about the prospects of steel houses, saying practical improvements in the appearance and their fireproof features will be "irresistible" once business returns to normal.

Most concerns are hoping to get into the "black" financially during the first quarter. Standard Statistics estimates the 12 largest ones lost $21,850,000 in 1934, which compares with approximately $66,560,000 in 1933.

DOLLAR EASIER AGAINST CHIEF FOREIGN MONEYS

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Dollar values eased slightly against leading foreign currencies today as gold bloc funds and sterling showed moderate improvement. The British pound rose ⅜ cents at $4.90¾, while the French franc gained ½ point to close at 6.60½ cents.

Italian exchange ruled slightly easier, but Belgian, Dutch, German, and the Scandinavian rates moved up 1 to 2 points. The oriental exchanges were dull, with the yen breaking 3 points to 28.56 cents in routine dealings.

At the closing price on the French franc the dollar was worth $1.0043, compared with $1.0051 yesterday. Based on the old par of the franc the gold value of the dollar was 59.32 cents, against 59.36 cents yesterday.

In London bullion brokers reduced the price of gold 2 pence to 141 shillings 7½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.76, based on the opening of sterling at $4.90⅞. The New York Federal Reserve bank reported no imports or exports of gold today.

STOCKS BREAK AGAIN ON GOLD CLAUSE 'SCARE'

Selling Affects All Parts of List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12.—Selling pressure caused by the "gold clause scare" continued to bear share prices to lower levels on the stock exchange today. Losses of 1 to 2 points occurred throughout the list with all groups sharing in the decline.

The gold and silver stocks which would seem to be in line for the first impact of an adverse ruling by the Supreme court on the all-important clause were no weaker than many other classes. Activity here in fact appeared a little less pronounced than elsewhere, on the whole. U. S. Smelting, leader of the white metals, gave up a point, but American Smelting emerged from the session a fraction higher and Cerro de Pasco was only a shade below its previous closing level.

Homestake Falls 11 Points.

Among the gold miners Homestake tumbled 11 points on one of its infrequent appearances on the tape. Alaska Juneau gained slightly. Dome eased fractionally and McIntire fell about a point.

Railroad shares seemed the most susceptible of the various market groups to the selling, apparently due to the fact that the carriers have a good part of their funded debts in bonds containing gold clauses. Union Pacific dropped 3 points in the first hour but recovered about a third of its lost ground and Atchison and New York Central followed it down for a point or so each, Central going to a new 1934-'35 low. Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and some of the lower priced issues were offered rather freely and net losses running from a fraction to around 2 points were recorded.

Preferred Issues Weak Again.

Preferred issues of various descriptions came in for another shearing. Losses of 1 to 4 points were noted in those of Lorillard, Johns Manville, International Agriculture, St. Louis Southwestern, Skelly Oil, Remington Rand, Baldwin Locomotive, Hat corporation, Worthington Pump, Westinghouse, Wheeling Steel, New York Steam, and Armour of Delaware.

Coca Cola, a star performer in yesterday's session, ran into profit taking and gave up nearly 3 points of its gain. Motors continued heavy as they have been all week despite the supposedly exhilarating influence of an automobile show.

The market setback now has gone far enough to attract buyers for a rally, brokers believe, and, on the other hand, fresh sellers who may not care to meet margin calls. Viewed merely as a "technical" decline, the market has looked too orderly to alarm any one; but what is annoying to the bulls is the fact that, when the stage was being set for a spring revival in business, the gold clause affair has come to upset confidence again in speculative operations.

TRADE MEASURED IN CHECKS 31.6 PCT. ABOVE YEAR AGO

Business carried on by bank checks last week in the Chicago federal reserve district ran 31.6 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year, but was 11.3 per cent below the preceding week.

Debits to individual bank accounts reported to the bank for forty cities in the district totaled $895,838,000, against $1,010,394,000 in the week ended Jan. 5. Thirty-nine cities reporting figures for the same week a year ago showed an aggregate of $679,925,000.

In 1932 the total was $69,062,468.

Utility Probe Reveals Wild Bids for Units

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[U. P.]—Furious bidding by public utility holding companies for operating units, leading in one instance to purchase of a concern at a price 159 times the book value of its stock, was reported to the senate today by the federal trade commission.

Superholding companies generally paid "extravagant" prices to obtain control of operating plants during a decade of wild competition, the commission said.

Then, it asserted, the giant systems "zoned" the nations to prevent competition between each other, and agreed to keep out of each other's territories.

The report was the second of a series of documents revealing results of the commission's six-year investigation of public utilities.

Reports Sale at High Price.

The extreme price cited was in the purchase by Associated Gas and Electric company for $49,923,855 of stock in the Barstow Securities corporation, which controled properties of General Gas and Electric company. United Gas Improvement company, the report said, also was seeking control of the properties in 1929, when the purchase was made.

A month later, the report said, Associated paid United a $9,300,000 profit for its minority holdings in General Gas and Electric to obtain complete control. Commission accountants estimated that Associated paid $472 per share to Barstow for the stock which was worth only $2.97.

"Notwithstanding this extravagant bidding for the control of operating properties," the report said, "the tendency following acquisition of properties has been for nonaffiliated interests to definitly establish boundaries of territories served by each interest and to establish connections for advantageous purchase, sale, or exchange of energy."

View on Holding Companies.

The commission told the senate that while utilities generally enjoyed "local monopoly rights" under state supervision, there were no provisions in the law to supervise holding companies which direct the operating companies. Establishment of the holding company system, the commission said, has resulted in creation of "superpower" groups.

The commission, in the report, raised the question of the desirability of declaring natural gas pipe lines "common carriers" or public utilities to permit their usage by other than owning interests. It asserted that independent producers of gas were "more or less at the mercy" of large companies controling pipe lines.

3 CABINET MEN HEAR CUTTEN'S GRAIN DEFENSE

Trader Seeks Right to Continue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Arthur W. Cutten, who has amassed millions in trading in the Chicago wheat pit, today fought for his right to continue grain market operations before three cabinet members sitting as the grain futures commission.

The commission, consisting of Attorney General Cummings, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Roper, heard final arguments on charges Cutten violated the grain futures act. The charges were brought by one of the trader's judges—Secretary Wallace—last April 11.

In a small conference room near Wallace's spacious official suite Cutten heard Leo F. Tiernay, attorney for the commission, review the charges and make the plea that Cutten be stripped of his membership on the Chicago Board of Trade. Cutten displayed no concern during the argument.

Counsel Denies Charges.

Nor did he change countenance when his attorney, Orville J. Taylor of Chicago, denied all the serious charges of the secretary. Attorney Taylor also challenged the right of the commission to sit in hearing on the ground its members were usurping a judicial function.

At the close of two hours of argument members of the commission announced they would take the case under advisement. They would not reveal when their decision may be returned.

Attorney Taylor indicated he expects a decision in ten days. He said he will return to Washington on Jan. 22. He also indicated he expects an adverse decision from the commission in stating that he is prepared to carry an appeal to federal courts.

In his outlines of the charges Attorney Tiernay said Cutten failed to report his tradings in 1930 and 1931, that he made false reports, that he made false entries in his records to conceal his operations, and committed other acts of collusion.

Charges Accounts Spread.

Cutten, Tiernay alleged, masked "bear" operations in the grain market by spreading his accounts among various brokers so that each one was under 500,000 bushels. Under the grain futures act all transactions over that amount by a single trader should be reported.

In 1930 Mr. Cutten was at one time short 7,525,000 bushels on July wheat futures and in 1931 he reached a peak short of 6,770,000 bushels. His operations in 1931 were in part responsible for a drop in the price of wheat from $1.34⅝ a bushel to 55¼ cents a bushel—a fall of 73 cents—Tiernay declared.

"Through all these operations Cutten, the greatest speculator this country has ever had, deliberately doctored and juggled reports of his grain trading, which under the act should have been reported," Tiernay said. "He deliberately masked his market position to conceal his bear position."

Telegram to Hyde Read.

To support his argument Attorney Tiernay read a telegram sent by Cutten in April of 1931 in answer to a telegram by Arthur M. Hyde, the former secretary of agriculture. Hyde's telegram stated he was informed Cutten had taken a strong bear position in the market and asked that Cutten abandon it to allievate the distress such operations were causing.

Tiernay read Cutten's reply as: "Your information misleading. I have not been active in the market. My actions in the last two weeks consisted of selling about 400 privileges each way. I do not think that I have sold a bushel of wheat during that time except to protect trade puts."

"And that date," Tiernay resumed his argument, "Cutten was four million bushels short. Yet he has been allowed to keep his seat on the Chicago Board of Trade. The Chicago Board of Trade by allowing him to keep his seat has condoned his action.

"It is up to the commission to keep that board of trade clean by taking away his privilege to operate. It

CHINESE URGE ACT TO COMBAT RISE IN SILVER

Exchange or Flexible Gold Standard Predicted.

NANKING, China, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The industrial ministry's silver commission today portrayed a dark future for China's fiscal affairs if silver continues to rise in price and the government takes no decisive measures to offset the condition.

The commission forecast the government will be forced to adopt either a foreign exchange standard or a flexible gold standard to combat the price rise caused by the buying policy of the United States.

The report said Chinese imports have fallen in value and volume since 1931, and foresaw the shrinking of Chinese market for all commodities in direct ratio to the rise in the silver price.

The belief was expressed that the taxes and fees the government already has levied on silver exports in an effort to stem the outward flow of the metal is "admirable in an emergency, but not the only desirable measures to check the deflationary tendencies in China."

The commission concluded that if silver is not exported but continues to soar in terms of Chinese commodities, so long will the deflation continue.

Wants Foreign Aid.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Dr. H. H. Kung, Nationalist government finance minister, admitted today that China "needs and would welcome financial coöperation from abroad" to help stabilize her weakened monetary system.

Kung's statement, commenting on reports that the Chinese government was negotiating with British banking interests for a loan, having failed to obtain positive American coöperation, said:

"The government is anxious to put national finances in a thoroughly sound position. That necessarily involves steps to settle loans now in arrears, tow hich problem the government is giving its most earnest attention.

Gives Silver Figures.

"The silver outflow of 1934, as shown in customs reports, was about $250,000,000 silver, or five times as large as the outflow of any previous year, the largest previous figure being $49,000,000 in 1907.

"Silver stocks are reported at Shanghai to have fallen to $313,000,000 as of Jan. 10, a reduction of about $230,000,000 silver in the last six months.

"Fortunately, however, the rate of decrease is now much reduced and the monetary situation as a result has improved. Also the government has arranged for importation of $20,000,000 silver into Shanghai and the government is doing everything in its power to maintain a sound metallic basis for China's currency."

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Plan Reduction in Stock

A plan to reduce from $15,000,000 to $3,000,000 the stated value of Hart, Schaffner & Marx capital stock will be voted on by stockholders at a special meeting Jan. 28. It is also proposed to change the par value from $100 to $20 a share. Capital surplus thus created will be used toward reducing or eliminating the $10,000,000 in good will carried on the company's books.

PROVISIONS MOVE LOWER ON FURTHER LIQUIDATION

Liquidation was resumed in provision futures yesterday and with stop orders uncovered lard dropped as much as 32½ points and bellies, 40 points from the previous close. The latter at the inside was nearly 1 cent per pound below the best level of Friday. On the break, brokers who frequently act for packers became good buyers of lard and the markets rallied quickly, the late strength in grains also having some effect. Closing trades were 7½ to 20 points lower on lard and unchanged to 22½ points lower on bellies. Cash and loose lard were quoted at 12.70 cents at the last with leaf at 12 cents and bellies at 16⅛ cents per pound. Prices follow:

KASPAR BANK'S FIGHT IS ENDED; OPENS TUESDAY

Another 21% of Deposits Will Be Freed.

The Kasper American State bank, closed since June 25, 1932, will reopen for business at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning in its old location at 1900 Blue Island avenue. Thus will be ended one of the hitterest, most long drawn out battles over reorganization which Chicago banking circles ever have seen.

The doors of the bank scarcely were closed when reorganization discussions began. For more than a year and a half plans have been in tangible form, but progress was slowed down or halted at every turn by a persistent opposition which contended that the depositors would receive more of their money and sooner through receivership liquidation.

Has $250,000 Capital.

The bank will reopen with new capital of $250,000 and surplus and reserve of $50,000. The old stock has been canceled.

Depositors, who were paid 25 per cent during receivership liquidation, will have another 21 per cent of their money freed. In all, including provision for full payment to the few who did not sign waivers, a total of $1,100,000 will be made available by the reorganization.

The waivers, for which certificates of deposit were given, amount to approximately $1,800,000. This is secured by slower assets which have been segregated from those taken into the new bank.

Hope to Free More Deposits.

Officers hope to be able to free more of the frozen deposits within six months. During the reorganization efforts, it was maintained steadfastly that depositors will get back all of their money in a few years. In the meantime, no profits of the bank may be used for stock dividends until the waived amount is liquidated.

All deposits to $5,000 will be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation which admitted the bank to membership Friday. State Auditor Barrett gave his approval to the reorganization several weeks ago.

James M. Triner, president, announced that the family of the late William Kaspar, founder of the bank, has given the building to the new bank. None of the Kaspars retain an interest in the institution.

Insurance and Inheritance.

A life insurance policy should be one of the first investments of any portfolio. The person of moderate means needs life insurance to protect his dependents in the event of his death, while those in well to do circumstances will usually find it advantageous to use insurance to pay the inheritance tax on the estate.

Care should be used, however, to set up insurance protection in such a way that the full advantage which the inheritance laws permit can be taken.

For instance, the general rule among states is that state inheritance taxes are not levied on proceeds of an insurance policy where an individual is named as beneficiary on the theory that the funds never enter into the estate. The rule is not strictly applicable in Wisconsin or Mississippi. Where the estate or the executor is beneficiary under the policy, however, the proceeds are subject to inheritance tax. It therefore behooves the individual whose estate exceeds the exemption allowed in his state to study his policies carefully.

The federal inheritance tax is uniform, regardless of the state of residence. It provides an exemption of $50,000, plus an exemption of $40,000 insurance proceeds that are payable to named beneficiaries.

The tax on any additional insurance money proceeds will come out of the general estate.

A provision of the law, however, provides that where an individual has retained none of the "incidents of ownership" of the policy, the proceeds of such a policy will not be subject to tax. Such incidents of ownership would be right to convert the policy into extended insurance, right to draw on the cash value, right to change the beneficiary, etc. In other words, he must surrender complete control over the policy.

One method of taking advantage of this provision is by use of the "life insurance trust." Under this plan the insured creates a trust and authorizes (not orders) the trustee to purchase the estate after the insured's death. The heirs are made the beneficiaries of the trust and the insured surrenders all control of it. An insurance policy, payable to the trust, is taken out and the insured surrenders all his incidents of ownership.

Then, when the time to pay the inheritance tax comes, the trustee purchases the estate with the insurance proceeds, uses those proceeds to pay the inheritance tax, and no tax need be paid on the insurance funds.

This is a brief résumé of some of the factors entering into the problem of bequeathing an estate. There are many others. An individual whose estate is large and whose problems are complicated should, in arranging his affairs, seek the advice of a reputable and experienced trust company or other organization well posted in such affairs.

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—An almost insatiable demand for United States government bonds, "payable in gold," reached astonishingly large proportions on Friday and Saturday, and eclipsed all other movements in the general bond market during the last week. The speculative fever for gold bonds was started when the Supreme court decision in the NIRA oil control case went against the government, thus arousing some doubt as to whether the government's stand against gold payments would be upheld.

On the exchange today the Liberty 3½s, a gold issue, shot up 24-32ds point to 105 14-32ds, the highest level since issuance in June, 1917. Other gold issues to attain record highs today were the treasury 3⅜s, due in 1943; the 3⅛s, due in 1949; and the 3s, due in 1955. These three issues, however, failed to hold their gains and closed slightly easier on the day. The government bond list, aside from the Liberty 3½s and registered issues, closed generally lower.

Sales Total Rises.

Sales in government issues in the listed market reached $6,260,300, compared with $1,750,000 the Saturday before. For the week, dealings in this group aggregated $38,542,400, the heaviest since the week ended Sept. 15, 1934.

A considerable percentage of the week's turnover has been due to switching on the part of institutional holders from non-gold to gold issues. The January reinvestment demand has operated and "gold" issues have caught the fancy of many.

With the "gold" issues the center of attention the movements of corporation and foreign bonds have seemed less important. However, it was noted that the total trading in all bonds on the stock exchange for the week approximated that of a year ago, $101,474,400 this week, against $102,910,800 during the corresponding week last year. This week's total was the largest since the week ended Feb. 10, 1934.

Municipal Situation.

Although most of the state and municipal bonds now outstanding carry the gold clause, a number issued since June, 1933, when the government dropped the gold clause, do not. However, there has been no appreciable tendency in the municipal bond market to differentiate between the "gold" and non-gold bonds of a given community.

Should the gold-clause case now before the United States Supreme court go against the government, a complete reclassification of prices on gold and non-gold state and municipal bonds would be in order.

ACTIVE MILLING DEMAND CHECKS GRAIN DECLINE

Early Losses Recovered; Supply Decreases.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An aggressive consumer demand in both cash and futures markets yesterday steadied grain prices on the Chicago Board of Trade although fairly heavy selling was continued by holders who are fearful of the consequences of a decision adverse to the government in the gold clause case. Eastern speculators were credited with liquidation of a substantial amount of grain.

May wheat broke a cent a bushel and corn and other grains lost ground under the early selling. Toward the end of the session the market came back sharply with May wheat closing unchanged at 99⅝ cents. May corn closed an eighth of a cent above Friday. Other futures of wheat were slightly lower and the trend in other grains was mixed.

Gold Decision Awaited.

The first fright which seized traders over the potentialities of the gold case appeared to have abated somewhat. Until the Supreme court makes a decision, however, it is felt that holders of commodities as well as securities will be somewhat uneasy.

The final prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .99⅝	$ .99⅝	$1.00⅝
Corn	.89⅛	.89	.90½
Oats	.53¾	.54	.54
Rye	.73¼	.73½	.76

The notable feature of the trading yesterday and throughout the week has been the steady commercial demand for grains. It was this buying that gave the market a good backbone and prevented a wide break under the speculative selling that developed. During the week about 500,000 bushels of corn were sold to go out of the Chicago market and receipts of corn from the country and other markets were small in comparison.

Visible Supply Declining.

The withdrawal of grain from the terminal markets during the last week and lack of compensating receipts point to another decline in the visible supplies.

The weather man contributed his part to the steadying of prices. A sharp cold wave over the northwest and a less severe one in Kansas were forecast with their probable stimulating effect on the feed demand for grains.

Foreign markets showed little change of consequence. Liverpool wheat prices were slightly lower. Winnipeg was steady.

39 Favorable Dividend Changes Voted in Week

Last week thirty-nine favorable dividend changes were voted, compared with twenty-eight in the preceding week, Standard Statistics company announced yesterday. Unfavorable actions numbered three, against nine in the preceding week. International Printing Ink company yesterday declared a special dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 21. This is the third special payment of 25 cents voted since last September.

UNDERTONE IN COTTON EASY AS TRADERS ARE CAUTIOUS

While there was less pressure on cotton yesterday than on Friday, the undertone was relatively easy. Traders were inclined to act with caution on either side. Scattered liquidation by speculative longs developed toward the last with the finish at net losses of 3 to 7 points in Chicago and 4 to 10 points in other markets. There was some selling of October in New York for southern account. Spot cotton closed 5 points lower with New Orleans, New York, Galveston, and Houston 12.65 cents per pound.

COMMODITY PRICES GET SETBACK AFTER RISE EARLY IN WEEK

The advance in commodity prices was interrupted last week and in nearly all markets the closing prices yesterday were below the preceding week's quotations. Declines were moderate. In some instances new high prices for the season were reached before the declines set in late in the week. Lard, bellies, and cottonseed oil sold at the best prices of the season and then sold off to close the week with losses. Cocoa was one of the few articles to show a gain for the week.

The following table shows closing prices yesterday on a representative list of commodities, compared with the preceding Saturday's closing quotations and the high and low quotations for the season:

3 CABINET MEN HEAR CUTTEN'S GRAIN DEFENSE

is up to the commission to free the markets of such speculators by issuing an order closing all contract markets to him."

In his argument Attorney Taylor denied all charges against Cutten except the one that he had failed to report his dealings in 1930. That failure, Attorney Taylor said, was due to a woman employé's ignorance.

"The failure to report was also due to the contributory negligence of Leslie A. Fitz, director of the grain futures administration's Chicago office," Taylor added. "Fitz knew at all times that Cutten was not reporting but failed to notify him."

Calls Action Irregular.

Attorney Taylor also reiterated the defense position that the proceedings are highly irregular. For this reason, he explained, Mr. Cutten refused to testify at hearings on the charges in Chicago last May before a referee or to introduce any evidence in his own behalf.

The commission hearing denies Mr. Cutten the right of trial by jury and violates the constitutional provision against taking of property without due process of law, counsel charged. He said the commission, created solely for administrative purposes, powers, and functions, is assuming functions which the constitution reposes and reserves in the judiciary.

He also defines the commission's purposes as remedial and preventive with regard to alleged abuses. Under this definition the commission cannot assume punitive powers, he said.

Cutten Refuses to Comment.

Mr. Cutten refuses to comment on the proceedings. He said that his attorney was present to speak for him. He left for Chicago after posing for photographers.

At the time charges were brought against Mr. Cutten, his friends declared Secretary Wallace was prompted in his move by a desire to silence criticism by Mr. Cutten of the grain futures act and other New Deal functionings. The charges were filed four years after the first of the alleged bear operations were begun.

HALSTED BANK REPORTS LARGE DEPOSIT GROWTH

C. F. Kuehnle Jr., president of the Halsted Exchange National bank, yesterday reported a rapid growth in both earnings and deposits. The latter rose more than 100 per cent during 1934—from $1,925,000 to $3,967,000. Evidence of the institution's aggressive loan policy was indicated in customer loan turnover of more than $2,000,000 during the year, it was pointed out.

Mr. Kuehnle referred to the election of Le Roy A. Listug as vice president and director as a step to bring additional business as well as banking experience to the bank's management.

The Bremen State bank of Tinley Park and the First National bank of Des Plaines yesterday reëlected all directors and officers.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In Saturday's TRIBUNE it was incorrectly reported that Le Roy Listug was elected president of the Halsted Exchange National bank to succeed C. F. Kuehnle Jr. Mr. Listug was elected vice president, and Mr. Kuehnle continues as president.

Survey Shows 1934 Suburban Building Total Is Largest Since 1931

But Shows Decline from November Aggregate.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

For the first time in several years the annual building figures for Chicago suburbs in 1934 showed a gain over the preceding twelve months. The total for 1934 not only surpassed that of 1933, one of the poorest years on record, but exceeded 1932. A discordant note was struck in the suburban situation, however, in the December total which, for the first time in five years, was less than that of November. These figures were made public last night by Frederick Doyle, who for several years has compiled the survey of new building in the Chicago suburban area for the Straus Securities corporation.

FREDERICK DOYLE.

The total for December, 1934, was $380,000, or 17 per cent above the total for the same month of 1933, which was $324,000. The total for November, 1934, was $801,000. With the exception of February and October, every month of 1934 surpassed the corresponding month of 1933.

Figures for Three Years.

Following are monthly totals for three years:

	1932.	1933.	1934.
January	$ 283,974	$ 237,799	$ 450,848
February	418,261	305,421	240,729
March	296,448	198,324	524,758
April	732,176	330,951	530,356
May	357,258	416,511	491,968
June	551,551	436,500	620,568
July	268,130	352,575	435,510
August	514,398	294,972	355,107
September	638,051	456,383	1,436,609
October	501,203	583,600	538,874
November	385,807	201,958	801,453
December	567,994	324,010	380,243
Total	$5,515,251	$4,139,004	$6,807,023

Of the fifty-one communities reporting to the Straus survey, twenty-one produced in excess of $100,000 of new building during 1934. Lake Forest leads this group with a total of $937,434 for the year. This big total was in a large measure due to three unusual projects, the home of Leslie Wheeler, costing $122,000, the residence of Mrs. J. Ogden Armour to cost $190,000, and the new $418,000 high school.

Build Above $100,000.

The communities which produced more than $100,000 in new building during 1934 were: Lake Forest, $937,434; Evanston, $741,700; Calumet City, $720,505; Winnetka, $381,760; Highland Park, $293,623; Aurora, $282,282; Hammond, $261,368; Joliet, $244,700; Gary, $213,756; Glencoe, $211,824; Elgin, $200,903; Oak Park, $181,750; River Forest, $163,845; Niles Center, $156,168; Cicero, $147,860; East Chicago, $137,404; Waukegan, $117,001; Maywood, $116,321; Wilmette, $114,790; Chicago Heights, $109,082; Hinsdale, $108,332.

The large Evanston total was due to steady building throughout the year. Only one large project, a $100,000 business building, swelled the total, according to E. M. Goodman, building commissioner. He reported $42,750 worth of permits representing three new homes and about $15,000 in repairs and remodeling during 1934.

*No report.

Calumet City's big total for 1934 was brought about by permits for the new Thornton Fractional Township High school, shown on this page, and a new $120,000 postoffice.

Charles M. Hitch reported that the village board of Downers Grove, in order to encourage repairing, remodeling, and building of additions to homes, passed a resolution at a recent meeting authorizing the issuance of building permits by the village clerk for four months without costs or fees.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Jan. 4-10, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 17, with a combined cost of $119,300. For the corresponding week last year there were 18 contracts, totaling $600,000.

MANUFACTURING PLANT TO EXPAND

The above additions to the plant of the Mills Novelty company at 4100 Fullerton avenue were designed by the engineering department of the Austin company which is handling the construction. Joseph Thompson made this perspective. On the right is shown a four story office building, 100x62, to be air conditioned. Adjoining it on the left is a four story manufacturing unit, also 100x62. Details are given elsewhere on this page.

FINANCED PARTLY BY FEDERAL EASY MONEY

Uncle Sam and the insurance companies are the financial sponsors for the above $600,000 Thornton Fractional Township High school, to be erected in Calumet City, Ill., from plans of Architect W. S. Hutton of Hammond, Ind. The federal government will supply $170,000 of easy money as a direct gift. Insurance obtained on the old high school, destroyed by fire in December, 1933, will supply the balance of necessary funds. Bids are now being taken and work is expected to get under way next month with completion scheduled for a year later. J. J. Josens of Mr. Hutton's office made the above perspective. Details of the project are given in another column on this page.

BARRINGTON COURT PURCHASED BY LINK BELT CO. EXECUTIVE

In one of the largest estate transactions in several years the 315 acre property in Lake county, north of Barrington, known as Barrington Court, has been purchased by Max H. Hurd of Wilmette, vice president of the Link-Belt company. The Northwestern Realty and Building Company, Inc., of Evanston, represented by John B. Utley, manager of the farm department, and Ralph E. Petersen, vice president, were the only brokers.

The main improvements are patterned after an old estate in England. The 500 feet of buildings, of brick and half timbered construction, with slate roof, are of old English design and include the main residence of eleven rooms and four baths and a six car garage. The group also includes spacious saddle and harness rooms, horse barn, machine storage space, and cow barn. These buildings form two sides of a landscaped courtyard. The other two sides are bounded by a rustic stone wall. Other improvements include two groups of buildings for employés' homes and other barns.

Mr. Hurd will make the estate his permanent residence after extensive remodeling and modernizing. The property has three-quarters of a mile of frontage on the Fox river. It also has a stream running through it.

The seller, Lucia T. Waller, took in part payment Mr. Hurd's 230 acre dairy farm two and one-half miles northwest of Woodstock, in McHenry county, a producing farm with new improvements, which is a show place of the district.

Calumet City Gets New High School with Federal Help

Calumet City will have a $600,000 fireproof structure to replace the burned Thornton Fractional Township High school, which will be financed by federal funds and insurance money. A grant of $170,000 has been made by Washington. The balance, approximately $430,000, will be supplied by insurance companies on policies carried on the burned school.

Plans have been completed by Architect W. S. Hutton, of Hammond, Ind., and bids are now being taken. They will close Jan. 22. Work is expected to start a month later. It is hoped to have the school ready for use in twelve months.

Has Six Acre Site.

The new school will occupy the six acre site of the burned structure, on Pulaski road, in Calumet City. Of fireproof construction, with exterior walls of reddish brick and stone trim, the new school will be three stories high and will accommodate 1,200 pupils. Mr. Hutton's plans provide for future additions to the school.

The building will contain thirty-three class rooms, two study halls, a library, a 500 seat cafeteria, a boys' gymnasium, with a 48x25 playing court and with seats for 1,200, and a large girls' gymnasium. There also will be a swimming pool with 250 bleacher seats.

Several Laboratories.

The new high school will have four science laboratories, two domestic science laboratories, woodwork shop, machine shop and teachers' rest rooms and conference rooms.

Albert V. Lockhart is superintendent of the school. The board of education for School District No. 215 is composed of John J. Huck, president; T. Theodore Maciejewski, secretary; John T. Shupryt, Julia Kowalski and Otto W. Fulker. The school district includes Lansing, Oak Glen, Calumet City and Burnham.

Alexander Brothers Will Open Cafe in Woodlawn

Alexander Brothers, who operate a restaurant at 6304 Stony Island avenue, have leased the premises at 1376 East 63d street from the University of Chicago for six years on a graduated rental basis and will open a café in about two weeks. According to Gus C. Manos, who represented the lessees, $40,000 will be spent in remodeling. Lyndon H. Lesch, real estate manager for the University of Chicago, represented the lessor.

Schendorf Moves Office from South Side to Loop

W. H. Schendorf, formerly of the realty firm of Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke, has moved his office from the south side to 10 South La Salle street, where he will represent a group of investors who are in the market to purchase Chicago real estate and farms in the metroplitan area. He is now supervising 1,600 acres of dairy farms in Lake, Kane and McHenry counties.

Asserts Realty Is on Road to Recovery

Real estate is on the high road to recovery, according to E. H. Boeckh and Associates, Inc., consulting valuation engineers. In their weekly cost analysis bulletin they state that this prediction is provable by many available facts.

"The rental situation, the first barometer of change, must now be apparent to both landlord and tenant," they say. "Practically all sections in the country are now reporting a scarcity of available space. The better types of residences already have been able to demand an increase in rental value. Apartments, which a year ago were showing a 50 to 60 per cent occupancy are now running from 90 to 100 per cent. A few even have been able to increase rentals without any ill effects on the occupancy.

"Construction in 1934, though mediocre at present, does at least show a gain over 1933 of 1 per cent on residential types and 14 per cent on industrial types throughout the country.

"The year 1934 saw the stabilization of the real estate market, although not at its former level of price. There is, however, sufficient shortage through the lack of normal construction to assure a considerable rise in value during 1935 if general business conditions do not receive a setback from conditions not ascertainable at present.

"Since real estate values lag behind business trends six months to a year, by using the percentage of gain in conditions made by general business, real estate may be expected to improve about 15 per cent in 1935."

The following index numbers are predicated on Chicago building costs, using as a base an average of prices throughout the country for the years 1926-'29 equaling 100:

MILLS NOVELTY CO. TO ENTER FIELD OF AIR CONDITIONING

Preparing for an entry into the field of manufacturing air conditioning equipment, the Mills Novelty company has awarded a contract to the Austin company, engineers and builders, for the erection of a four story addition to its big plant at 4100 Fullerton avenue. The annex will include a new manufacturing unit, 100x62, adjoining the present plant on the east, and a four story office building, 100x62, east of and adjoining the new plant unit. The office section is to be completely air conditioned. A building permit for $100,000 recently was taken out.

The new office section will be of modern design with exterior walls of face brick, terra cotta trim, and aluminum spandrels. The main entrance will be two stories in height. The corners of the building will be rounded and will have wide, curving windows.

Greatly improved prospects for business in the company's refrigeration division have made necessary this new addition, an official of the company stated. The company is one of the leading manufacturers of counter ice cream freezers, commercial refrigeration equipment, and condensing units, he said.

BONDHOLDERS IN STONE ISSUES TO BE TRUSTEES

Centralized Management Is Planned.

Fifteen bondholder trust managers whose holdings in fifty different H. O. Stone & Co. issues aggregate more than $1,000,000, form the nucleus of a new type of organization to administer properties turned over to the bondholders after reorganization by the Stone protective committee, it was announced yesterday. Centralized administration of these properties and possibly the unification of management facilities are to be provided, according to Avery Brundage, head of the committee.

While the articles of agreement under which the organization is to function still are being formulated, this tentative plan of operation was approved at a preliminary meeting attended by practically all of these bondholders' representatives, appointed trust managers for various of the thirty-two holdings being placed in liquidation trusts by the committee.

Bondholders as Managers.

"The general procedure of the protective committee is to place title to reorganized properties in liquidation trusts, with bondholders selected to act as trust managers whenever competent and qualified holders willing to serve can be found," the announcement said.

"In each case, Mr. Brundage is acting temporarily as one of the trust managers to preserve continuity of operation, but he has announced that he will relinquish this position to a bondholder as soon as practicable. Establishment of the new group is expected to hasten the time when he can be relieved of this duty.

Committee to Retire.

"As the committee completes its work of reorganization in each case, it winds up its affairs, makes a complete and final report to the depositing bondholders and leaves the picture. It presents to each of the bondholder trust managers a portfolio of information, including tax records, insurance records, mortgage data, income accounts, and a copy of the trust agreement.

"At the trust managers' joint meeting, various members announced that they had inspected buildings operated through the committee organization and found that they were well handled, recommending that the committee be urged to coöperate with the trust managers until the trusts are firmly established. They favor establishment of central management facilities to provide efficient and economical operation."

OPEN AN OFFICE FOR NORTH SIDE HOUSING UNIT

Another step toward the development of the 89 acre site of the low cost federal housing project on the north side was taken yesterday when F. J. C. Dressler, Chicago administrator for the housing division of the Public Works administration, sent letters to all property owners explaining the government's plans for development and asking their coöperation.

At the same time a local housing office was opened at the northwest corner of Larrabee street and North avenue, in the North Avenue State Bank building, 600 West North avenue. At this office, Mr. Dresser said, all necessary information regarding the federal housing project can be obtained from Harry F. Robinson, who will be in charge. The office telephone is Lincoln 5844.

Pearlie Powell Leases More Space on Boul Mich

Pearlie Powell, operator of a women's ready to wear shop at 700 North Michigan avenue, has leased the shop adjoining it on the north from the estate of Marshall Field, owner of the building, for a term of years. The new addition will be known as "Powell's Misses' shop" and will open about Feb. 15.

Lubin Brothers Paper Company Leases Plant

The Lubin Brothers Paper company, to care for business expansion, has leased the one story building, containing 29,000 square feet, at the southwest corner of North Halsted and Haines, owned by Mary L. Clark. J. J. Harrington & Co. and Charles F. Gray were brokers.

BUILD WASHINGTON STREET ENTRANCE TO AMERICAN BANK BLDG.

Work is under way on a new corridor building entrance from Washington street to the American National bank building. J. F. Phillips, manager of the building, reported yesterday, two leases for space fronting on this new passageway. One is for a lingerie, hosiery and costume jewelry shop, operated by J. V. Ecker and S. E. Stone, which already has been opened. It will have three shop window frontages, one on Washington street, one of the Washington arcade, and a third on the new corridor entrance. The shop is 16x48.

Across the new passageway a space 16x80 has been leased by Samuel Moore for what is claimed will be the world's first air conditioned valet service establishment. According to Mr. Phillips, the lessee will spend $10,000 in decorations and fixtures. The walls will be paneled from floor to ceiling with walnut. This space also has three frontages, one on Washington street, one of the new corridor, and a third on the east and west main corridor of the building.

Mr. Phillips stated that the American National bank building is now completely air conditioned from the first to the fifth floors, inclusive. All first floor stores, of course, are temperature controled. Both of the leases just reported are on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis.

SOCIAL WORKER INHERITS TASK FATHER BEGAN

Miss Taylor Teaches Immigrants.

BY BERNICE CRANSTON.

"I really never made a decision to go into social service. It happened that soon after my graduation from Vassar father was starting one of his many projects and asked me to help. After that there was another job to be done, and so it has been ever since."

MISS LEA TAYLOR. [Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

With this casual beginning Miss Lea Taylor launched the career that made her, within fifteen years, head resident of Chicago Commons, the social center her father, Graham Taylor, founded in 1894 as a practical base for his students in sociology at the Chicago Theological seminary.

Grows Up in Work.

The Taylor family went into residence as soon as the center opened and the student work immediately faded into the background, replaced by service to the community. So, although she had no notion of making it her profession, Miss Taylor grew up in an atmosphere of social service.

It was in 1906 that she undertook her first task, that of registering the students for her father's new school of civics, the project that afterwards was incorporated into the department of social service administration at the University of Chicago and the sociological department at Northwestern university.

The leadership of a girls' group was her first work with the people of the neighborhood. After several years of service in this capacity it was apparent that Miss Taylor had found her life work. In 1914 she became assistant to the head resident, and in 1921 was made head resident.

Assumes Father's Duties.

By this time her father, who had never had a salaried position with the center but had volunteered his time and still retains the title of warden, was finding it necessary to relinquish many of his duties. These, also, fell to her lot.

However, Miss Taylor would much rather talk about the people with whom she works than about herself. It is a family community, and the people are friendly but often perplexed because they do not understand the laws and customs of this strange country where they have come to make their home.

Therefore it is the center's task, as their friend, to interpret and explain. The classes in citizenship are one of its most important activities. When a group has mastered the lesson, passed the examination, and received the coveted citizenship papers, the Commons holds a graduation exercise similar to a school commencement.

Where Congress Meets.

In one of these classes, Miss Taylor recalls, there was a student who apparently spent more time looking at the pictures in her book than in reading the text. When asked to tell where congress meets she replied: "In the opera house."

During the war period the staf at the Commons interviewed 12,000 men and helped them answer the many perplexing questions asked in the draft questionnaire. One of the papers, as originally turned in, answered the query about replacement with: "My wife wouldn't want another man."

Domestic relations added another complication to the already confusing problem of the draft. On various occasions a wife would at first be anxious to send her husband to war, only to change her mind when the time came.

Aids at Elections.

Miss Taylor has taken an interest in politics only as her people are affected. Therefore she takes a place on the election staf whenever possible, in order to see that they are fairly and justly dealt with.

Another of the things that have endeared Miss Taylor to her neighbors are her visits to their homelands. She has made trips to Poland, Jugo-Slavia, and Italy, and each time she has made an effort to see the little towns and villages from which her people came.

Once she took half a day to locate the railway that ran out of Milan to a certain small village. At the end of the line she found that the village was still three miles away, but after making this trip by carriage she received a welcome by the entire population, all of whom remembered the family Miss Taylor knew in Chicago.

Never Grows Stale.

After visiting their homes Miss Taylor feels that she has a more complete understanding of the adjustment Chicago's foreign citizens must make and finds it remarkable that they do it as well as they do.

Of her job she says: "It never grows stale. There is a different problem for every day. We are close to vivid things—things we can interpret. We do our best to make the Commons a common ground, where people of all faiths and nationalities can meet, exchange ideas, and develop."

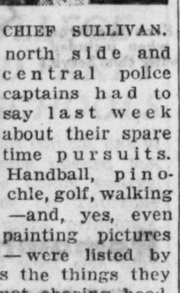
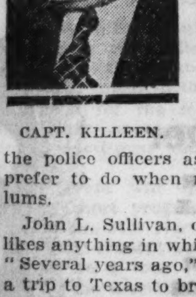
Sports Draw Police Fancy as Pursuits in Spare Time

BY JAMES GAVIN.

Some of them get a kick out of rifles—some of them are up in the air about aviation—some of them are suckers for fishing—and some of them are so wedded to their work they can't find time for any other hobbies.



CHIEF SULLIVAN.



CAPT. KILLEEN.

That's what the north side and central police captains had to say last week about their spare time pursuits. Handball, pinochle, golf, walking—and, yes, even painting pictures—were listed by the police officers as the things they prefer to do when not chasing hoodlums.

John L. Sullivan, chief of detectives, likes anything in which there is action. "Several years ago," he said, "I made a trip to Texas to bring back a prisoner. The sherif took me to hunt rabbits. We killed a thousand a day. I had the time of my life."

Nothing Like Sleep.

Handball and baseball are the avocations of William O'Brien, headquarters, who admits he likes all sports. "I like to take in a movie now and then, too," he added.

Once a handball enthusiast, Thomas Condon, supervising captain, now prefers swimming, and—if you call it a hobby—paying mortgages. So saying, Capt. Condon laughed, just to show that he can "take it."

When off duty, sleeping is the hobby of Andrew Barry, captain at the East Chicago avenue station. "And O, how I like to slumber," opined Capt. Barry. "I go in, besides, for every sport—golf, baseball, etc.—but football is my hobby."

The hobby of George O'Connor, central police captain, is golf, and he shoots around 85. "I walk about 10 miles each day," Capt. O'Connor said. "I get all the sunshine I can. You know, exercise keeps one's figure down. And I play ping-pong."

Likes Arresting Hoodlums.

William Kennedy, headquarters, enjoys fishing and contract bridge. "When you catch a muskie weighing 18 to 20 pounds, that's a thrill!" he exclaimed. He also likes golf.

"Lock up the hoodlums and put them in the penitentiary where they belong! That's my hobby!" Thomas Duffy, captain at the Sheffield avenue station, speaking. Short and sweet.

Similarly terse was the statement by Patrick O'Connell, captain at the Town Hall station. "My hobby right now is to catch the robber that escaped from our lockup, and you can bet I'll get him," declared Capt. O'Connell. Then as an afterthought, "I like handball. In fact, I go in for all sports."

Efficiency Is Hobby.

William Killeen, criminal statistics, has as his hobby to "bring the Chicago police department up to a standard of efficiency that will be second to none in the world," and believes the day not far distant when that objective will be achieved.

Long walks are the spare time pleasure of Martin O'Malley, captain at the Summerdale station, who takes his walks upstairs in the gymnasium when the weather's bad. "Then home to the family," he concluded.

A runner of renown was Patrick J. Harding, captain at the Rogers Park station, in his youth. "In my younger days," related Capt. Harding, "I used to run at picnics. Now I have charge of the north side division in the field meets. Talk about cups, come up and see my office. It's filled. I've turned out several championship teams in baseball."

Painting and Firearms.

"Police work and a little golf" are the paramount interest of Peter Tomcheck, Shakespeare station captain, who also offers to take on all comers at pinochle.

After spending a hard day in the office Joseph Goldberg, Albany Park captain, goes up in the air—literally. He's a flying enthusiast and believes flying is the ideal sedative for jumpy nerves.

Painting is the side line of William Stapleton, captain at the Hudson avenue station. "I like to draw," he explained. "I also have a collection of pistols—one from the Chinese dated 1444, and weapons that were used at the battle of Waterloo."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

A REAL lion and a bear on roller skates will entertain members of five northwest side Lions clubs at a joint meeting Tuesday at the Northwest Lion's building on North avenue. The lion may be symbolical, but what the bear represents is beyond us. Dr. William Harwood whose bear and lion they are, will wrestle with the king of beasts and will roller skate with the bear, if all goes well with the wrestling act.

Miss Isabel Pesquiera and Miss Juanita Pesquiera, charming daughters of the Mexican consul here, were entertained recently at a luncheon at the home of Miss Loraine Radke of 5227 Parker avenue. The young ladies are clasmates at Mundelein college.

SPRING BRIDE

[Toloff Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Adlerblum of 1115 Lake street, Oak Park, announce the engagement of their daughter Florence Hermena to Ben E. Nye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Neiburger of Chicago. The wedding is scheduled to take place in the spring.

A MAN who passed the first city civil service examination ever given in Chicago has retired after 37 years of service in the position in the water department to which he was appointed as a result of his showing at that time. He is Dowell A. Canon, 2420 North Kedzie, a former TRIBUNE printer in the years prior to 1897. He and Mrs. Canon are spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bacon recently celebrated the conclusion of 50 years of married life with a family dinner and reception at their home, 4720 Dover street.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Shamberg, 2764 Windsor avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Bertha, to Walter Margulis of St. Paul, Minn. The young couple are at home now at 1434 Grand avenue, St. Paul.

JANUARY 5th will be a double anniversary in the Cohn family for some time to come, we hope. When Miss Harriet Cohn was married to Richard Hecht on that date it was also the 55th wedding anniversary of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cohn, 3638 North Irving avenue. The ceremony was performed at the Stevens hotel.

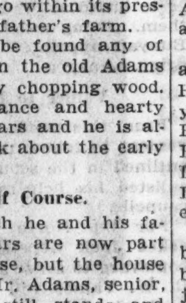
A surprise party held on the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meske, 5722 North Washtenaw avenue, was attended by the following friends of the couple: Mr. and Mrs. Perley G. Gunton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. John Weitlauf, Mr. and Mrs. Reid Larmer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huster, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schleiker, and Mrs. Agnes McDonough.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Peterson, 5511 Kenmore avenue, announced the marriage of their daughter, Kathryn Marie, to Richard Andrew Munster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Munster. The bride attended Northwestern university and Mr. Munster is an alumnus of the University of Illinois and a member of Delta Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

THE Elmwood Park village board is not to be caught napping, it seems. A gentleman applied some time ago for permission to build a garage in one of the exclusive residential sections. They consented, but reports say he promptly erected a stable to house horses rather than mechanical horsepower. Last week the board, righteously indignant, ordered an investigation.

Sees Forest Preserve Develop from Indian Tepees to Tees

Campfires casting a fitful glow on tepees and restless shadows of men moving about among the trees—all the sights, sounds and smells of an encampment of Potawatami Indians, returning perhaps for a last nostalgic visit to their former home appropriated long before by white men.



ALBERT A. ADAMS.

These are among the earliest memories of Albert A. Adams resident caretaker of the Sauganash forest-preserve for 18 years, who was born just 71 years ago within its present confines on his father's farm.

Mr. Adams is to be found any of these winter days on the old Adams homestead vigorously chopping wood. His healthy appearance and hearty manner belie his years and he is always ready for a talk about the early days in Chicago.

Farm Is Golf Course.

The 30 acres which he and his father farmed for years are now part of a public golf course, but the house built in 1854 when Mr. Adams, senior, first settled there still stands and serves as a comfortable home for the caretaker and his wife.

Memories of the Indians who roamed the country a century ago are recalled vividly by the collection of arrowheads which Mr. Adams has assembled. Hundreds of them, many perfectly shaped, overflow the box where they are kept. They have been picked up about the yard, in the woods, and in plowed fields.

Mr. Adams is ready to cast doubt on the authenticity of the Sauganash treaty elm at Caldwell, Kilbourn, and Rogers avenues where history records the treaty with the Indians giving their land to the whites was concluded.

Recalls Tree as Sapling.

"I remember that tree when it was nothing more than a sapling, half a dozen feet high, and that was long after the Indians were gone for good," he said.

He is willing to admit, however, the importance of the legend. "The legend about the treaty elm might have started about any of the trees around here and been just as right," he said. "The legend itself is the important thing."

Mr. Adams' father, a Swedish sailor, settled on the land now incorporated in the forest preserve in the early fifties and cleared it for a farm. Chicago then was clustered about the mouth of the river and the shore of the lake. There were no settlers near the Adams' farm.

In 1894 the farm on which Albert Adams was reared was sold to the Dixon Land company. Adams and his brother Edward, however, continued to farm the land until 1917 when the land company sold the property to the forest preserve.

Widely Acquainted.

Mr. Adams was made resident caretaker at that time and is still on the job with his wife, Mrs. Edna Susan Adams, whom he married 37 years ago.

The caretaker is well acquainted among his neighbors for miles around. He has been active in lodge work for years and is a past master of the Providence Masonic lodge of Jefferson Park. He is a past patron of the Providence chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star and a member of Modern Woodmen lodge No. 3052.

Many is the time the Adamses have been host to their fellow lodge members at corn roasts, steak roasts and just plain picnics.

JEFFERSON PARK'S CLUBS DISSOLVE CHARITY GROUP

The dissolution of the Jefferson Park District Associated clubs, an organization founded four years ago for charitable purposes, was announced last week.

Increasing scope of government relief agencies and lack of funds to carry on the organization's work were the reasons given.

Wenzel J. Weise, president of the Associated clubs, whose membership represented many northwest side civic and social groups, explained that this Christmas the decision was made to dissolve the organization after baskets of food had been bought with the balance of the funds in the treasury.

Jacob Molay, treasurer, and Mr. Wiese themselves bought and distributed the baskets purchased with the last of the funds.

18 NORTHWEST SIDE PROJECTS ON '35 SCHEDULE

U. S. Funds to Help Build Streets.

Eighteen street improvement projects, involving a total expenditure of approximately $1,596,000, are contemplated on the northwest side this year by the state division of highways and the county highway department, it was learned last week.

Two of the projects, estimated to cost $325,000, are on the state's schedule, and the remaining sixteen, costing an estimated $1,271,000, are to be built by the county.

The two state projects are to be financed out of Illinois' allotment of $9,000,000 from the $200,000,000 of federal funds set aside for road building and highway improvement throughout the country. This is the second such appropriation to be made by the government. The first was for $400,000,000, of which Illinois received $18,000,000.

Place State Contracts Soon.

Plans for the two state projects have been drawn and the work is expected to be under contract this winter, according to Kendrick Harger, engineer for district 10 of the state division of highways. They are as follows:

Construction of a bridge over the north shore channel at Foster avenue. The bridge roadway will be widened from 24 to 44 feet to conform to the width of the street, which was widened to 40 feet by the state last year. Work should be completed by September. Estimated cost $75,000.

Widening and repaving of Elston avenue from Ashland avenue to Diversey avenue, 1¾ miles. The street will be widened from 38 to 51 feet. Bids were received on this project last Friday. Work is expected to be completed and street open to trafic about Sept. 1. Estimated cost $250,000.

Ten of the sixteen county projects were on the county's 1934 program, but were delayed for varying reasons, mainly because of difficulties in obtaining necessary rights of way. These projects will be given precedence over projects on the 1935 program, according to Duncan M. Campbell, assistant county highway engineer.

Augusta Grade Separation.

They are as follows: Augusta boulevard grade separation over Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul tracks at Grand avenue. Estimated cost $100,000. There is a possibility this might be built by the state from federal funds, it was said.

Paving of Devon avenue from Ozanam to Milwaukee avenues, 1.7 miles. Estimated cost $175,000.

Devon avenue grade crossing over Chicago and North Western tracks at Northwest highway. Estimated cost $3,000.

Paving of Greenwood from Busse to Oakton, 0.7 mile. Cost $50,000. Under contract.

Paving of Irving Park boulevard from Narragansett to Neenah avenues, 0.1 mile. Cost $20,000. Under contract.

Paving of Kimball avenue from Diversey to Fullerton, 0.5 mile. Estimated cost $55,000. Objections of property owners have delayed this project.

Paving of Lehigh from Caldwell to Carpenter, 0.1 mile. Estimated cost $5,000.

$300,000 Job Under Contract.

Paving of Narragansett avenue from North avenue to Irving Park boulevard, 3 miles. Estimated cost $300,000. Under contract.

Paving of Wilson avenue from Central Park avenue to Western avenue, 1.4 miles. Estimated cost $165,000.

The six northwest side county projects on the 1935 program which must wait until the delayed 1934 improvements are disposed of are as follows:

Grade separation of Central avenue at Grand avenue. Estimated cost $100,000.

Grade separation on Greenwood at Chicago and North Western near Touhy. Estimated cost $100,000.

Paving of Greenwood from Touhy avenue to Busse road, 0.3 mile. Estimated cost $15,000. Under contract.

Paving of Irving Park boulevard from Ravenswood to Broadway, 1.25 miles. Estimated cost $120,000.

River road—25th avenue cutoff—open grade crossing at Soo Line tracks. Estimated cost $3,000.

Paving of Ruby and King streets from Lawrence to 25th avenue, 2 miles. Estimated cost $40,000. Under contract.

The county projects are to be built out of the county's share of the motor fuel tax.

Y CAMERA CLUB TO HOLD EXHIBIT THROUGHOUT '35

The Irving Y Camera club will exhibit throughout the year at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park boulevard, each member exhibiting his prints for two weeks. Those of Norman Canty will go on display today.

Other exhibitors whose work will appear soon are Miss Edwina Reed, Miss Catherine Meisenback, Miss Mary Loucks, Lorin Shoepp, Fred Walters, Edwin Ettswold, and John Ianello.

The exhibition will be open to the public and the club is planning a supplementary series of lectures to accompany it.

Northwesttown Kiwanis to Hear Talk on Housing

Col. L. R. Putman, associate director of the Chicago office of the Federal Housing administration, will speak on northwest side housing problems at a meeting of the Northwesttown Kiwanis club Tuesday at 12:15 o'clock p. m. at the Division street Y. M. C. A.

FLASH AND SOUND SIGNS TO GUARD RAIL CROSSINGS

36 Installations Ordered in Chicago Area.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission, yesterday made public a list of 36 railroad grade crossings in five counties surrounding Cook which are to be improved shortly with flash and sound signal lights for greater safety to motorists.

These crossings, among a total of 275 in the state, were singled out as especially hazardous to vehicular trafic, in the course of an investigation opened by the commission a year ago.

35 Railroads Aid Inquiry.

Engineers for the state highway department, the commerce commission, and 35 railroads operating in the state collaborated in the inquiry and agreed to the crossings which merited the improved signals.

In addition to those which will have the flash and sound equipment, 350 other less dangerous crossings are to have new cross beam signs with glass reflectors warning motorists at night.

A list of 26 crossings within Cook county also to have the most costly signals were announced last week by Mr. Lindheimer. The state has a federal grant of $500,000 for all of the work to be done in the state. It is expected that bids for contracts will be asked following a hearing set for Jan. 15.

North Woods "Hero" to Be at Camp.

Paul Bunyan and his big blue ox, Babe, have obligingly deserted their haunts in the north woods to give Chicago Boy Scouts a taste of real woodcraft at Camp Owasippe this summer.

After gaining his consent to supervise the camp preparations, Alfred C. Nichols Jr., chief camp director, decided to give him a free hand and all the plans made are those developed by "Paul, hisself."

First, he drafted Tom Leahy, who is community chairman of the Arrows, Camp Owasippe honor order, to assume the duties of Johnny Inkslinger to broadcast the plans as he made them. Being a bit rusty on politics, Bunyan appointed Mr. Nichols campaign manager.

Vanier to Be Leader.

From this point, Paul found it convenient to follow the districts already outlined in the scout organization and enlisted his helpers according to the councils.

For the North Shore district he asked Jack Copeland of 6826 Ridge boulevard to serve as district foreman, R. W. Vanier will be the "Big Feller," who will take the general leadership in the council.

The straw bosses were selected from members of the Order of the Arrows, one for each community. For the North Shore they are Edward Lyons, Lakeview; Milton Shober, Jefferson Park; R. R. Alexander, Albany Park; Ricihard Platt, Ravenswood; Tad Davis, Edgewater, and H. H. Kottke, Irving Park.

George Zage, 6567 Oliphant avenue, will be district foreman for the northwest council, and George M. Schner, district executive, will be the "Big Feller." Here the straw bosses are Chester Thomas, near north side; Fred Stegbauer, Lincoln Park; Frederick Brems, Humboldt Park; Leslie Wheaton, Kelvyn Park; Frank Capos, Mont Clare-Cragin; Earl Sorenson, Logan Square, and Harold Paradise, West Town.

Axes to Be Awarded.

The Top Deckers and Swampers will be recruited among the Boy Scouts in the troop that have been to camp. Bunyan has asked each scoutmaster to help him make these appointments.

As soon as any troop sends in camp registrations for two-thirds as many scouts as it sent to camp last summer, Paul will send it one of his special double bladed axes. Troops that sent no scouts to camp last summer will receive the axe when they have sent in six registrations.

When 25 per cent of the troop has registered it will receive an autographed picture of Babe to decorate one of the ax blades. At the 50 per cent mark Paul will send one of his own photographs, also autographed. The ax will serve as a record of the troop's achievements throughout the summer, symbols being stenciled on the handle as the honors are won.

Early in March all swampers, top deckers, and straw bosses will have a party at Paul's expense and sponsored by the local chapter of the Order of the Arrow to complete their plans.

PLAN 33 TOURS FOR PUPILS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Foreshadow New Methods in Education.

Thirty-three tours to points of interest in and around Chicago have been arranged this year for public school groups by Supt. William J. Bogan and Edward L. Burchard, executive secretary of the student tour committee of the educational council of the board of education.

A schedule with information about each of the places to be visited, for the use of teachers in charge of the groups, is being sent to all school principals. Included in the tour information is data concerning the location of the institution, available transportation facilities, hours that the visit may be made and the size of the group that may take the trip.

The tour information also contains a brief outline of the activities of each institution and describes the operations of its various departments.

259,000 Make 1934 Tours.

The itinerary for the visit to the city hall, for instance, gives information as to the location of the council chambers, mayor's office, fire alarm office, health department, court rooms, municipal reference library, trafic control room, and the mechanical equipment for the building, as well as a brief outline of the functions of each department. The routine of a city council meeting is described, attendance at a meeting being included in the itinerary.

The student tours are a continuation of the visits made last year to A Century of Progress exposition by school children under the direction of teachers from the various schools, according to Mr. Burchard. It was decided to enlarge the tours this year to include the entire city and a list of the places to be visited was prepared by Supt. Bogan and himself, Mr. Burchard said.

Country Trips Possible.

Supt. Bogan said that the tours, which have been arranged as a part of the regular curriculum, foreshadow new methods in education. He said he hoped they could be extended later to include trips to the country for the younger children.

Arrangements for the tours are to be made by the teachers in charge of the various groups, it was explained. The tours on the schedule and the subjects that each is related to, are as follows:

GHOSTS TO WALK IN BETH ISRAEL TEMPLE COMEDY

A lonely house where weird lights glimmer, a locked organ which plays wailing notes, and strangling hands which dart out of the shadows—that is the background for "Ghost Music," the mystery comedy the Temple Center players will present this evening at Temple Beth Israel, 4850 North Bernard street.

The play, adapted from "The Valley of Ghosts," by Jacob Lear, opens, as do all good ghost stories, at midnight. Helen Wayne, played by Miss Rosabelle Shallman, is waiting in a sheet shrouded room to hear the will of a woman she had met but once, an errand which has called her across the continent.

At once it is apparent that the ghost is something of a matchmaker as well, for she finds that Jack Martin, the lover with whom she has quarreled, is waiting also. Jerry Dictor, as Jack, plays the hero's rôle as the plot is further complicated by the introduction of a maniac and near-ghost housekeeper, portrayed by Miss Jeannette Strauss and Miss Goldie Goldwasser.

The terrified blackface comedians, loquacious Sally Ann, dashing Lily Violet, frightened Pete and sleep walking Amos, are portrayed by Miss Sally Chester, Miss Lenore Ulit, Eugene Sadin and Robert Friedman. A queer quirk to the plot is introduced by Lawyer John Black, played by Dr. Irving Seigal, and Dr. A. E. Waxler is the ghost. Irving Kahn is the watchman.

The production is directed by Al E. Kovant, assisted by Dr. Waxler, who is chairman of dramatics at the Temple center. The technical staf includes Sam Karlinsky, Robert Grossmark, and Bernard Goldstein.

COUNCIL TO SEEK POLICE STATION FUNDS FROM U. S.

Ways and means of obtaining federal funds to build new police stations in the Cragin, Albany Park and Jefferson Park districts are being formulated by a subcommittee of the city council and will be presented to the council at a regular meeting soon, it was announced last week by Ald. George P. Robinson [36th].

The new stations, would supplant the present structures which have been alleged by northwest citizens to be unsafe, congested and inadequate for proper police protection and morale.

While admitting that the need for more patrolmen on the northwest side was much greater than the need for new stations Ald. Robinson pointed out that the 1935 budget precludes any extensive additions to the force and federal funds seem the only solution if improvements are to be made this year.

"We fell fairly confident that some funds can be procured in this way, since the project would be in line with the national drive on crime. New buildings would aid the morale of the men and create greater confidence in the police facilities on the part of residents of the districts."

Walter L. McCambridge, recently reëlected president of the North Jefferson Community club, will be inducted with other officers at a meeting Tuesday evening in the St. Cornelius auditorium, Long and Lieb avenues.

WALTER McCAMBRIDGE.

E. D. Jackson, president of the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs and John Klier, secretary of the federation, will be installing officers, it was announced by George A. Ferguson, publicity chairman.

Other Officers.

Others to be installed include Anthony Vogel, first vice president; Henry Eirich, second vice president; Leo Golubsky, recording secretary; Stanley Jacques, corresponding secretary; Robert Blyth, treasurer, and Carmen Serevino, sergeant at arms.

Members of the executive committee are Philip Koerper, Henry Jaeger, John Dittgen, James Mader, Edward Klipfel, Albert Froehling, George Ferguson, Frank Koerper and Erwin Warning.

New committee chairmen who will be inducted are Lowell Reichard, program; Leonard Sebaska, entertainment; Mrs. Frances Martin, membership; John Williamson, rules and Mark Burke, athletic.

Others are Mrs. Lizette Koerper, social service; Jerry Kibler, improvemetn; Mrs. Anna Kulling, education; Arthur Timmerman, citizenship; Walter Fischer, legislative; George Kroc, historian; William Goetz, custodian, and George Ferguson, publicity.

Prefer Trolley Buses.

The North Jefferson Community club is behind the movement to persuade the Illinois Commerce commission to grant a certificate of convenience and necessity to the Surface Lines rather than the Rapid Transit company to operate feeder buses on Foster avenue.

"A bus service with transferes good only on the elevated lines would be of limited benefit to this community, or other communities in this section of the city," Mr. Ferguson said. Petitioners for feeder buses on foster and Kimball avenues are testifying now in hearings before the commerce commission.

The club, one of the largest and most active in the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs, has accomplished much during the past year, Mr. Ferguson reports.

IMPRESSIONS OF LISTENER AFTER RANDOM TUNING

Davies, Sears and Stokes Among Those Praised.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Thoughts while listening:

Edward Davies has everything that any baritone on the air has except the big buildup. A trip to New York would do the same thing for him it did for Jane Froman. . . . And Charlie Sears, the tenor who sings on programs with Davies, would get a big hand, too, I believe on Broadway. In Chicago he's just sort of taken for granted. . . . Wayne Van Dyne, that big voiced tenor, who used to perform with Father Coughlin, and now is over at WBBM-CBS, can really sing. He's bound to be popular. And what support he gets from Billy Mills' orchestra!

Those arrangements of Harold Stokes are attracting a lot of attention. Several Chicago orchestra leaders have told me they listen in wonderment. . . . Beatrice Lillie's first program on her new series was something new under the sun so far as radio is concerned. Miss Lillie's giddy foolishness and infectious mirth will surely have wide popular appeal. I believe she will be as big a comedienne on the air as she is on the stage. . . . Mark Hellinger has one of the least attractive voices for radio speaking heard to date. . . . Folks are still talking about Ethel Barrymore's great New Year's day performance. [Prospective sponsors please notice.]

Detroit Symphony Moved.

Ray Perkins has found a part he really fits into—master of ceremonies on that National Amateur show. . . . It's nice that the Detroit Symphony hour has been moved from 7 to 8 p. m. Now the problem for lots of listeners is simplified to choosing between the Opera Guild and G. M. Symphony concerts at 7 o'clock. . . . But at that it's hard to choose at 8 o'clock between Victor Kolar, and Silken Strings with Olga Albani. . . . There's no orchestra more certain of turning out completely satisfying music any time it's on the air than Henry Weber and the W-G-N Concert orchestra. Its 10:15 p. m. program is particularly satisfying.

Several Bands Gain Popularity.

Several of the newer dance orchestras that turn out delightful rhythm and melody: Leon Belasco, Freddy Martin, Kay Kyser . . . and isn't Richard Himber turning out the kind of music you go for on his network shows. . . and Jack Denny. . . . Ferde Grofe has a nifty band at the Drake. Wish he would play his entire Grand Canyon suite some evening. His signature song, you know, is part of "On the Trail" from the southwestern opus. . . . It was a smart move to drop Martha Mears for Gabrielle DeLys on the Phil Baker show. Miss DeLys has a certain something that ought to take her far—in fact she's traveled a considerable distance already—from Canada to the west coast and now back across the nation to Radio City.

Gypsy Nina Clicks.

Gypsy Nina's radio stock has gone up considerably since she's been in Chicago—and deservedly so. An extremely versatile singer. . . . It's nice to contemplate hearing Arthur Tracy on the air again regularly. . . . A New Year's resolution: Nothing shall lure us from the radio at 8 o'clock Tuesday evenings so long as Grace Moore remains on the air. We shall miss Ben Bernie and Bing Crosby and the Mills Brothers, who do their stuff at the same hour.

Wayne King's Chorus.

The choral ensemble effects Wayne King is going for are O. K., in fact they're great. . . . Jack Benny could and should improve his material. He's been slipping. . . . To our notion Fred Allen is way out in front among the comedians. . . . Another grand voice: Edward McHugh, the Boston gospel singer on NBC mornings. . . . And Armand Girard, also of NBC. . . . Club Romance, the half hour on CBS that will be paired with Eddie Cantor, when he returns, has a sweet combination of singers, Lois Bennett and Conrad Thibault, also heard on The Gibson Family. And in Don Voorhees' orchestra they have just about the finest support imaginable. . . . We asked several week-end guests what their favorite radio programs were. They said the Sunday evening hour with the Detroit Symphony orchestra; Grace Moore, Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, and March of Time. . . . "The Desert Kid" is one program we shouldn't care to have children listen to. Sampling it the other evening we found the Indians about to sacrifice a child to rattlesnakes.

THE LADY IN WHITE

Helen Marshall, the lady in white, who sings Sigmund Romberg songs on those NBC broadcasts at 8 o'clock every Saturday evening. This soprano is likely to be pretty well known by the end of 1935.

HENRY WEBER TO DROP BATON FOR PIANO ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Concert orchestra and internationally famous as a conductor of concert music and opera, will step off the conductor's stand at 9:10 tonight to present a program of chamber music with two musicians of his orchestra. Mr. Weber is inaugurating this new series of programs in response to many requests from his listeners and his host of friends who have followed his musical career.

Mr. Weber will play the piano, Phillip Kauffman, concert meister, the violin, and Adolph Hoffman, the cello, in the trio which is to be heard frequently this winter. The trio will present the first and second movements from Mendelssohn's "Trio in D Minor," and the third movement—Rondo all 'Hongarese—from the Hayden trio, "Gypsy Rondo."

'LIFE OF A MAN' TOPIC OF MIDDAY HOUR FOR WEEK

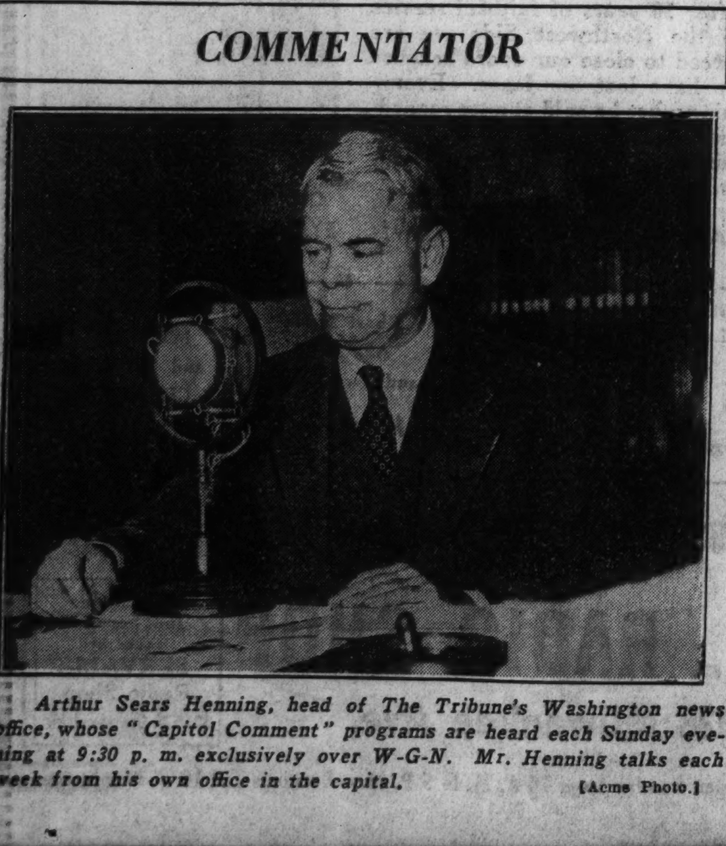
Prominent ministers will be guest speakers on the W-G-N Mid-day service this week when the discussion topic will be "The Life of A Man." The program which is heard at 12:30 p. m. will present during the week Rabbi Joshua L. Liebmann, of the K. A. M. Temple; Rev. Johnston Myers, Immanuel Baptist church; Bishop Samuel P. Spreng of the Evangelical church, Naperville; Rev. Fr. Peter E. Hoey, St. Mary's Catholic church; Rev. David Hugh Jones, pastor-emeritus, First Presbyterian church, Evanston, and the Rev. Irvin I. Schweitzer, Grace Evangelical church.

A DIONNE NOTE

Dear Larry: Basketball season gets under way. Vassar scouts for the team of 1955 keep close watch on the Dionne quintuplets. . . . U. S. shows huge deficit as fiscal year ends. It may have been a white Christmas for some, but Uncle Sam saw red. . . . These amateur nights are like Virginia farmers. They cure a lot of hams. . . . Congress opens. Again senators will prove you needn't have blue blood to talk yourself blue in the face. . . . Some men ask the divorce court to lay down the law in order to stop their wives from doing it. . . . When your shirt comes back from the Chinese laundry sans buttons, don't worry. It was occidental. . . . "If I were in Garbo's shoes," says Portland, "they'd drop off." Cordially,

FRED ALLEN.

COMMENTATOR



Arthur Sears Henning, head of The Tribune's Washington news office, whose "Capitol Comment" programs are heard each Sunday evening at 9:30 p. m. exclusively over W-G-N. Mr. Henning talks each week from his own office in the capital. [Acme Photo.]

"SINGIN' SAM" TELLS WHERE HE GOT THAT NAME

"Singing Sam," the genial singer whose programs are heard at 8:45 p. m. every Friday evening over W-G-N and the MBS network, gained his name through a strange incident. When "Sam's" programs were first sponsored by a commercial client he was confronted with the problem of getting a name that would be easily remembered by the public. As Harry Frankel he had been a vaudeville headliner, but he felt that this name wouldn't click on radio.

While he was pondering on a new stage name for his air audiences he was traveling on a train. While attempting to go to sleep the clicking of the whels on the car made an impression on his mind—click-clack-click, click-clack-click—and suddenly without even consciously thinking of it the rhythm of the wheels suddenly resolved themselves into "Singin' Sam," "Singin' Sam." And that he claims is how he solved the vexatious problem.

Probably the secret of "Singin' Sam's" instant success on radio has been his intimate introduction of his programs, his friendliness of presentation of his songs and the warmth of his pleasant bass voice.

STOKES TO PLAY 19 FAVORITES NEXT WEDNESDAY

Modern Musical to Be Given at 3:30 Today.

The year's most brilliant popular tunes from outstanding musical comedy and motion picture successes will be presented on Harold Stokes' W-G-N Dance orchestra program over W-G-N on Wednesday evening from 9:30 to 10 o'clock. The program, which is known as "Melodic Medleys," will present nineteen of the greatest popular tunes of the day.

Director Stokes selected the program after consulting various listings of publishers, publications of various types, and his own mail from listeners to determine which of the current popular songs the public most requested.

For his opening medley Stokes will present "Say When" and "When Love Comes Swingin' Along" from the stage success, "Say When." From the great motion picture, "Flirtation Walk," the orchestra will present "Flirtation Walk" and "Mr. and Mrs. Is the Name." Cole Porter's great new musical comedy, "Anything Goes," provides "Anything Goes," "All Thru the Night," and "You're the Top," while from the stage show, "25th Edition of the Cotton Club Parade," three songs, "Like a Bolt from the Blue," "Sidewalks of Cubs," and "I'm a Hundred Per Cent for You" will be played.

Rudy Vallee's new picture, "Sweet Music," will furnish three tunes: "Sweet Music," "Every Day," and "Fare Thee Well, Annabelle." Irving Berlin's great musical production, "As Thousands Cheer," will supply "Lonely Heart," "Heat Wave," and "Easter Parade," and the closing medley will be made up of "June in January," "With Every Breath I Take," and "Love Is Just Around the Corner" from Bing Crosby's new movie, "Here Is My Heart."

At 3:30 p. m. today Stokes will present his afternoon modern musical with another popular program made up from requests received from listeners. Among the tunes to be offered are "Villa," "Not Bad," "Chinese Lullaby," "Arlene," and "Singing Between Kisses."

CANINE FEEDING EXPERT TO JOIN BECKER TODAY

Dr. J. W. Patton, head of the Patton Biological Laboratories of East Lansing, Mich., will be a guest speaker on Bob Becker's radio program at 6:30 this evening over station W-G-N. Dr. Patton, who is one of the country's leading authorities on canine nutrition, will discuss "Feeding the Dog."

This program also will mark the inauguration of a new feature on Becker's program. This is the "Canine Newsreel of the Air," which will feature dogs that have made the headlines all over the country because of their courage, intelligence, or quick thinking.

Snow on Chapel Hour.

Dr. Sydney B. Snow, president of the Meadville Theological school, will be the preacher on the University of Chicago Chapel service which will be broadcast by W-G-N at 11 o'clock today.

Squire Skimp Panned by Lum and Abner Followers

Lum and Abner are being deluged with mail from folks who are indignant about the treatment that the old fellows have been receiving at the hands of Squire Skimp, that rascally old fellow whose fortune was made by trimming the honest citizenry of Pine Ridge in shady deals. The Squire has been rough on Lem and Abner of late, and their many friends are writing in to voice protests.

LISTEN TO KAY KYSER AT U. OF IOWA; MISS EARLY CLASS NEXT DAY

If the enrollment for 8 o'clock classes at the University of Iowa drops off next semester Kay Kyser, popular Blackhawk band leader, is likely to receive blame from the dean's office. Evidenced by a letter from a Cornhusker it is apparent that as long as W-G-N continues its famous Midnight Flyer broadcasts on Mondays, early morning classes will be poorly attended. The letter to Kay reads in part:

SULLY MASON.

"Dear Mr. Kyser: First of all I want to tell you how much I like your band. It seems that the whole campus here at Iowa stays up to hear your Midnight Flyer broadcast. The reception over W-G-N is marvelous. As a consequence we all sleep through our 8 o'clocks Tuesday. I rather think the whole lot of us will fight shy of these early classes next semester."

The letter continues in its rave of individuals and especially of Sully Mason, vocalist. It seems that Sully has had so many requests for pictures that he has decided to do a little requesting himself. He wants to remember all his fans so has devised the original scheme of asking for pictures of his fan letter writers, on receipt of which he will send them one of his.

WOMAN PROGRAM TO BE FEATURE OF SILKEN STRINGS

A program composed chiefly of music written by women or named for them will be presented by Countess Olga Albani, the chorus, and the Silken Strings ensemble under the direction of Charles Previn over WENR and NBC network at 8 tonight. Countess Albani and the chorus will sing "Just a-Wearyin' for You," by Carrie Jacobs Bond; the orchestra will play "Jazz Nocturne," by Dana Suesse and Countess Albani; the chorus and the orchestra will be heard in a medley of songs named for women, including "Margie," "Ramona," "Mary Lou," "Diane," and "Sweet Sue." Daniel Saidenberg, cellist, will play the "Kashmiri Love Song."

Motion Pictures a Hobby of Stokes, W-G-N Maestro

Harold Stokes, W-G-N's dance orchestra director, takes motion pictures for a hobby. Harold has one of the finest and most complete movie outfits in the city, with Kleig lights, background drops, and all. Entertainment in the Stokes household is furnished either by making movies of guests or showing them some of the many reels of movies made by the maestro and his wife. Harold's latest serial venture in this pastime is the making of films showing progress in building the new $500,000 studio building for W-G-N.

Quin Ryan Plans Mammoth Audition for Youngsters

A mammoth audition for children who have applied for auditions on Quin Ryan's "66" Amateur Night program will be held next Saturday afternoon in the Drake hotel studios of W-G-N. GOOD LUCK COMES TO UNCLE HARRY IN HIS WHEEL CHAIR
(From one of 10,000 letters from thankful hearts)
CAN'T YOU LET ME WORK A LITTLE LONGER EACH DAY, DOCTOR? THIS JOB OF ADDRESSING ENVELOPES IS MY FIRST INCOME IN 5 YEARS.
NO, MR. JENSON, IN YOUR CONDITION IT'S NOT SAFE.
BUT MY OLD FOUNTAIN PEN FLOWS SO POORLY AND CLOGS SO OFTEN THAT I CAN ADDRESS ONLY 500 ENVELOPES IN THE 6 HOURS.
MAYBE IT'S NOT THE PEN'S FAULT. TRY USING A DIFFERENT INK—TRY PARKER QUINK. I USE IT BECAUSE...
NEXT DAY
HERE'S THE BOTTLE OF PARKER QUINK YOU SENT ME FOR, UNCLE HARRY.
THANKS, TOMMY. NOW WE'LL SEE IF QUINK DOES AS THE DOCTOR SAYS—ACTUALLY CLEANS ANY PEN AS IT WRITES—DRIES ON PAPER SO QUICKLY I DON'T NEED A BLOTTER—FLOWS SO FREELY I CAN WRITE AS FAST AS I LIKE WITHOUT GETTING TIRED.
THAT EVENING
I COUNTED THE ENVELOPES TWICE, UNCLE HARRY, AND INSTEAD OF 500, YOU ADDRESSED 760 TODAY!
THAT'S GREAT, TOMMY! THAT MEANS I CAN EARN $4 OR $5 MORE A WEEK WITHOUT WORKING A MINUTE LONGER THAN BEFORE.
YES, AND MR. JENSON LOOKS SO MUCH MORE RESTED THAT I WANT TO PRESCRIBE PARKER QUINK FOR EVERYBODY SICK OR WELL!
20,000-Word Bottle FREE
You can get Quink from any store selling ink. Or send us a letter or post card—no money—and we'll mail a 20,000-word trial bottle absolutely FREE. Specify kind and color wanted: PERMANENT Blue Black, Violet, Red, Royal Blue, Green, or Black. WASHABLE Blue or Black. Address The Parker Pen Co., Dept. 477, Janesville, Wis.

BROOKSIE AND HER PALS
Brooksie knows FINE CREAM MAKES FINE BUTTER!

FEEDING TIME ON THE BROOKFIELD DAIRY FARM, WITH BROOKSIE AND BLACKIE SUPERVISING THE CALVES' DIET. NO ONE KNOWS BETTER THAN BROOKSIE THAT THE LITTLE ONES MUST BE STARTED OUT RIGHT — WITH PLENTY OF VITAMINS. THEN WHEN THEY'RE BIG, GROWN-UP COWS, THEY'LL ALWAYS GIVE FINE RICH CREAM FOR SWIFT'S BROOKFIELD BUTTER.

Fine, rich cream is the big reason why Brookfield Butter is so delicious — of course! Rich cream that's gathered from sunny farms in America's fertile dairy lands and churned to butter in shining churns. Another reason why you'll find this famous butter so good — it's delivered in all its country-sweetness to dealers by Swift's own fresh food service. Ask for Swift's Brookfield Butter — so delicate — so fragrant — today! Swift's Brookfield Eggs and Swift's Brookfield Cheese are extra-good, too

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS!

FREE-10 CUT-OUTS!

of BROOKSIE and her PALS

WONDERFUL NEW TOYS! YOU'LL LOVE THEM!

● Everyone loves Brooksie and her Pals—those happy, jolly cows and their many friends that you see on a Brookfield Dairy farm in the picture at the left.

And now every boy and girl can have a complete set of these famous, fun-loving characters—10 of them! Brooksie or one of her pals will now appear in full color on every carton of Swift's Brookfield Butter. All you have to do is cut them out and follow the easy directions for making them stand up.

They're wonderful toys, these funny, laughing cows and their friends. You can have loads of fun playing with them. Be sure to ask your mother to buy delicious Swift's Brookfield Butter tomorrow—and be among the first to start your complete set of Brooksie and her Pals.

Cut them right out of SWIFT'S BROOKFIELD BUTTER cartons ....

MOLER COLLEGE

MOLER—was the first institution of its kind in the world originated in 1893 by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Moler who still give their personal attention to the welfare of students of the Chicago School, although they have Branches in all Principal Cities of the United States.

Among the exclusive and distinctive features at MOLER'S are 1st—Individual booths for each pupil. A complete little beauty parlor in itself. No elbowing—no confusion—no distraction.

2nd—Teachers trained in Moler's Own Special Teachers Normal School—each as carefully prepared in every phase of theory or practice work as a trained nurse. No pick ups from recent graduates—no hit-and-miss information. No discord.

3rd—One text-book—their own copyright—that includes every unit of study required by any State Board and so illustrated that the study is like looking at a picture book. No last minute search for information not at hand at examination time—therefore no failures.

4th—Three distinctively different plans of schooling for three different kinds of positions.

NUMBER ONE! The Universal Course that prepares for every State Board examination and such positions as traveling salesman for cosmetics—on new stream line trains—Overseers for Chain shops, etc.

NUMBER TWO! The Private Lesson Course that qualifies for the most exacting positions at best salaries—without waste of time and at least effort. Private Teachers—Individual Booths — Paid live models to work upon—Saves months of living expenses—saves loads of effort—Saves study and enables you to earn twice the cost before you could complete by the old method.

NUMBER THREE! The Regular Course that enables you to pass the Illinois State Board examination and fill the positions that come to Moler's from their thousands of Graduates now conducting their own shops—a course at less than half the former tuition.

5th—The Teverbaugh Hair Culture Course—a hair growing treatment—with wonderful possibilities in itself a profession upon which any Man or Woman can build.

6th—The Trial Jobs—the positions given advanced students before being sent to the permanent place or established in a Shop of your own.

In addition to all of these distinctions every Moler College through the Country has been classified by the National Barber and Beauty Schools Assn. as Class "A." This means Highest Quality.

Present Inducements—For students from out of the City—can earn board and room while learning, and over and above all—Terms within your reach.

CALL—IF CONVENIENT.
PHONE—IF YOU CAN'T.

EXTRA! MAN LOOKS FOR WORK.

Mustby, Ill., Jan. 13 [HAP]. One of the year's strangest cases brings to light an amazing fact. Jerome Feebleminded, [real name on request] wants a job. But it must be permanent. He wants to be somebody. Guess who? He does not want to be treated like his pappy who was promised a permanent job, and laid off after only 45 years service. As for character even his mother-in-law speaks well of him. He is resourceful, having once single handed won a family argument. He like Caesar is ambitious; he is dependable, having actually eaten his wife's homemade biscuits. His main asset though is his imagination. He imagines somebody will read this. It is hard to believe Jerome is only 29. This unusual personality can be reached by addressing. Address B 100, Tribune.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Miscellaneous.

MEN.

If you live on the South Side or South Side suburbs, let me start you in a profitable business of your own, backed up by our prosperous company.

I have been on this territory exactly nine months and have already set one hundred and ninety-seven men up in business for themselves between Cadillac, Mich., and Mattoon, Ill., and still have twenty-four opportunities left.

I am in control of this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition, for which there is an ever increasing demand.

If in a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates are earning as much as $50 on a percentage basis in a single day, and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizable monthly income, not regulated by the seasons, as ours is a year round business.

Selling experience not necessary, for if you are selected you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates nevery sold anything before joining us.

We stand all expense of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month of the last four years with 1934 our busiest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in the territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests.

Apply Monday between 1 and 3, Suite 404 Maryland-bldg., 841 E. 63d-st. [1 block east of Cottage Grove]. Ask for G. A. Buckley.

MEN

WE WILL START A FEW ADDITIONAL MEN IN OUR BRANCH AT ONCE. IF YOU WANT FULL TIME WORK IN A PERMANENT POSITION AND HAVE GOOD CHARACTER REFERENCES, COME IN MONDAY MORNING FOR AN INTERVIEW.

If you are adaptable to this work, if you have the disposition to study and strive to acquire skill in what you do, and if you have good reputation and the will to succeed, we will employ you and back you in permanent work that is regularly paying qualified men in all parts of this country and throughout the world. $4,000, $5,000, $6,000, $7,000 and $8,000 per year and higher. These incomes are cash—and just as stable and permanent as any business or professional positions possibly could be. Such earnings represent success, and they are available to men who can think and work successfully.

This electrical unit company is now in the greatest success of its history. Last year, 1934, was the most progressive year and its men throughout the nation have consistently grown stronger, happier, and more and more prosperous. 1935 will be our sixth consecutive record sales year.

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work must take the necessary time to learn and acquire skill. During this time they must be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125 to $200 per month [some men $105 to $140]. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month or six months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements to secure a position with us you can, with reasonable study, practice, good character and diligence—with these things you can be genuinely assured of making a success which will in commissions alone afford you the higher incomes.

If you feel you can qualify and if you really would like to learn how to do this work and to make the kind of money successful men in this company are making, call for personal interview at our branch general offices, 9 S. Kedzie-av., cor. Madison, Suite 329, Monday, between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. only.

DID YOU MAKE ANY MONEY DURING 1934?

If you have been a pattern maker, or in any of the main trades or in business, and have been successful the past 8 or 10 years, and didn't make the money you wanted to make in 1934, and live on the North or N. W. side or in some nearby suburb, I'd like to have 6 or 7 hours with you Monday. This will give me an opportunity to become acquainted with you and get you acquainted with our electric unit business that means permanency and success to other men who didn't believe that they could learn all about anything in a few minutes. Men of that hurried disposition seldom make good in a big way. Now, if we become interested in you, we will finance your business and pay you top commissions regularly. We are interested only in men who are determined to make at least $3,000 in 1935. Are you one of these men?

Call at 10 a. m. only—in fact, a few minutes earlier—at rear office, 6675 Northwest Highway, Edison Park, Monday, Jan. 14.

IMMEDIATE EMPLOYMENT

We will consider the applications of several high-grade, neat-appearing young men who are sales minded and electrically inclined. Men applying must be able to live on moderate income while learning to merchandise appliances from our stores. Commission and bonus paid twice a month. Apply in person only Monday evening, 7:30 p. m. sharp. See Mr. Parsons.

ALL LIVE STOCK SOARS TO NEW SEASONAL HIGHS

Week's Prices Boosted by Meager Receipts.

All live stock continued to soar to new highs for the season last week. Behind the advance again was the almost starvation supply of slaughter animals, reduced by the drouth of last summer, which in a few short weeks has driven prices of meat and live stock above the "pre-war level," which was the goal the AAA expected to attain after several years of extensive programs for the control of production.

Cattle, hogs, and lambs sold from 17 to 27 per cent over the 1909-1914 averages and were higher than any time on record prior to 1909. Steers rose to a high of $12 near the close of the week, the highest point since December, 1931. Prior to 1909 steers at Chicago never got over $9.30. Top hogs jumped to $10.45, including the processing tax, the highest level in 51 months and $1.10 over the record prior to 1909.

Pre-War Prices Compared.

Following are the average prices for last week and for the six years prior to the war:

	Beef Steers.	Cows and Hefers.	Hogs.	Lambs.
Last week	$8.80	$6.10	*$10.00	$8.75
Pre-war	7.35	5.20	7.85	7.30

*Including $2.25 processing tax.

Developments since the first of the year are regarded in the packing industry as a good indication of what the public may expect in the way of meat supplies for all of 1935.

Receipts of slaughter stock at the leading markets for the first 12 days of the year are probably the lightest in history for the time of year. Twenty of the biggest markets handled only 1,394,000 head, compared with a normal run of about 2,500,000 for this period.

Cattle Bid Up Sharply.

Beef steers, yearlings, and most cows and hefers were bid up 50 cents to $1 in price during the last six days. Calves advanced $1 to $1.50.

The rise in lambs was not as marked as in cattle. This branch closed 10 to 25 cents higher, with the top for the week at $9.50. Prices for the six days averaged $8.75 against $7.85 a year ago and $5.95 two years ago.

Hogs Average $10 for Week.

The six day hog average at $10, processing tax included, is the highest weekly average since September, 1930, and highest for this time of year since 1927. The price shows a gain of 125 per cent over 1934 and is 222 per cent over 1933.

The meager supply on the market yesterday sold at steady to 10 cents lower prices compared with Friday. Smaller local houses bought most of the top butchers at $10.25, processing tax included, while the average for the day at $9.95 indicated 5 cents loss.

RALLY IN BUTTER BRINGS CLOSE STEADY TO HIGHER

Butter futures rallied to close steady on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday after an early break. Closing prices were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Eggs ranged from ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher at the close.

Butter sold off early, storage figures from New York showing a net increase in holdings and the cash market breaking ½ to 1 cent per pound. Later, however, withdrawals from Chicago warehouses totaled much heavier than expected. The net movement out of four cities ran 294,000 pounds greater than last year.

Eggs were quiet, closing with more support after easing early. Withdrawals from storage were light, totaling nearly 10,000 cases less than last year. Sales: Butter, 47 cars; eggs, 37 cars. Prices follow:

BEEF AND PORK STORAGE STARTS YEAR AT PEAK

U. S. Reports Holdings Are Far Above Average.

The nation's cold storage holdings of beef and pork on Jan. 1 were the largest on record for the beginning of the year, report by the United States department of agriculture revealed yesterday.

Cold storage pork mounted to 690,862,000 pounds from 504,737,000 on Nov. 1 and 571,913,000 on Dec. 1. The figure on Jan. 1, 1934, was 629,696,000 pounds and the five year average for the first of the year is 565,206,000.

Frozen beef alone aggregated 115,905,000 pounds, with the Jan. 1 total being 141,186,000 including meat in cure. On Dec. 1, the figure was 127,953,000 and on Nov. 1, it was 108,399,000. The total at the start of 1934 was 79,232,000 and the five year average is 70,893,000.

Relief Stocks Not Included.

The figures do not include meat held for relief purposes from livestock of drouth stricken areas.

Lamb stocks of 4,526,000 pounds showed the only decrease, the December figure being 4,687,000, while Nov. 1 showed 3,074,000 pounds. A year ago lamb storage was 4,012,000 pounds, while the five year average of Jan. 1 is 3,818,000.

Miscellaneous meats in storage piled up to 125,122,000 pounds from 112,831,000 on Dec. 1 and 65,366,000 a year ago. The five year average is 69,550,000.

Lard stocks of 118,152,000 pounds were less than last Jan. 1 with 132,510,000, but showed more than 14,000,000 increase from Dec. 1. The five year average is 71,671,000.

Frozen Poultry Higher.

Frozen poultry amounted to 131,752,000 pounds—26 millions up from Dec. 1 and 12 million more than a year ago. The five year average is 119,495,000 on Jan. 1.

Butter holdings were down to less than half the cold storage estimate a year ago. The 47,334,000 pounds compares with 81,682,000 on Dec. 1 and is far less than half the 111,249,000 pound record of Jan. 1, 1934. The five year average is 61,054,000.

Egg stocks also were much reduced. The present supply of 647,000 cases is 84,000 less than a year ago and 346,000 under the five year average.

HOG SLAUGHTER SMALLEST SINCE 1921 LAST MONTH

Slaughtering of hogs in the United States during December fell below expectations, the total number killed under federal meat inspection at 4,195,836 standing smallest for that month since 1921. Only three December totals have been smaller since the war. The decrease, compared with December, 1933, amounted to more than a third of a million head. The cattle and calf slaughter, however, overran estimates and set up new all time records for the month of December.

Packers under federal inspection during the month slaughtered 1,188,196 cattle and 494,418 calves, compared with 720,753 cattle and 401,855 calves in December, 1933. Two years ago the December cattle slaughter was only 567,000 and the calf kill was 327,000. Slaughter of sheep during the month showed a decrease.

Following are the slaughter figures for December and the year [these figures are for plants under federal inspection only and include stock slaughtered for the government]:

Above: A view from the spacious living room into the dining room, showing the large, graceful arch and overhead balcony with its wrought iron rail. The house was built two years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Emil Thulin, and stands at 5940 Knox avenue, Sauganash, a home community within the limits of Chicago. The lot is 50 feet by 50 feet, and the dwelling has 32,000 cubic feet.

Today's Period House Modern in Structure

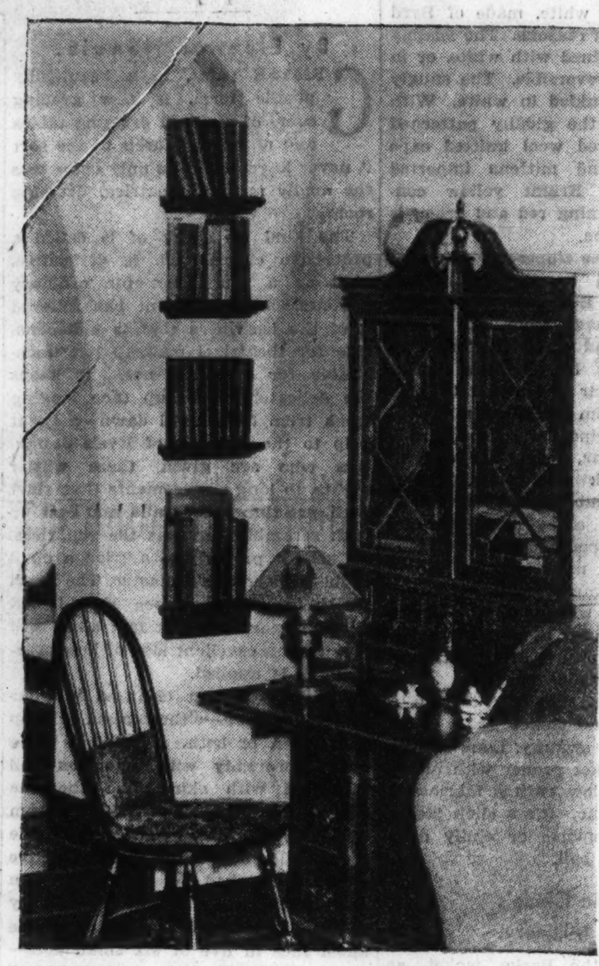
By LOUISE BARGELT.

'TIS said that we may be building new houses again this year! Let's hold the thought . . . we want them . . . we need them. And they do tell us that if we set our minds on anything hard enough it will come our way in time! However—whether that's so or not—if you were building next month what type of house would you build?

Would you choose for your long desired home the restful colonial, the dignified English, the picturesque Norman, the intriguing French, the spectacular Spanish, the refined Mediterranean, the modified modern, or the extreme modern?

Quite a choice there is, you see. And it probably is true that more of us know what we want than ever before. We have had much time to think and to plan these last few years. Prior to '29 we were building rather feverishly, often deciding hastily. Building was in the air and we went ahead and built —and built!

Now there's a difference. We have had opportunity to read much and to see much, relative to old and new types. We have witnessed examples of the revolutionary in design and construction, and have the leisure to weigh this new type, compare it with the traditional and the long accepted.



A diminutive niche for books, cozily built into a corner of the living room wall.

Layout Should Be Functional.

After all is said, in answer to the question which will be asked a thousand times, and then a thousand times again—what style of house shall I build?—the final solution will always be, build the type which appeals to you, the kind of house you would like best to live in—and to live with; the period its achitecture reflects matters little.

The thing which does matter and is of vital importance is that the architecture, whatever its style, should be excellent. The construction should be along modern lines, the layout functional, and the materials which go into it should be selected by an expert, one who knows the market and all that it offers in different materials and types of equipment.

If possible engage an architect. If this is not possible, put the construction of your house in the hands of a good builder whose reputation you know. Study your plans carefully, insist on seeing samples of your walls, your flooring. Don't omit insulation for the few dollars saved, and ascertain that your heating boiler or furnace is adequate.

High quality of materials, correctness of construction, efficiency of equipment—these will take the leading roles when it comes to the building of your house. See that you have them, as far as your budget permits.

Color Used Everywhere.

The house of today is in every respect a modern one. While it follows the tradition of the English Norman in its design, it is functional in layout and in equipment.

It is of brick and stone veneer construction over wood framing. Insulation is accomplished by the use of four inches of insulating wool over the second floor ceiling joists and sprayed on applications on the side walls.

On the first floor are a studio living room with raftered ceiling effect, a dining room, a lavatory, a kitchen, and an attached one car garage. A circular stairway leads from three bedrooms, a vestibule, and a large bathroom.

The floor level of the living room is two steps below that of the dining room; this affords an interesting change from the usual level planned building.

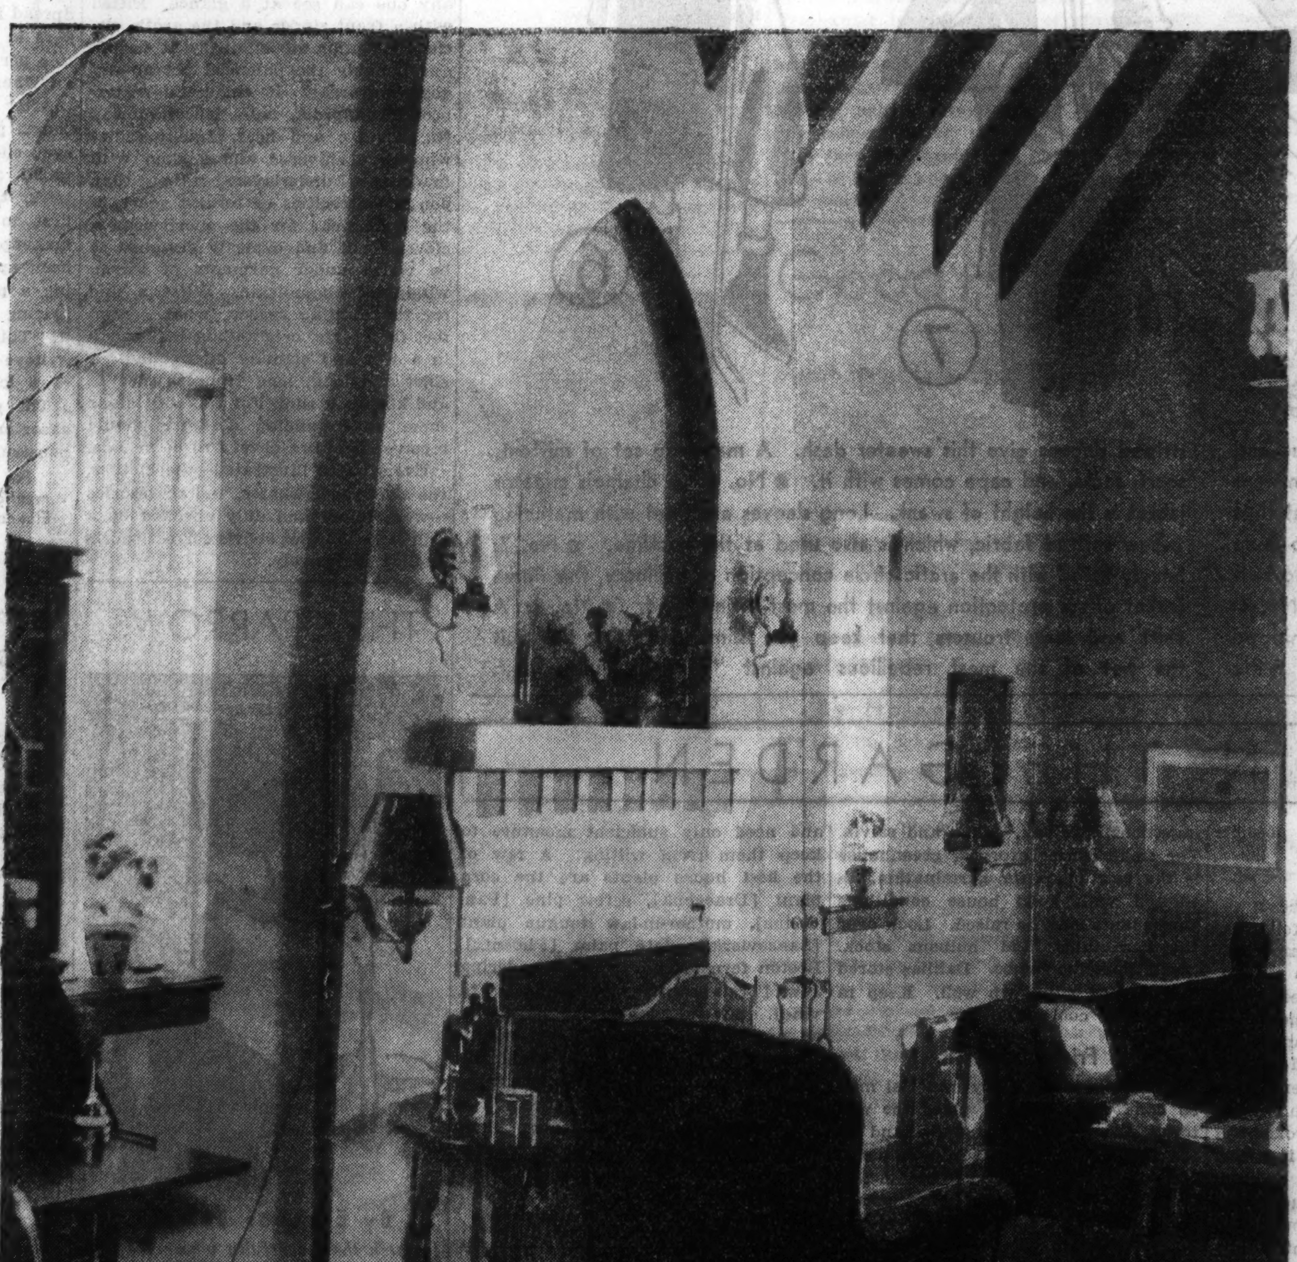
In the basement there is a small recreation room and a gas fired air conditioning plant. The space under the garage is not excavated.

Color is the vogue of the times. We see it generously built into this house as it will be built into the house of tomorrow. Norman lighting fixtures are installed in living room and dining room. The home has six rooms, not including lavatory and bath and garage.

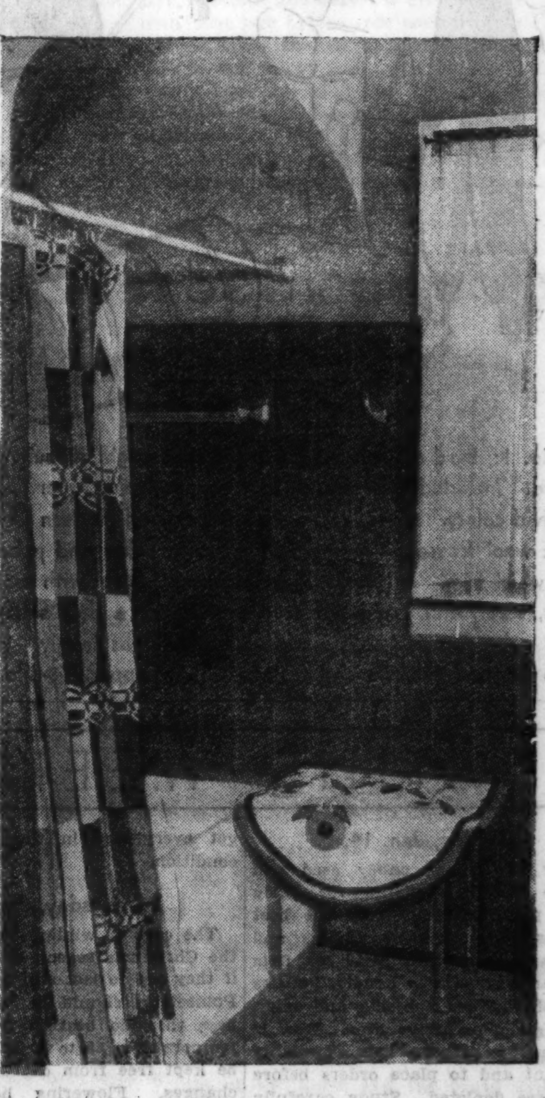
Because there is such a vogue for color we want to be sure that we know how to use it, that it does not become too harsh and uncompromising.

Colors have pervaded our kitchens, our bathrooms, our laundries, our furnace rooms. The boiler or furnace is brilliantly jacketed, the cellar floor is brightly painted or flaunts a quarried tile surface or a handsome piece of linoleum. The old service spaces of a generation ago have been routed from memory by the new soft or brightly hued plumbing fixtures, the built-in cabinets, the range and refrigerator, sink and oil burner, laundry tubs and washing machines, ironers and dryers.

Color—color—everywhere! This trend will make color plans in the houses of tomorrow as necessary as floor plans. It will prove a real incentive to the home owner to achieve a truly attractive, livable, and lasting home.



The fireplace end of the large studio living room, showing a glimpse of the "raftered ceiling." The floor level of this intriguing room is two steps below that of the dining room. The walls are of softly textured plaster and the floors hardwood.



A modern bath which leaves little to be desired, with its tile walls and floor, its overhead shower fixture and glistening porcelain enamel fixtures.

- Whatever the home of tomorrow does . . . it must serve us.
- Golden beige tile with a contrasting band of tomato may be built into a bathroom wall.
- All signs point to the likelihood that new building will start shortly.
- Glass continues to be a favorite material for modernistic work. Would you like a jet black floor for your bathroom?

Even Ski Jump Is Now Fashion's Parade Ground

Coasting Hill and Skating Rink Also Demand Dashing Sports Ensembles.

By Rhea Seeger.

THE bright and breezy performances known as winter sports demand correct clothes, for if you are not appareled in models of colorful glory as well as suits completely windproof, light in weight and exceedingly comfortable, the results are clumsiness, sogginess, general discomfort. Don't assemble a sports wardrobe for active sports casually. Buy your clothes as you do your golf clubs, slowly and meticulously and if you are an amateur, go where you will get expert advice.

Skiing is rapidly becoming the most popular of winter sports. You don't have to go farther than the corner hillside to find a flock of snow birds swooping down at breakneck speed, or watch the timid souls try out the nursery slopes, all of them with the newest and best of the ski outfits. Skating and tobogganing, two other strenuous methods of enjoying snow and winter weather, take almost the same sort of clothes, so with a good snowy winter staring us all in the face, we dug around and found the newest, best looking, and most practical of winter sports outfits, found them in a regular sports shop. All have been officially oked by experts at the game.

White Lined Jacket Is Reversible.

No. 1 is a lightweight ski suit in bright blue and white, made of Byrd cloth for obvious reasons. The snappy short jacket is lined with white, or in other words is reversible. The snugly cut pants are ankled in white. With this outfit are the giddily patterned and gayly colored wool knitted cape socks, scarf, and mittens imported from Estonia. Bright yellow contrasted with flaming red and green is the color scheme.

In No. 2 we see zippered, dark wool trousers topped by the eye filling striped Hudson Bay coat, called that because it is made from one of the famous white and striped Hudson Bay blankets. This has pockets and a high, warm collar and a belt to keep you trim and slim at the waistline.

No. 3 is a striped sweater set with matching mittens, scarf, and cap, to wear with dark wool suits. No. 4 shows a dark gabardine jacket made to hug snugly along the ribs and hipped with flapped pockets. It fastens with the much used zipper. No. 5 . . . another warm looking sweater, this time with wide, striped sleeves, and a matching set of mittens, scarf, socks, and cap. Can be had in all high colors and contrasts. No. 6 . . . one of the finds of a shopping lifetime, a chamois sweater jacket that is as practical as it is swanky. Long sleeves inset to the jacket proper with pieces of matching yellow knitted fabric and a knitted neckline. It's a slick jacket for all winter sports or chilly days chasing the golf ball.

Enter the Arctic Circle's Conception of Millinery.

No. 7 . . . the Parka jacket, as any one can see at a glance. Fitted with a front zipper and the arctic circle conception of millinery it is unquestionably the potential pet of any good wardrobe. It comes in waterproof, windproof, navy blue material. No. 8 . . . and here, finicky ladies who have shivered and shaken with inadequate underlayers rather than don the atrocities of former years, is the underwear for the sportswomen, cleverly cut and expertly designed to be warm under garments of warm, windproof chamoiskin. What a find for the hunting season, what a comfort for sports, or standing half a day in a wet and clammy duck blind! A shirt and long, long trousers that fit and keep you slim. For this idea alone some understanding designer should receive an entire chest full of medals.

Every piece illustrated—the clothes, the skis, shoes, skates, and accessories—were found and duly checked by a Chicago shop that shows correct sports clothes exclusively.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A protective cream is an ideal foundation when you want makeup to remain fresh until dawn.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo. Posed by Madeline Leonard.]

By Eleanor Nangle.

GREASE paint, in a beautifully pliable form, is now gracing some of our best dressing tables and piling up laurels of the sort it never knew when its only home was the madly mussed theatrical dressing room.

The kind we speak of is called a protective cream and, is of course, used as a foundation for ordinary makeup. Its refinement has relieved it of the heaviness that is indispensable for theatrical makeup but undesirable for everyday use. It keeps the delicately made up face looking fresh from dusk until dawn—a great help to the younger of Eve's daughters who are given, these winter nights, to long engagements that start with pre-dinner cocktails and end up with scrambled eggs as the sun rises.

Using it properly is a trick a child could, but shouldn't, master. The small jar in which it comes should last about a year, and that fact alone will give you an excellent idea of how sparingly it is applied.

The face is first cleansed in your favorite fashion—either cream or soap and water, or both. Then it is gone over thoroughly with a cotton pad saturated with skin tonic—the one concocted by the maker of the cream is a delightful one, by the way. While the skin is still moist the protective cream is worked on carefully. You don't smear it on as you do ordinary things. With one finger put it on the moist face in five or six small dots—on nose, cheeks, chin, and forehead. Spread it evenly, then moisten the fingers in skin tonic and smooth it out to a perfectly even film, with no ridges anywhere.

After that comes the makeup—rouge, powder, eye shadow, and what ever else you fancy in the way of a facial paint job. It's an excellent trick, though a little frightening at first to the amateur, to "set" the makeup after powder and rouge have been applied. You do this by wringing a pad out in the skin tonic and patting the powdered face gently with it. This little stunt is guaranteed to remove the powdered look and give even longer life to the makeup.

The protective cream comes in an assortment of skin tints and isn't expensive.

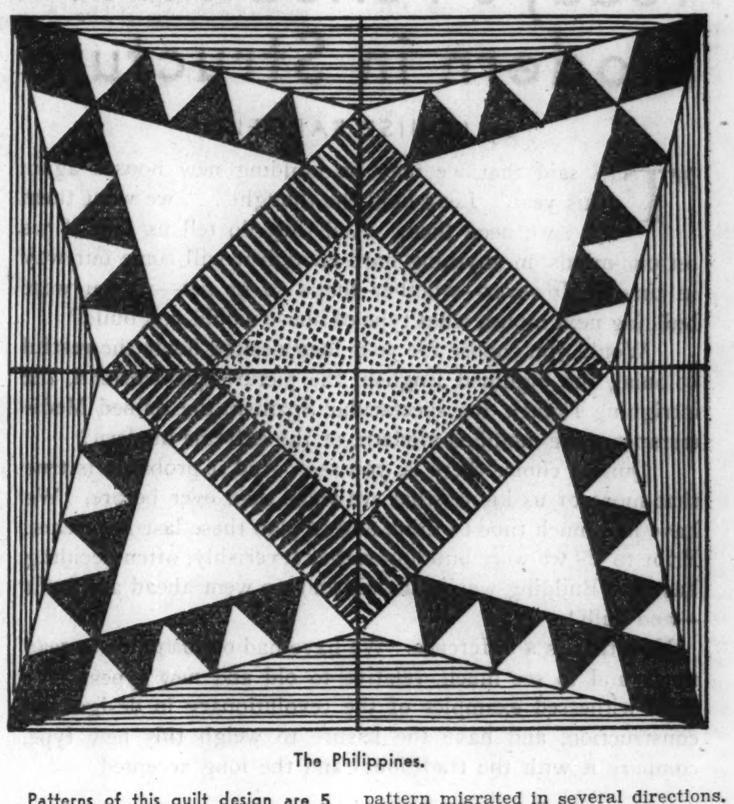
Design of This Quilt Dates Back to the Treaty of Paris



The Philippines.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

SHORTLY after the treaty of Paris, whereby the Philippines were surrendered to the United States by Spain, a pioneer woman of southern California created and named this design for a coverlet. Before the spread was finished she sent one square to a sister in the east. From there and the west coast the pattern migrated in several directions. Today it is regarded as one of the loveliest of the pieced quilts. The blocks are large, measuring 18 inches square when completed, and the entire coverlet requires twenty pieced blocks.

Another edition is out—Nancy Cabot's second book of quilts is ready. It contains 96 more illustrations of favorite quilt patterns, together with one complete pattern, "The Rose Basket." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Jan. 14.

Early sowing of pansy seed will produce excellent plants for early spring planting. Buy only the best varieties, sow them carefully, and transplant them into boxes or flats when large enough to handle. Pansies are cool weather subjects and must not be given excessive heat. Now is the time to prepare lists of plants you want and to place orders before stocks are depleted. Study carefully the fertilizers to be used, spraying operations, and materials, and the selection of varieties.

Tuesday, Jan. 15.

Scions for grafting may be cut for spring use. Cut only the bearing wood, not the water sprouts. Place in moist sand and in a cool cellar to keep in a firm, healthy condition. The woodlot should be given attention during good weather. Cut out the dead wood first, and thin, mishapen, and crowded trees. Wood cut for stove use should be hauled to the shelter of a shed, not left in the woods to rot. When convenient, go over all tools and machinery. Oil the lawnmower, paint parts that need it, and get everything in the best possible condition.

Wednesday, Jan. 16.

The care of winter plants following the Christmas season is all important if they are to last any length of time. Poinsettias should be watered every day; they do best in a rather high temperature [65 to 70 deg.] and must be kept free from drafts and sudden changes. Flowering heather must also be kept in moist soil and never allowed to dry out. Forced goldenbell [forsythia] may be enjoyed if a few branches are placed in deep containers. Sprinkle the tops frequently to keep the wood plump; the buds will swell in a few days, after which they may be placed in the room. If they are kept in a cool place in jars of water and brought into a high temperature occasionally, good flowers may be enjoyed throughout the winter.

Thursday, Jan. 17.

During January, the following may be sown for early blooming: Lobelia, verbena, marguerite, snapdragon, petunia, wishbone plant, forget-me-not, impatiens, silk oak, canna and salvia. The small conservatory or greenhouse is the best place for germination, although with good house conditions good plants may be raised. Look over the geraniums and bulbous stock. Clean gladiolus combs. Dahlias stored in shavings will keep well. Keep in boxes in a cool situation.

Friday, Jan. 18.

Mulching with strawy material may be done now. Simply place the material evenly over the snow and at the first thaw it will settle in place. Grasp every opportunity to obtain this material. Take a few more potted bulbs into the house for later blooming. To obtain good flower stalks of the hyacinth cover the tops with cylinders of paper. Keep the soil moist but not saturated until the plants grow rapidly.

Saturday, Jan. 19

A little commercial fertilizer scattered on the surface of the soil of pot plants will be beneficial if the plants need fertilizer. It must be borne in mind that many house plants are comparatively dormant during the winter and need only sufficient moisture to keep them from wilting. A few of the best house plants are the corn plant [Dracaena], screw pine [Pandanus], mother-in-law tongue plant [Sansevieria], date palm [Phoenix], Boston fern [Nephrolepis], wandering Jew [Tradescantia], philodendron [a vine]. Several plants may be grown as novelties, such as a sweet potato in a glass of water, the seed of the alligator pear stood up with three toothpicks and half submerged in a glass of water, the resurrection plant which opens when placed on a saucer of water and dries up again when water is withheld.

THE SPARROWS

By Eleanor Jewett.

I watch them carefully where they fly,
The little sparrows in the sky—
And wonder what it is they do
Not to catch cold like me and you?

I've seen birds perched on snowy trees,
But never yet have heard one sneeze;
With bare feet they run on and off
Of snow and ice, but never cough.

I can't remember being told
Why the sparrows don't catch cold.
With coat and cap they never fuss—
I'll bet they're glad they are not us!

U. S. Has Twice as Many Widows as Widowers

THROUGHOUT the United States there are nearly 5,000,000 widows, or more than twice the number of widowers.

Women take to amateur deep sea diving more quickly than men, according to Dr. Louis Mowbray, curator of the government aquarium in Hamilton, Bermuda. "They plunge in without hesitation, but men usually feel their way gingerly," he explained.

Kindness Is Just as Essential to Genuine Charm as Poise, Beauty and Well-Groomed Appearance

Although You're Smartly Gowned and Beautiful, You Will Need It, Too.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

TO prove that beauty today is more or less merely the blueprint upon which distinctiveness, charm, great appeal, or what you want to term it, is planned:

In the recently announced winners of the twelve best dressed women of the world, did you notice that judgment was not confined to taste in and the ability to wear clothes well? No, the voting jury of dressmakers judged "not only the charm and beauty of the contestants," but their vivacity, poise, personality, brains, and "it" were held essential to a distinctive place on the list of the world's best dressed.

In any distinguished woman contest today good grooming and all the tricks of the beauty making game, while of great importance, are not quite enough. Fine grooming, fastidious personal hygiene, buoyant health are merely essentials to a bigger and better cause, we might put it. There's vivacity, poise, personality, brains, and "it," as the deciding dressmaker jury put it—and charm.

So, let's on with our charm lessons.

Kindness Is an Essential of Charm.

We've already talked of the charming walk and how to practice it, the graceful hand gesture, the voice that pleases, and of grammatical errors and phrases that strike the ear discordantly. We've talked of the charm destroying habits of tense, nervous, fidgety mannerisms, and suggested ways of acquiring poise. We've talked of certain social graces such as being a charming hostess and guest, an interested listener, a stimulating person to others.

There's still more to come, although having conquered the foregoing assets you're well on your way to being one of the twelve most charming.

Let's talk for a minute of kindness. Never mind if it does sound kind of Pollyannish, maybe a bit mid-Victorian. But your brittle minded modern woman with her bitingly smart retorts has a long, long way to go back before she begins to reap the harvest of those whose good taste is based on kindness. To illustrate: In your own group, as in most groups, there's that splendidly dressed and groomed person, often really most decorative. You may have commented on the fact that with all her gifts she fails to register with men. With women, too, but with men especially.

Her failure is traced without difficulty to her biting tongue. You've said it, yourself: "I'm afraid of that tongue of hers." On the other hand, there's always that other woman, maybe not one-half so decorative, but extremely popular because you know her to be a thoroughly kind person.

Instead of Rebuke, Say It Gently.

I think of the type who wants to be known as smart, keen-on-the-trigger, as they call it. She is always there with the sharp witticism, the barbed shaft, the destructive word. It's a habit—a cultivated one developed on a false applause. The woman gets a laugh to dispel her audience's embarrassment, really. But she feeds on the applause and will not recognize it for what it is.

The other woman — the charming one, not wishy-washy, far from it—isn't out to make any sparkling reputation for herself at the expense of any one or anything. She's too truly kind. And if you don't think this is all tied up with beauty, listen to what people say of the kind one: "She's perfectly lovely."

Charm is simply nothing if it is not the art of pleasing. Writing that statement ten, fifteen, twenty times a day in your copybook wouldn't be a bad exercise at all. Indeed, you might substitute it for one of your daily dozens with assurance of quicker returns. It's tact. It's good taste. It's etiquette. It's heart. It's CHARM.

But it must be exercised daily. It isn't something you can put on and take off like your best hat. Practice on your family. It isn't something to reserve for company. Instead of the hasty rebuke—say it with kindness. You'll never have to report again that they do not appreciate you. Practice it on your friends and see how much more often your company is sought.

In being natural there's an infinite amount of charm. Be unaffected in manner and speech, not trying to act or talk like any one else. This little Pat Patterson, movie star, said a smart thing to me not long ago: "Girls are so silly to try to look like Garbo or Crawford or Hepburn, or any other movie star, because those stars are doing their level best to look and be like no one but themselves." As a matter of cold fact, their being themselves, and different, is what makes them big box office stuff.

Being natural would have only destructive value if the things that have become natural for you to do and say are unattractive. I say "have become" because objectionable mannerisms and habits are cultivated, for the most part. There is a natural and more lovely you willing to be released to a receptive world, if you'll only release it. It's just as possible to recover your younger charm silhouette as it is to diet an unattractive figure back to normal. Simply rid yourself of such excess spiritual fat as affectations, rudenesses, smart aleckyness, inconsiderateness of others.

And it's just good old brains that recognize in mental grooming an appeal much more far reaching than the appeal of the well dieted silhouette, the well groomed eyebrows, the skin you love to have, and shining hair exquisitely arranged. Think of rudeness as a blemished skin, of unkindness as a gross, unlovely figure, of affectations as an overdone makeup job, of over dramatizing oneself as wearing clothes most unbecoming.

Encourage Child to Exercise His Own Judgment

And Above All, Don't Criticize Severely When He Makes Bad Decision.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

THE front door banged, and a two at one step ascent of the stairs was heard. Then she slowed down and entered her mother's room.

"Hello, mother—how do you feel? Any better? Look, mother, I brought you in a copy of that magazine you wanted. Is that all right? I knew you'd ordered it from the newspaper man, but daddy says he's so awf'ly unreliable, and besides his delivery boy just broke his leg, and I thought maybe he wouldn't deliver it, and I know you like something to read when you have a cold. Was that all right, mother, to get it?"

Her mother smiled at her.

"Of course it was, honey—it was thoughtful of you."

Just then the magazine that had already been delivered slipped to the floor.

"O!" came a disappointed exclamation. "Jones did send you one. O dear, I suppose you think I'm silly."

"Indeed I don't, darling. I think it showed good judgment on your part to bring one. Just suppose he hadn't delivered it the way he sometimes doesn't deliver the paper; then I would have nothing to read just when I need it in the late afternoon."

Joe Decides to Run No More Errands.

This happened at the Benningtons', while over at the Davidsons' Joe Davidson was saying:

"And they didn't have the kind of fixtures that fit the rod you gave me, mom, and I didn't know what to do, because you said you had to put up that bathroom curtain before dad got home with Capt. Jackson. So I decided I'd buy a whole new outfit—rod and fixtures—but I didn't know whether you'd want me to or not. Look, mom; here they are." He showed them rather timidly.

Joe's mother picked the rod up disapprovingly.

"Why didn't you try Smiths, and the 5 and 10 cent store, too?"

"But, mom, you said you were in a terrible hurry."

"Yes, but that other rod is a good solid rod and you've spent twice what you needed to, and these rods are never much good. Why didn't you get the flat kind?"

A crestfallen boy listened and looked on.

"I never know what to do, mom," he said. "I'm not going to do any more errands. You tell me to use my judgment and then when I do you call me down."

Obviously, these two stories show the right and the wrong way to treat the child who has tried to use his or her own judgment. Yet far too many of us—and that goes for fathers as well as mothers—are like Joe Davidson's mother. We complain if our children don't show any initiative and we find fault with them if they do.

When we see it in black and white it is easy to label one mother's reaction right and the other wrong. Yet, perhaps doing so will help some of us to avoid the latter pitfall, or to step out of it if we have already fallen in.

I know how easy it is to criticize a child's decision when you have told him to get something or do something if it isn't exactly what you would have gotten or done. But it is seriously bad for his confidence in himself when you do so, and it tends to lessen his independence.

Accept Results of Letting Child Use His Judgment.

Or if you send your son to the lumber yard to get wood for your shelves and to buy what he thinks best, then don't greet his purchase with "Why did you get maple, Sam, pine is so much cheaper? And didn't they have any ten inch so you wouldn't have to plane it down? How much was it? Well, that's altogether too much. Why did you pay it?"

Any one, but especially a child, feels like a "worm" after having had his judgment questioned and criticized like that.

Marriage and Career Do Mix, Woman Avers

Mrs. Rudolf Jacobi from Germany Has Combined Two Roles Successfully.

CAREERS for women don't shatter married life—they increase its chances for stability and happiness. At least this is the opinion of Mrs. Rudolf Jacobi, and Mrs. Jacobi should know, for she has combined successfully the business of running a home, a husband, and two children with a career as a distinguished artist and the director of an art school for a number of years.

A German painter of note, Mrs. Jacobi recently has come to New York because the Nazis imposed too many restrictions on students. She specializes in canvases of "the independent woman" both in Europe and America. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Jane Addams, Lillian D. Wald, and a score of other American business and professional women, from farmers to patent lawyers, look down from the walls of her new studio in Gotham. She signs her canvases, which are done in the modern manner, "Annot."

Careers Solution to Many Domestic Ills.

Far from being a menace to marriage, careers for women are a solution to many domestic ills, in Mrs. Jacobi's opinion. "All life's problems are solved when a woman is independent," she declares. "Professional women don't take problems as seriously as those with no profession, and marriages are not endangered because the independent woman does not regard so seriously the trying crises which always arise in married life.

"As for children, they love the work their mother does and are interested in her professional life. It makes them eager to work themselves."

Women Who Work Have Certain Different Charm.

Nor does Mrs. Jacobi find women who work less charming than the matrons who sit by the fireside. The former, she avers, "have something new and different in their faces that makes them more attractive. I can tell by a woman's face whether she earns her own living or is dependent. Independent women have a kind of freedom and dignity in their faces."

Blonde, sturdy, Nordic Mrs. Jacobi—she is half German, half Norwegian—finds America an exciting country. "Coming from Europe," she says, "one has the feeling that here something is growing and developing. New York can become what Paris has been—the art center of the world."

Entire Meal May Be Prepared in Versatile Roaster

MANUFACTURERS are endeavoring to outdo themselves as well as one another in finding ways to prepare an entire meal in one vessel. Perhaps it is sympathy for the dishwasher. However, the new electric roaster, now available in Chicago department stores, roasts meat, prepares vegetables, bakes pies, biscuits, and cake. It even cans seven pint jars by the cold pack process. It is large enough to hold a turkey or a ten pound ham, plus potatoes and a vegetable—sufficient for a meal. Additional equipment consists of a removable inset and three pans. The body finish of this versatile roaster is green, and the cover is chromium plated.

Hobnail Pattern Earthenware Is Novel Attraction

THOSE in search of attractive occasional dishes will find the hobnail pattern of Maruhon earthenware [Japanese] on the market at this time, new and distinctive. The color is a rich ivory tone, and gay yellow buttercups with slender green leaves, replacing regular handles, add the finishing touch to these dainty and lovely dishes. In this hobnail assortment, available at a Chicago store, are adorable urn shaped tea pots, with sugar and creamer to match, upon oval shaped serving trays. Cups and saucers for tea or demi-tasse service, cunning mustard jars, cookie jars, Lazy Susan sandwich plates with handles extending up in the center, and topped off with a cluster of these colorful yellow flowers, makes this type of dishes most interesting. There are also two sizes of plates, with plain centers and deep hobnail border design, that are marvelous utility plates for many purposes.

Toaster Browns Three Slices in Single Operation

CAN you make three slices of toast simultaneously in one and a half minutes? Another new toaster has made its appearance on the market to make toasting easy. Triangular in shape, it is of chrome and black, with a black bakelite knob at the top with which to carry it about conveniently. It is nine inches high.

This same manufacturer has a streamline toaster of stainless steel with feet and handles of black bakelite. A round knob at the side ejects the toast.

Bellhop's Jacket Is Inspiration for a Smart Crochet Blouse

If you wish instructions for crocheting the bellhop jacket illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Ellen Bruce.

The short, swagger bellhop's jacket is responsible for the creation of this stunning crochet blouse for spring. A zipper provides a novelty fastening which disposes of buttons and buttonholes. Or the blouse may be worn open and fastened at top and bottom, if desired. The smart patch pockets are an advantage and convenience which many bellboys may not enjoy. Light mercerized cotton makes a beautiful blouse. However, a reminder to our crochet workers! Before starting these garments be sure to consider the yarn and needle being used. Make a sample of your work to determine the tension at which you work, and the number of stitches to one inch and the number of rows to the inch. All these things play a vital part in the success of any needlework. The stitches included in the blouse are not difficult or complicated to do and the work shapes up rapidly.

Pottery Bouquet at Base Makes Lamp Distinctive

ONE of the nicest lamps of the season, available in a Chicago store, has a round base on which a squatty but artistic bunch of flowers is done in creamy white pottery. The shade is white, too. If you've gone in for the brown and white color scheme so popular this season you can also get this lamp in brown. It is not inexpensive, but it looks distinctive and well worth its cost.

Good Hostess an Artist at Setting Table

An Attractive Ensemble of China, Silver, Linen as Vital as Tempting Food.

Questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior are invited. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address mail to Helen Bartlett, Edtiquet Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

By Helen Bartlett.

FOR the sake of health and good digestion as well as etiquet, the business of eating should be made a pleasing one. The food, the cooking, and the arrangement of the food are highly important in creating such an atmosphere, naturally enough, but such subjects as this we must leave to the kitchen mechanics and the recipe specialists for necessary and obvious reasons. However, the attractiveness of the informal table and the manner in which the table is set play the important rôle in establishing a mental attitude of repose and comfort. This is where we put in our oar . . . to encourage housewives to set their tables as attractively as they possibly can so as to invite tranquility and composure on the part of the diners whether it is a family or a company dinner. We are all inclined to hurry through our meals at too great a speed.

You see we expect a great deal of the modern housewife these days. She must be a scientist, an artist, and a clever hostess . . . a scientist in the kitchen and an artist in the dining room. You all know of some one among your acquaintances who answers that description . . . everything she does she does in a clever way. A magic touch as it were. Try to emulate her or even do her one better without sacrificing good taste for originality or uniqueness.

Charmingly arranged and correct in every detail is this table setting for the informal dinner. The tea service on the serving table echoes the simplicity and is convenient to the hostess who serves her dinner without the assistance of a maid.

Quiet simplicity is the keynote. The accompanying picture tells the story at a glance. It also tells the story of correct table setting for the informal dinner.

The dinner knife is at the right of the cover with the blade facing the center. Beside it is a teaspoon and next the bouillon spoon. At the left is the dinner fork and next to it on the outside, the salad fork. The simplest rule to remember in the placing of the silver is that the silver is arranged from the outside toward the center in the order in which it is to be used.

The service plate is in position with the napkin folded neatly at the left of each. The water glass is at the tip of the knife and the bread and butter plate slightly to the left of the service plate, with the little spreader in the proper position . . . horizontally across the plate with the sharper edge of the blade facing the edge of the table.

The tea service you will notice is on the little serving table. Such a piece of furniture is a distinct advantage to the housewife who serves without the assistance of a maid.

Yellow mums nestled in a French blue pottery bowl which emphasizes the bluebird design on the china completes the picture. Everything perfectly simple and unostentatious, but everything attractive, restful, and correct.

Paris Designers and Hollywood Collaborating

Foreign Beach Fashions Reach American Women via Movie Colony.

By Bettina Bedwell.

NEW YORK.—[Special.] — There has been, and is, considerable discussion about the sources of our styles here in the U. S. A. The newest crop is a blend of Paris and Hollywood. These are fashions designed to wear along southern coasts and cruising around into the sun. They come from the fertile fingers of American designers, who, when they got busy, followed Mr. Kipling's advice and "wot they thought they might require, they went and took, the same as me." Wot they took mostly as inspiration for southern suits, beach wear, and what-not, was the Paris mode, with which they cunningly blended Hollywood glamor. The result is an intoxicating array.

Actual beach fashions go native in a big way. Pareos and sarongs replace pajamas and regulation shorts. Peasant parentage is stamped in the silhouette lines and woven into the materials of these clothes for the south. Pareos and sarongs are those tricky half-skirts, etc., that south sea island maidens wear as they romp around their coral slung beaches.

Fashionable Shorts Now Reach to the Knees.

Up in the right hand corner is pictured one of these beach garments. It comes also in another guise with a brief skirt that covers knitted culottes. It is made of flaming red and white flowered cotton, and the garland necklet is of white rubberized flowers. The skirt unties, comes off, and there are brief swimming trunks of the same stuff underneath.

In the upper left is a picture of the new long shorts, which isn't a mistake. That's what they are. They reach almost to the knees and are full, being plaited, and worn over knitted culottes. They are made of blue and white checked gingham as fresh as spring water, with a sleeveless blouse and a white linen shirt underneath. A double breasted gingham bolero jacket goes with these shorts. Shorts that reach the knees and are full as an island girl's short skirt are the smart kind. Those extremely short, mannish shorts of last year and the year before and on back.

Look at the traveling ensemble shown at the left, which gives you a load of cape and suit glamor, as it is being handed out to wear in the southern sun this season. This ensemble is made of a pale beige tweed that is generously flecked with brightest reds, greens, and blues. High color in tweeds, in silks, and in cottons is a feature of the southern resort fashions that hits you in the eye, as it were, when you look at them.

The cape is three-quarters length, cut with a slight flare below fitted shoulders, and with slits for the arms, a tailored collar, and revers like a regular topcoat. The suit has a smart reefer jacket that fastens on six large buttons and that has patch pockets. The straight skirt has two box plaits in front below the knees. The bonnet is from Schiaparelli and is made of leghorn, natural color, with the back brim cut loose and tied under the chin.

Fashion Continues to Advocate Stripes.

Fashion is going right on wearing stripes again this coming season. Striped wraps, like the one shown in the center, indicate how. This is a cape-jacket of green and off-white wool, with a drooping shoulder yoke to give the sloping shoulder line we must have this coming season. The cape hangs over the jacket from this shoulder yoke, and the latter buttons up the center front and has big revers that rise a bit above the shoulders. With this goes a two piece dress made of off-white wool. Two piece frocks are all over the style marts that cater to ladies going south. This one has a high collar of the striped wool set above a ray tucked neckline. The green belt has a buckle in the form of a cluster of green metal leaves. The bias cut skirt is perfectly plain. The saucer sailor that is worn with this ensemble is made of cellophane straw in a glistening off-white color.

The divided skirt is another leading entry in the southern resorts style sweepstakes. The divided skirt shown at the right is the type that everybody is showing. It is made of coarse horizon blue linen. With it goes a fitted jacket that is certainly directly inspired by Schiaparelli, with those extra high sleeve seams, halfway up the top of the shoulders, and with the full topped sleeves. This jacket is made of red, blue, and white plaid linen, and buttons on two wooden cylinders at the front. The brimmed hat is also made of plaid gingham.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

- Paris keeps the button-on beach skirt in fashion for the coming season, but this year she buttons it up the back instead of the front.
- Spanish sombreros and bullfighter capes are on tap for the southern beach, and so are button-on beach aprons that are peasant in shape.
- Waistlines get in the spotlight of the new styles in new ways. On evening gowns waistlines are often dropped to the hips, where they are delicately suggested by bow or drapings by Schiaparelli and Vionnet. If the skirt goes up at the hem and the waistline comes down, that'll be front page news, and both these changes are suggested by French dressmakers.
- Lots of the spring dresses in Paris collections have peplums at the hipline. These are shown principally on daytime dresses, though some evening gowns have 'em also.

TROPICAL STYLES FOR SOUTHERN VACATIONS

- Upper left: Shorts are longer this season, like this blue and white gingham model, and have full, divided skirts. The bolero is a style detail, and so is the white linen sports shirt. • Lower left: This bright-flecked beige tweed ensemble has Hollywood allure and Paris chic united in cape, reefer, and skirt. • Center: Green and off-white striped wool makes this cape-jacket—and the off-white wool dress is collared with the striped material. The hat is the new saucer sailor. • Lower right: Divided skirt of coarse blue linen and jacket of red, white, and blue plaid linen make this suit for the southern bound sportswoman. • Upper right: From the south sea islands comes the inspiration for this beach ensemble of bright red and white flowered cotton—it arrives via Hollywood via Paris.

Turkish Youth Frowns on Women Who Wear Veils

TURKISH women who cling to the old fashioned veil are being criticized severely by the modern youth of Turkey.

Says Nagging Is Women's Chief Weapon of Tyranny

They Use It to Dominate Over Households, Attorney Tells Doris.

By Doris Blake.

"A LOT of crazy women are running around shouting for world peace who haven't learned how to keep peace in their own families."

Thus spoke a lawyer grown disheartened with a long succession of discordant family tales.

"What," we asked, "is your formula for keeping peace in the family?"

"The same formula that would serve for world peace: Doing away with tyranny, letting the other fellow live peacefully."

"But why the woman implication?" we pursued.

"Because women are the home tyrants. They're the naggers, the 'last-worders,' the bulliers, the flaw pickers, the big bosses whose word and wish must be obeyed.

Nagging Is One Form of Tyranny.

"If nagging isn't a form of tyranny," the man continued, "what, in heaven's name, is? What is the 'last word' the woman would lose her home for rather than forego it but an insane desire to lord it over some one? Picking flaws in others is another form of showing off self-assumed superiority.

"Even worrying is more often than not a club the woman uses over the defenseless heads of her husband and children. Insisting upon her own personal wishes and desires is simply rank tyranny. And——"

But that's enough for today—just about all we of the abused sex can stand at one sitting.

In important crises in life, during depressions, during great trials, bereavements, women, our lawyer friend (or enemy) admits, can take it on the chin, and admirably. But in the average run of daily affairs heroics are not our common virtue. On the contrary, we, so our accuser says, are simply vain, petty creatures with an insatiable yen to domineer over the poor unfortunates who happen to be housed under the same roof.

The charge, the gentleman readily admits, has nothing to do with and in no way applies to women who have learned the art of comradely coöperation and whose homes reflect the harmonious atmosphere. It's where tension, discord, unhappiness exist you cherchez la femme with the tyranny complex—and find her, according to our informant.

Well, we happen to know homes where the tyranny emanates from the other side of the house; where men bark and bite, and nag and grouch, and make life generally disagreeable for the home inmates; where men browbeat wives and children into slavelike submission. So we do not have to agree with our lawyer friend (or enemy) that if it weren't for women home would be every man's Utopia.

Prodding Healthful for the Male.

Yet he does offer an interesting slant on certain indulgences some of us of the so-called fair sex permit ourselves. Nagging! We never thought of nagging as a form of tryranny. When we tell Bill, or John, or Roderick, he ought to step on the gas we may be only kidding ourselves that we are urging him on "for his own good." Perhaps, after all, it is our way of expressing discontent with the gentleman, of convincing ourselves that we were intended for higher and better spheres.

Tyranny or not, we're not so sure that this kind of prodding isn't healthful for the male. When men stand up on the speakers' platform and announce, "It was the little woman who made me what I am today," there must have been some form of prodding back of the gentleman's success.

Common sense, however, tells us that isn't the sort of nagging complained of. It's when we pick flaws and keep reiterating defects in the mate until we have succeeded in undermining his self-esteem that there's the devil to pay in the household.

The other type of woman, the comradely one, has a different system. She builds up her husband's morale by stressing his other personality assets and slips in improvement suggestions in the subtlest way imaginable. Thus is eliminated that eternal man-woman struggle to determine which shall be the recognized head.

Dried Beef a Legacy from the Buccaneers

Bold Pirates of Olden Days Discovered Nutritive Value of This Delicacy.

By Mary Meade.

When the big, bad buccaneers of the Spanish main weren't all tied up with plank-walking, ship-scuttling and maiden abducting, they liked nothing better than to take time out to go rustling dried beef lunches. In fact, it was no trouble at all for a jolly group of the boys to park their ship alongside some neat little island and enter into the meat preparing business. But these first big scale meat dressers of America couldn't be bothered with roasts and steaks. All they wanted from a cow carcass was a generous portion of bouccan—prosaically known as jerked or dried beef—from which, we are informed, they acquired the name of buccaneers.

Taking a tip from these dashing sea dogs, modern adventurers have discovered that our own version of dried beef contains much energy in concentrated form. As a result, many an exploring party has existed satisfactorily on emergency rations of dried beef and chocolate. But it's not necessary to climb mountains to enjoy the tang of dried beef. Adventures can be had with it right at home. One casserole specialty of ours which makes most satisfactory eating is—

SCALLOPED RICE AND DRIED BEEF.
1 cup uncooked rice
2 cups dried beef shredded
Butter, milk and seasoning.

Cook the rice in 2 quarts of boiling, salted water until just tender—about 25 minutes. Grease a casserole and arrange in it alternate layers of hot cooked rice and freshly sliced, shredded dried beef. Sprinkle each layer with a little melted butter and dashes of salt and pepper. Pour over all just enough milk to moisten. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

Dried Beef and Rice Can Be Turned Into Croquettes.

Or turn your dried beef and rice into croquettes to be served up hot and crusty under a blanket of nippy tomato sauce. This is the way:

DRIED BEEF CROQUETTES
2 cups cooked rice
2-3 cup dried beef, shredded
3 tablespoons minced parsley
Crums
1 egg, well beaten
Deep fat for frying.

Combine the seasoned cooked rice, the dried beef, and the parsley, forming them into cones or cylinder forms. Dip in fine, dry bread crums or cracker crums, then in the egg [which has been beaten with a little water], and again in the crums. Fry the croquettes in deep hot fat [375 degrees F.], until golden brown. Drain on brown paper and serve with hot tomato sauce.

Creamed dried beef spooned out over toast squares, crackers, canned fried noodles, or shoe string potatoes forms another delectable quickie for supper. Or hollow out left over rolls, butter and toast them, then pour the creamed beef into the centers. Top each with a tuft of parsley and serve hot. The recipe for the creamed dried beef is simple.

CREAMED DRIED BEEF.
[In Croustades.]
1½ cups dried beef
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 egg well beaten
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste.
Toast boxes, hollowed rolls or cream puff shells.

Shred the beef, pour boiling water over it and let stand for 10 minutes. Drain. In the meantime make a smooth white sauce in a double boiler from the butter, flour and milk. Add the frizzled beef, then slowly fold the creamed beef mixture into the beaten egg. Serve in hollowed boxes made from bread or rolls, or in cream puff shells.

Scrambled Eggs May Acquire New Zest.

Neat young cutlets made from chopped dried beef are next on the roster. The recipe:

DRIED BEEF CUTLETS.
1 cup chopped dried beef
2 cups dried bread crums
1 tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper
1 egg, well beaten.

Combine the bread crums and the dried beef, adding the butter and the beaten egg. Stir in seasoning to taste, also a little white sauce if the mixture is too dry to mold readily. Shape into the form of cutlets, dip these in fine dry crums, in beaten egg, and again in crums. Fry in deep hot fat [375 degrees F.] or in a well greased frying pan until golden brown.

Scrambled eggs take on a pleasant new zest when tossed together with chipped dried beef. Start by heating 2 tablespoons of butter with ¼ pound of sliced dried beef, simmering until the beef is hot and a little frizzled. Don't cook it too long or the beef will toughen. Now add 6 beaten eggs which have been blended with ½ cup of milk. Season with salt and pepper and stir over a low fire until the eggs are cooked.

Concentrated Mushroom Collaborates with Dried Beef.

Concentrated mushroom soup combined with chopped dried beef is another grand topping for toast fingers or crackers. It's luscious also over baking powder biscuits baked thin and crisp, then split. Or make a mushroom sauce from fresh mushrooms, adding goodness with a little brown soup stock or a bouillon cube dissolved in a cup of boiling water. Add the chopped dried beef and the deed is done.

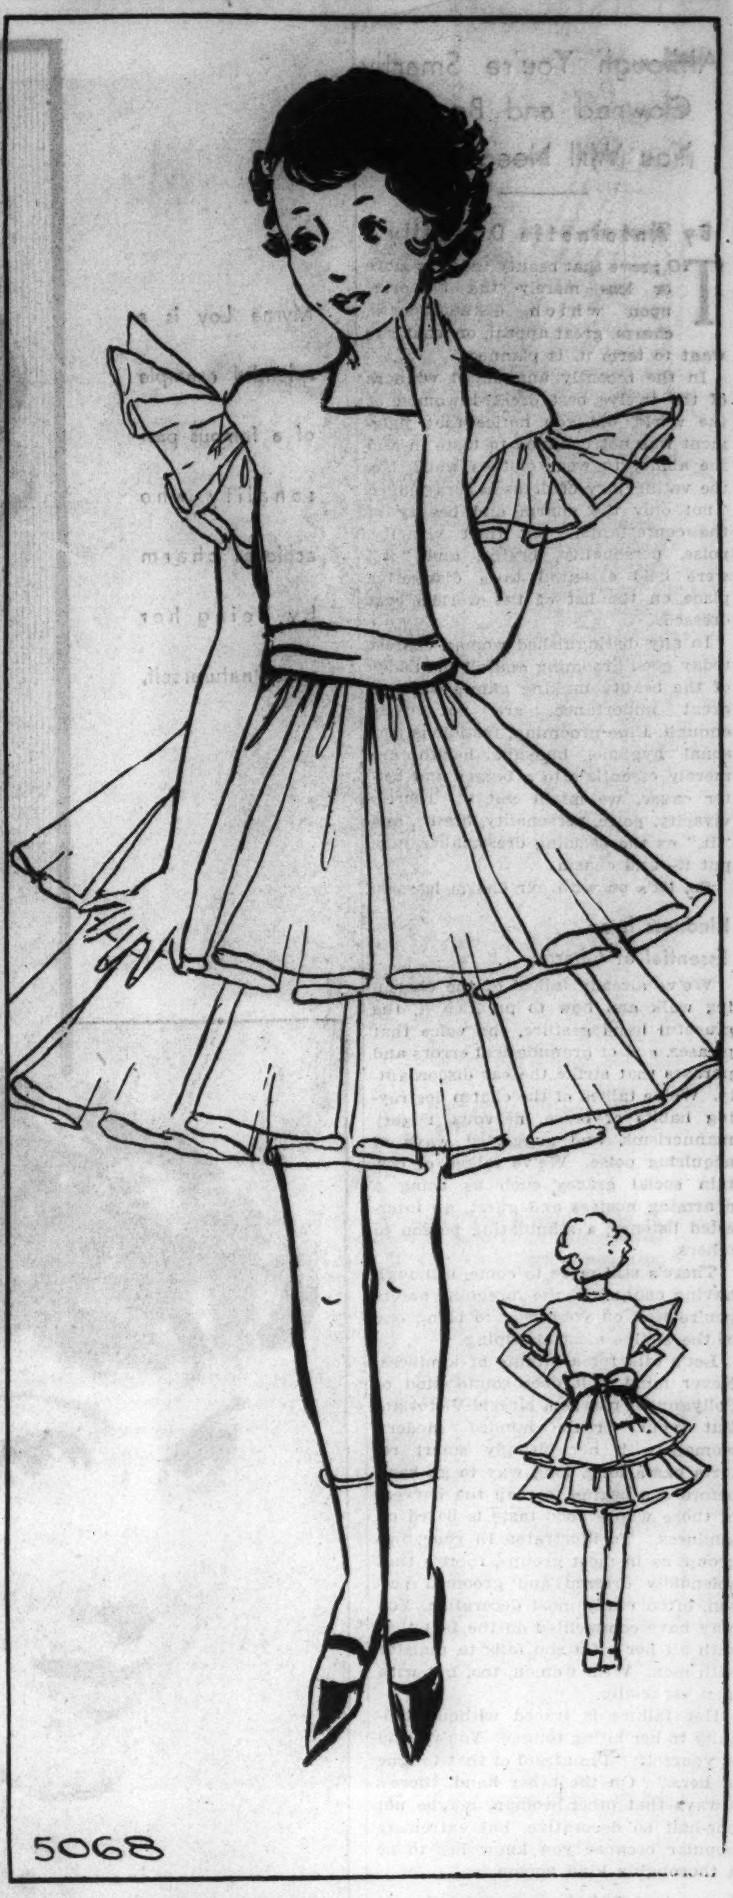
Princess Elizabeth's Frock Inspires a Paris Pattern



No. 5068—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, and 12.

By Bettina Bedwell.

THIS pattern brings you a party dress for daughter that is inspired by the lovely dress that the little Princess Elizabeth of England wore recently when her Uncle George got married.

The princess' frock was made of tulle over a foundation of silk and silver, but then little princesses don't have to wear their dresses often or long. I suggest that mothers make this dress in white or pastel organdy, which is sturdier and quite as charming. If your daughter is dark the perfect color would be pale yellow, and if blonde then pale green. Brown haired maidens can wear either or both these shades, depending on their eyes—if blue choose yellow and if dark choose green. Of course pastel blue and pink are every child's color and there is no color in the world that is so perfect for the child as white is. Daughter may, however, prefer color and if so there is no reason why she shouldn't have it.

Make the sash of satin ribbon. If the dress is in a color match the sash to it, but if you choose white the sash

Kerfoot Collection in Rockefeller Center Preserves Dishes of an Era When Pewter Ruled the Table

Plates, Pots, Lamps Suggest Home Life, Crafts of Early Americans.

If you are puzzled about the best colors to use in your living room, "Color Magic in Your Rooms" will help you. It tells how to plan color schemes for every room in the house. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices. Order from these offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

COLLECTIONS of pewter, with the passing of the years, are becoming more valuable. At the recent fine arts exposition held in Rockefeller center in New York City the famous Kerfoot collection was put on view. Among its many rare pieces are some magnificent coffee pots.

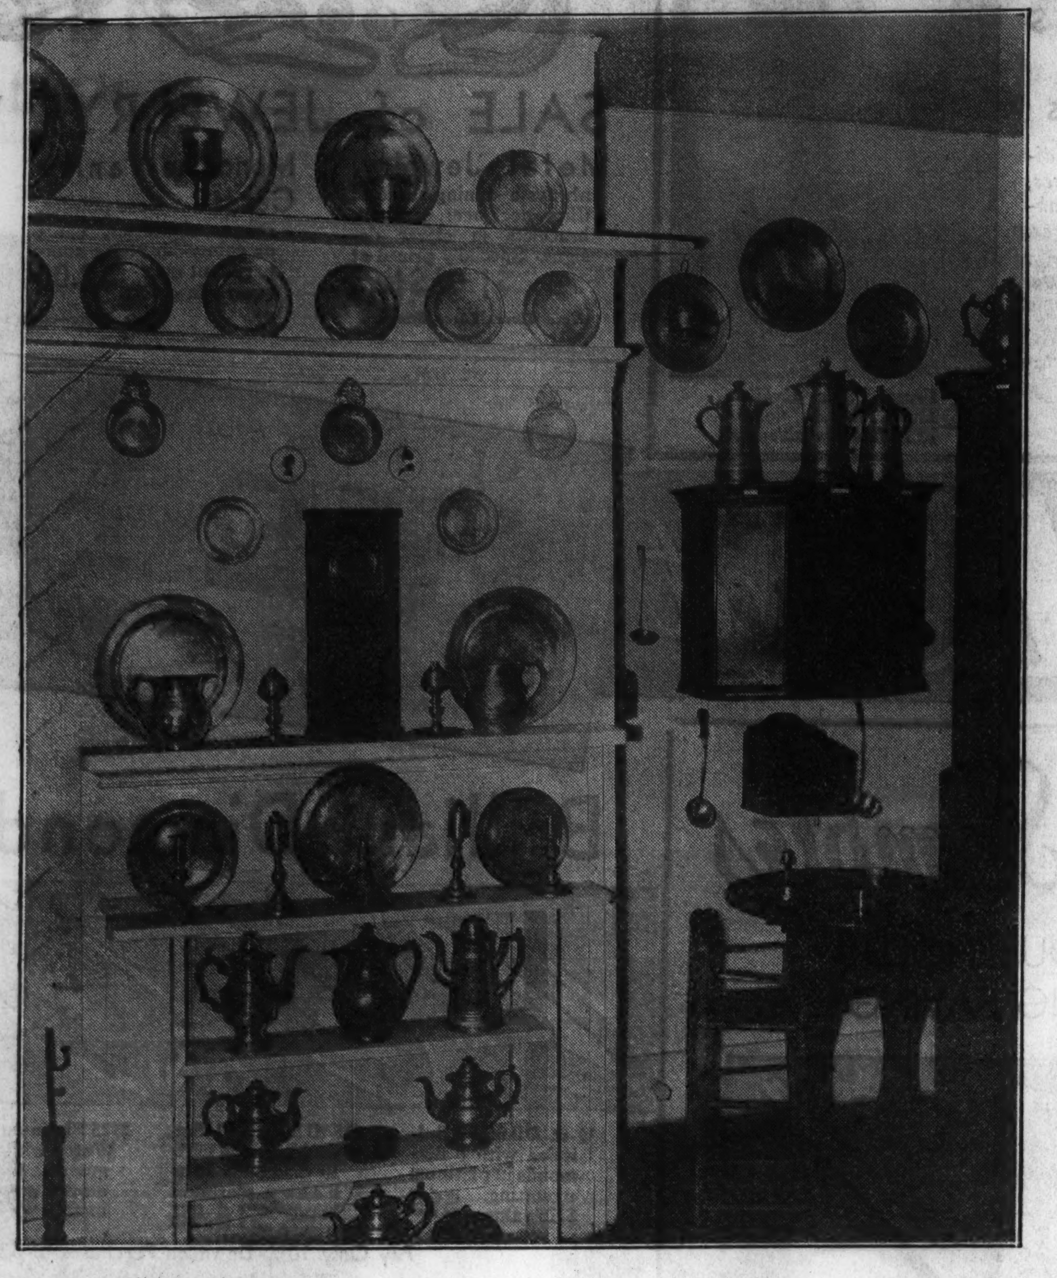
To discuss any one type of pewter such as the 8 inch plate, coffee pots, lamps, etc., it is well to understand something of the history of pewter in this country. The years 1750-1850 bound and include the effective life span of the craft of pewter making in America. At the beginning of the 18th century the colonists were far removed from the old world. Wooden trenchers were no uncommon sight here in the average household up to the time of the revolution.

Pewter's Victory Over Wood Came Before Revolution.

The final victory of pewter over wood on the American side of the Atlantic almost coincided with the preliminary triumphs of china over powter on the European side. Even before the revolution, however, the clipper ships of New England were beginning not only to reduce our distance in time from the old world, but to close the gap between us in wealth.

The making of pewter plates for table use was finally abandoned in England between 1810 and 1815. In America this took place between 1820 and 1825. After that in both countries pewter maintained a more or less successful guerilla warfare until about 1850. After that it disappeared.

Early makers concerned themselves mainly with tableware, and plates were, naturally, of foremost importance. Wood, pewter, china—these three have been successive rulers of the tableware world. Each has won its spurs as a material used to develop platters, bowls, and salt cellars. Each has fought its way to complete command, and when its triumph was won and its time came to rule, has had the scepter handed to it on a dinner plate.



Pewter becomes more valuable as the years since it was first used increase. Here is part of a famous group, the Kerfoot collection, recently shown in the fine arts exposition at Rockefeller Center in New York city. It is now in the possession of a Gotham dealer in antiques.

Metal Reached Its Height in Lamps.

When the old open herth began definitly to give place in the homes of this country to the kitchen stove, and the luxury of tea and coffee drinking began to spread downward through the social fabric, pewter makers turned their attention to the creation of coffee pots, tea pots, pitchers, and other household necessities. Then, later, they came to develop lamps. Mr. Kerfoot, authority and collector of American pewter, has designated the years 1830-'50 as "the coffee pot era."

The photograph today shows some of the many pieces from his collection. Pewter should, of course, be used in our homes today in the most informal rooms. It is charming on a maple Welsh cabinet, or oak cupboard, or simple pine table.

New Furniture Follows Lines of Modernism

Bedroom, Dining Room Pieces of Simple Design Introduce Current Mode.

"Beautiful Bedrooms," a booklet by Edith Weigle, gives helpful suggestions for furnishings and tells how to make old rooms look new. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

A BRAND new line of modern furniture has recently made its debut. In private showings in a New York and a Chicago hotel it became instantly popular with retailers and dealers, so you'll be seeing it in a few weeks (if not now) in your own favorite stores the country over.

The first exhibit consisted of 250 pieces of bedroom and dining room furniture. It will be followed by similar production in other lines and home furnishings. Throughout it will stand for quality merchandise, artist designed, produced in quantity within average price ranges. It represents the first attempt at mass production of good, simple, inexpensive, modern furniture, and if you don't like it we'll be much surprised.

Donald Deskey and Leo Jiranek, commissioned by a large North Carolina company, did the designing of every item. The woods they used are mahogany, walnut, maple, cherry, some veneers of exotic woods, and a number of enameled finishes. They designed the hardware in such clever fashion that even though it were not protected by patent it would be difficult to copy. Some of the drawer pulls are of shining copper, others are of wood in combination with metal, still others wood wrapped in fiber rope.

Units of Dressing Table Can Be Rearranged.

The bureaus and chests extend right down to the floor, with no space underneath for the collection of dust and dirt. Yet, though they appear massive, they may be pushed about quite easily by means of concealed casters. The beds are all extremely simple in line, the headboards usually being of one solid piece of wood, a lovely burl veneer the only ornamentation. Sometimes such a headboard is combined with a footboard of painted wood, giving an interesting contrast.

Metal Bands Furnish Interesting Contrast.

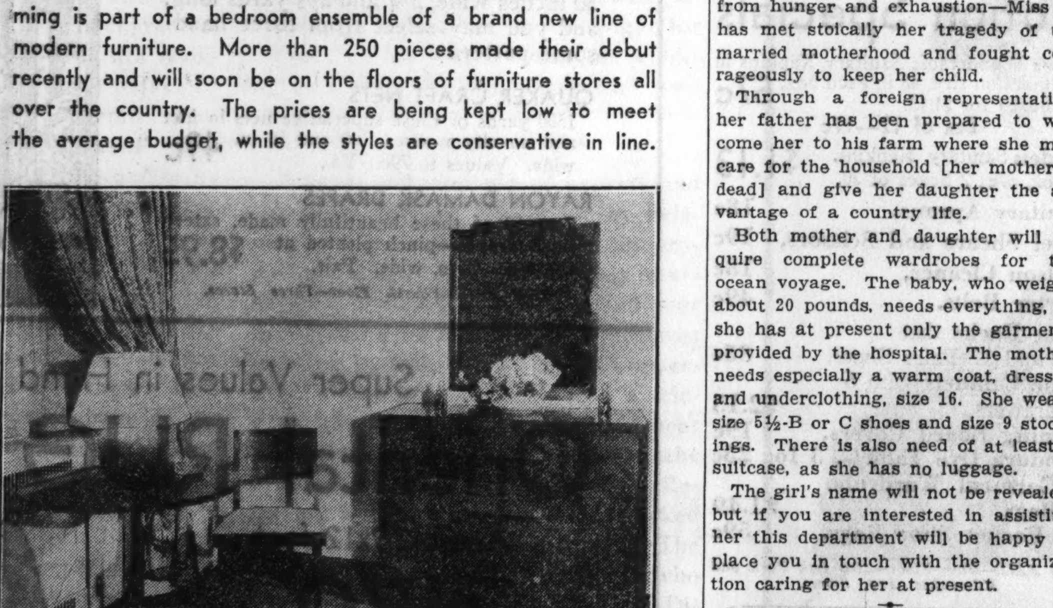
The pictures today show a dresser done in antique enameled white lacker with brown trim, and another together with table and chair in butt walnut, natural finish. Notice especially the hardware on the two chests, the white one having interesting curved bands of copper, the other long horizontal bars of wood tipped in metal as drawer pulls. Observe, too, that both dressers extend right down to the floor.

They are typical of the beautifully styled, simple pieces that make up this line of new furniture, the name of which is derived from the words: American modern decoration. There is nothing freakish, nothing outlandish or "queer" in the entire array of 250 items. It is sane, practical, good looking furniture that is easy to live with, inexpensive to buy.

It's the best piece of news in this field we've had for ages.

A DRAMATIC CONTRAST

This dresser in white enamel finish with contrasting brown trimming is part of a bedroom ensemble of a brand new line of modern furniture. More than 250 pieces made their debut recently and will soon be on the floors of furniture stores all over the country. The prices are being kept low to meet the average budget, while the styles are conservative in line.



Donald Deskey and Leo Jiranek were the designers of this dresser, table, and chair, and of all the other items in this new, mass production modern furniture. They used walnut, mahogany, maple, cherry, and employed burl veneers and some enameled finishes. It is manufactured in North Carolina.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Young Mother and Her Baby of Nine Months Need Wardrobe for Ocean Voyage Which Will Return Them Home; Others Ask Clothing.

By Sally Joy Brown.

A MODERN version of an old, old story is this sketch of a young girl's tragedy, sent to my desk by an interested case worker. I, in turn, pass it on to my readers, secure in the knowledge that it will bring a response from the warm hearted folk who watch this column for an opportunity to stretch forth a kindly hand to one in need of help.

In order that she may return to her father's farm in another country, the organization assisting her has requested clothing for a 22 year old mother, now in a maternity home with her little daughter of nine months. Seriously ill following the birth of her child—probably because of the heavy work asked of her as a domestic and the period of privation preceding her confinement when, unemployed, she had sought shelter in a strange building and fallen asleep on the stairway from hunger and exhaustion—Miss X. has met stoically her tragedy of unmarried motherhood and fought courageously to keep her child.

Through a foreign representative, her father has been prepared to welcome her to his farm where she may care for the household [her mother is dead] and give her daughter the advantage of a country life.

Both mother and daughter will require complete wardrobes for the ocean voyage. The baby, who weighs about 20 pounds, needs everything, as she has at present only the garments provided by the hospital. The mother needs especially a warm coat, dresses, and underclothing, size 16. She wears size 5½-B or C shoes and size 9 stockings. There is also need of at least a suitcase, as she has no luggage.

The girl's name will not be revealed, but if you are interested in assisting her this department will be happy to place you in touch with the organization caring for her at present.

H. H. wrote to me recently about a new invention for the blind, which is really a perfected phonograph. He is fortunate enough to possess one of these machines, and as he is unable to read, must rely upon it and his radio for contact with the outside world. The machine will play ordinary phonograph records, and as he is a great lover of classical music, Mr. H. has asked me for help in securing classical recordings, particularly symphonies. Can you help him?

Miss C. writes of another needy newcomer:

"Dear Miss Brown: Will you be good enough to endeavor to secure some clothing for a new born baby? The mother also needs a basket, bed, or buggy in which the infant may rest. The father is an ex-service man, incapacitated and unable to work. There is one other child, age 10. The infant was delivered in the home."

Mrs. K. M. is expecting a baby this month, and owing to her financial circumstances has been unable to make any preparations for it. Her husband earns little more than ten dollars per week, which provides only rent, food and other absolute necessities. She would appreciate infant's wear and a baby basket or crib of some kind.

A kindergarten teacher assigned to the instruction of the numerous young invalids in a charity hospital for children has requested a piano. It will be a great help to her in her work, and will bring the joy of music to these pathetic youngsters. If you no longer use yours, wouldn't you like to have it placed in this hospital?

P. H., a telegrapher who has been out of work for the last 30 months, has appealed to me for clothing. He feels that his personal appearance is an impediment in his search for work. He needs an overcoat and suit, size 38 or 40; shoes, 7½; hat, 7⅛, and shirts, 14½ or 15.

Dress with a Jacket Proves Useful, Chic

Cut on Simple Lines, It's Most Attractive Costume for the Junior Girl.

Fashion flash — The autumn and winter edition of the "Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions" is ready. Its pages are filled with entrancing modes and instructions for your new fall wardrobe. The price is 15 cents a copy, but only 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Address Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service bureaus at Tribune Tower or 1 South Dearborn street.

By Clotilde.

A CHARMING little dress and jacket made by pattern No. 3284 has been chosen for today. The dress is cut on simple lines and has the shirtwaist collar which is as attractive as it is becoming to the average junior girl.

The sleeves are short and finished with turned back cuffs, and the waist is slashed down from the neck at the center front, the edges bound and finished for closing. The collar comes to the slashed edges.

The skirt is perfectly plain, fitting closely about the waist and hips, and flaring enough as the skirt edge is reached to make walking easy. At the top the skirt extends above the waistline in a graceful outline.

Over this dress a dear little jacket is worn. It has full length, close fitting sleeves and crosses in front in surplice fashion, fastening at the left side at the waistline.

A black crinkly crêpe with white crêpe for contrast made the original model.

The stunning dress made by pattern No. 3253 has loads of chic. It's a model that will adapt itself perfectly to any daytime occasion, and you are bound to feel well dressed in it. A black and silver metallic cloth, trimmed with plain metal cloth, would be smart. So, also, would a sheer black woolen, trimmed with a metallic cloth. The shoulder bow is especially flattering, and the dress has straight, sleek lines and a trimness altogether attractive.

The circular skirt is cut in three pieces and pressed in a plait at the left side front. This gives a pretty little flare at the bottom without detracting from the straight effect.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

The ninth booklet of the United States commemorative series is entitled "Military Commemorative Stamps, 1931-1933." This completes a group of three which describe stamps issued in commemoration of military events and personages. The back cover page lists all booklets preceding this number, and each is priced at 5c by mail or 3c at Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. When asking questions please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THE bi-colored stamp which the postoffice department issued on Feb. 25, 1929, to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the capture of Post Vincennes by George Rogers Clark and his Virginia troops should be of interest especially to the inhabitants of Chicagoland, for through that victory the United States was able to claim the northwest territory. Had the British forces remained in possession of this post and others in the region the boundary between Canada and the United States no doubt would have been along the Ohio river.

The stamps were printed with a red border and black vignette, the latter showing a scene at the surrender of the post after a painting by Frederick C. Yohn.

Supply Exhausted.

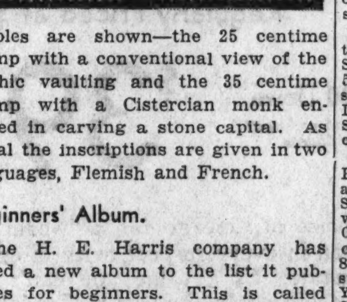
The dates "1779" and "1929" and the inscription "Vincennes" below the picture serve to identify this issue. The stamps were printed in sheets of 100, but were divided into panes of fifty stamps before being issued. Twelve plates each for the frames and vignettes were needed to provide the 16,684,674 stamps issued, and, since each frame plate was used with every vignette plate, there are 144 plate number combinations for specialists in that field.

On account of the expense involved in printing bi-colored stamps, the size of the issue was limited and the supply was completely exhausted in less than a month from the date of issue.

Orval Abbey Issues.

Belgium has on two occasions issued semi-postal stamps for the purpose of restoring Orval abbey. The original abbey was situated near the present French frontier between Montmedy and Chiny, and is said to date back to about 1070 A. D., having been built by Arnold II., who was count of Chiny at that time. As long ago as 1637 it was a vacant ruin and in 1793, while being restored for the first time, was completely wrecked by the French under Gen. Beauregard.

The decision to rebuild the abbey was made in 1928 and a series of stamps was issued to assist in defraying the cost of the work. Two examples are shown—the 25 centime stamp with a conventional view of the Gothic vaulting and the 35 centime stamp with a Cistercian monk engaged in carving a stone capital. As usual the inscriptions are given in two languages, Flemish and French.



Beginners' Album.

The H. E. Harris company has added a new album to the list it publishes for beginners. This is called the "Discoverer Album," and it is just the sort every beginner needs to help him classify stamps. In addition to spaces for more than 2,000 specimens, liberally illustrated with the cuts of the more common varieties, there are a short statement about each country and articles on starting a collection and on forming a stamp club. This album may be obtained from stamp dealers and at department and book stores at 15 cents per copy.

Club Notes.

The Chicago Philatelic society, whose open house gathering will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week, is the oldest stamp club in America. Its insignia, familiar to most collectors, is patterned after the local postage stamp used by a company operating in Chicago in the early sixties and known as the Chicago Penny post. All collectors are invited to attend this annual exhibition, bourse and auction at the La Salle hotel on Jan. 18 to 20.

The new series of air mail stamps of Chile is shown on this cover from Santiago bearing 59 pesos, about $6, in postage. The lower values have been in use for some time and are the current ordinary stamps of the period surcharged with the words "Correo—Aereo," and conventional wings. The cover is shown through the kindness of M. D. Parker of the Grace line.

Drama Music Movies Hollywood

David Copperfield at ten with his childhood sweetheart, Agnes. This is Freddie Bartholemew and little Marilyn Knowlden. Freddie came all the way from England

David Copperfield and Agnes, lovers grown up, as played by Frank Lawton and Madge Evans. No actor was found suitable for the adult male part in Dickens' immortal romance until this young Englishman was taken from a Broadway stage show.

Beloved Dickens Returns to America

ACROSS six thousand miles and a hundred years the England that used to be is being reborn in Hollywood, and the Dickens characters that everyone knows so well are walking the streets in living flesh today.

"David Copperfield," generally considered the greatest of Dickens' creations, has just been put into a film by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company. In a preface to his immortal story Dickens wrote: "Of all my books I like this the best. It will be easily believed that I am a fond parent to every child of my fancy and that no one can ever love that family as dearly as I love them. But, like many fond parents, I have in my heart of hearts a favorite child. And his name is DAVID COPPERFIELD."

Many authorities believe this story to be based on Dickens' own life. Certainly young David Copperfield's adventures closely parallel Dickens' own boyhood doings.

The story of the filming of "David Copperfield" is a true saga of the movie industry and should open the eyes of many an artist or historian wont to scoff at the way things are represented in the cinema. It is attribute to the painstaking persistence of the film makers, especially of David O. Selznick, who produced it and who, incidentally, started the current vogue for "worth-while" films from old books by producing "Little Women" two years ago.

A great organization of experts and specialists was set into action by Selznick as soon as he got his idea for producing Dickens' favorite, and this international association worked a full year in preparing for the filming which was to bring back to earth "David Copperfield." The producer first sent a telegram to the M-G-M legal department asking the lawyers to look into the availability of the screen rights. Receiving a favorable answer, he picked out a scenarist and a director. The scenarist was Howard Estabrook, who wrote the scenarios for "Bill of Divorcement," "Cimarron," and other hits. The director was George Cukor, who directed "Little Women." They began to write the scenario. This usually takes a month or two, but the "David Copperfield" scenario took nearly a year. It had to be written and rewritten seven times before it was con-

"Dodsworth" and "L'Aiglon" Going on Tour of Country

Quit Gotham After Long, Brilliant Runs

Broadway Closes Doors of Other Attractions of Feeble Public Appeal.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The closings in the theaters happen to be more interesting than the openings this week. We have been cleaning up since the new year came in. Sending those plays on tour that have been hanging on hoping for a burst of big business at holiday time. Closing up others that never should have been opened.

The principal touring adventure will be that of "Dodsworth," with Walter Huston and Fay Bainter playing the two leads. "Dodsworth," fashioned by Sidney Howard from the Sinclair Lewis novel, has been hanging around these parts the better part of a year now. Had an original run of eighteen weeks, and quit then to let Huston go to Colorado to play Othello. Started again in August and has played twenty-one weeks this time.

A good many experienced playgoers are figuring that Huston is America's No. 1 actor at this writing. He is hoping to confirm that impression this spring when he comes back to play Othello on Broadway.

Tragedy Overtakes the Selwyn-Franklin Merger.

Eva Le Gallienne is also taking "L'Aiglon" on tour. She probably will play only the principal cities, and, unless business fails her, she will not add other plays from her civic repertory list. The "L'Aiglon" production is the one the ill-fated firm of Selwyn & Franklin built for her engagement in uptown New York.

Touch of tragedy in that most recent of the managerial bustups. Harold B. Franklin was a successful man in films. Acquired a reputation and a sizable fortune with R. K. O. and other organizations. Decided he wanted to get into legitimate ranks and formed a partnership with Arch Selwyn, who has been an active and also successful producer for years.

I fear the Messrs. Selwyn and Franklin boys were a little too sure of their joined talents and their combined judgments. At any rate they went into the business of play production on a big scale. Rented an ivory suite in one of the newer ivory towers on Fifth avenue. Contracted to bring Elizabeth Bergner to America. Contracted to bring Lucienne Boyer to America. Contracted to take over the Civic Repertory enterprise of Miss Le Gallienne. Contracted to produce "Revenge with Music," a costly musical.

Accidents Ruined "Revenge with Music."

Unhappily, not one of their argosies came sailing home as it was expected to do. Mlle. Boyer performed beautifully as the diseuse who had been rioting over the continent and was the toast of Paris. She was supported not only by a high priced company of gifted specialists, but by a theater that had been redecorated in her honor. Still Mlle. Boyer only drew audiences that were distinguished, classy, and small.

Miss Le Gallienne added Ethel Barrymore and Hugh Buckler to her Fourteenth street company and gave a fine performance of "L'Aiglon." But the Fourteenth street following filled only the galleries, and felt a little awkward, and uptown support did not develop in the expected numbers.

"Revenge with Music" proved a big and colorful production, but the competition was strong to start with. Charles Winninger twisted an ankle the second week, the company had to be laid off for a fortnight, and it has been pretty hard to pick up the interest from there.

"First Legion" Deserves Patronage of All Religious-Minded.

Finally the Elizabeth Bergner contract had to be assigned to the Theater Guild, probably to satisfy the London partner, Charles B. Cochran. And lastly, Mr. Franklin went back into the movies and Mr. Selwyn, they tell me, is about to try his hand at direction in Hollywood.

Another touring attraction will be "The First Legion," which Bert Lytell is taking, I think, to Philadelphia first. This rather impressive drama, a modern miracle play in effect, was threatened with failure a half dozen times, but each time pulled itself out smartly by stirring the sluggish interest of those who had heard they should be interested but never got around to it. Which would mean playgoers who normally are seriously minded and who have an acknowledged religious bent. As a result it was played for fourteen weeks in New York.

"The First Legion," the scene set in the community room of the house of St. Gregory, a Jesuit organization, is a story of the faith that performs miracles, but the impression gets abroad pretty quickly that it is rather exclusively for those of Catholic faith, which isn't true. The play's greatest appeal doubtless will always be to those of Catholic faith, but any auditor of any faith whatsoever could not possibly sit before it without being emotionally stirred. Bert Lytell has made such a good fight for "The First Legion," I am hoping you who have a chance to see it, and are interested in the better miracle drama, will do so.

Theater Goers Simply Won't Pay for Gloom.

"Mother Lode" closed last week, and that was a little unfortunate. This, too, was a play of high intentions, a history of early California, bringing in the Comstock lode in Nevada and quantities of atmosphere having to do with the building and rebuilding of that San Francisco about which a great number of native Californians, born or adopted, are still eager to boast. But it also was a slightly muddled play, and it ended on a depressing note, with the failure of the hero and only the courage of the heroine left for him to cling to.

You cannot sell depression. You cannot sell failure in the theater to any considerable number of people, not unless the note of exaltation and hope accompanying failure or depression is sounded loud and strong above the rumblings of gloom. Playgoers do not go to the theater to be depressed. They do not go to the theater to translate themselves into creators or victims of failure. They do not have to be continuously fed upon sweets or happy endings, but they do demand their emotional satisfactions and they will pay for nothing less.

LEADING WOMAN IN NEW COMEDY

Doris Dalton is the girl who enchants Dennis King in "Petticoat Fever," at the Harris theater. She is a vivid and handsome young actress who is much admired in Chicago. Her last acting here was done a year ago in "The Curtain Rises." She is Wellesley college's most recent addition to the dramatic stage. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Veteran Star of Operettas in "Roberta"

Fay Templeton's Fame as Star of Lyric Stage; 65 Years in Theater.

By Charles Collins.

A POSTSCRIPT on "Roberta," the suave and distinguished musical comedy now at the Erlanger theater, should place emphasis upon the presence in its cast of a grand old lady of the stage's better days—Fay Templeton. She occupies a unique position in this luxurious frolic; at the age of 70 she carries the title rôle.

Moreover, the story requires this character to die in full view of the audience, but without the slightest tragic effect, at the end of the first act. These are extraordinary departures from custom on the part of a musical comedy; but Miss Templeton herself is sui generis. This is her third incarnation before the footlights, for she has formally retired twice, to be recalled into service by producers who insisted that she had not lost the glamor of a star.

Miss Templeton's first retirement was in 1906, after her association with George M. Cohan's lyric comedy, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway." She and Mr. Cohan now have a happy opportunity to commune over the good old days in across-the-alley visits, for the stage doors to "Roberta" and "Ah, Wilderness" are intimate neighbors.

Great Years of Light Opera.

A glance over the records of Miss Templeton's first incarnation finds the following high-lights:

She made her debut at the age of four [1869] as Cupid, a fact which recalls that she was always on the pleasingly plump side of the figure line. At the age of eight she played Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

She became a light opera star in her 'teens and her Buttercup in "H. M. S. Pinafore" was accepted as a masterpiece of the first Gilbert and Sullivan period. The Fay Templeton Opera company toured the land, giving "Olivette," "Giroflé-Girofla," "The Mascot," "The Grand Duchess," "Patience" and "The Chimes of Normandy"—operettas with lovely scores in which her contralto voice of light, reedy quality was used with charming effect. She sang the rôle of Bettina in "The Mascot" 2,000 times.

In 1900 she joined the Weber and Fields company and helped to create and sustain a great tradition in entertainment. She had major rôles in the Weberfieldian productions called "Fiddle-Dee-Dee," "Onions," "The Stickiness of Gelatine," "DuHarry" and "The Big Little Princess." Burlesques of current Broadway hits formed the comic scenes of these shows, and the eccentricity of the "Gelatine" title may be explained by the fact that it poked fun at Clyde Fitch's play, "The Stubbornness of Geraldine." Such was the sense of humor of those ancient days.

Revivals of "H. M. S. Pinafore."

Miss Templeton's second incarnation came in 1911, when she broke a retirement of five years to revive her Buttercup in "H. M. S. Pinafore." Then she helped Weber and Fields celebrate their reunion in shows called "Hokey-Pokey" and "Bunty Bulls and Strings." [The latter title was a slangy reference to a popular play in Scotch dialect called "Bunty Pulls the Strings."]

Her third emergence from private life was in another revival of "H. M. S. Pinafore," in 1926. She went Buttercupping again with Gilbert and Sullivan revivalists in 1931 and 1932.

Miss Templeton also dabbled in song writing with considerable success. She drew handsome royalties from ditties called "I Want You," "My Honey," and "Rosie, You Are My Posie."

"Woman in the Dark" Proves to Be a Real Hair-Raiser

Stravinsky to Wield Baton for Symphony

Russian Composer Will Be First Guest Conductor in Stock's Absence.

By Edward Moore.

IGOR STRAVINSKY is the next notable to approach the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He is coming here this week to be guest conductor in a program of his own works, while Frederick Stock, who has been laboring in season and out over the Bach Mass of last week, goes away for a well deserved midwinter rest.

Stravinsky is about as elusive a person to estimate as there is in the whole world of music. The trouble with him is that he has never stood still in composition long enough to develop a personal style that one could say is truly his. He seems, like the elephant in Kipling's "Just So" stories, to be afflicted with "'satiable curiosity," and it has constantly spurred him on from one manner to the next.

Prides Himself on Being No Sentimentalist.

The Monte Carlo Ballet Russe during the holidays presented two of what are to date his most popular ballets as far as American taste is concerned, "The Fire Bird" and "Petrouchka." But "Petrouchka" bears no striking resemblance in manner to "The Fire Bird," its predecessor. Perhaps at the time of writing "The Fire Bird" he was still under the influence of "The Five" of Russia—Balakireff, Moussorgsky, Borodin, Rimsky-Korsakoff, and Cui—from whom he later and deliberately shook himself loose, explaining that their esthetics "concentrated only on the national-ethnographic elements that could be found in that source," and that they "had an ingenuous but dangerous tendency to remake an art already instinctively created through the natural genius of a nation."

For Stravinsky has always prided himself on not being a sentimentalist in music. So he wrote "Le Sacre du Printemps," which was different from either; "Les Noces," which was so far different that it had to be rewritten because of difficulties of performance; paid his respects to a back-to-Bach movement, did a Symphony of Psalms, and so on.

Admirers Prefer to Forget His Attempts at Jaz.

He even tried to write in the jaz idiom, but his admirers have preferred to draw the spiderweb of silence over that attempt. In fact those who have tried to explain him have left him less explicable than his own music. One is inclined to doubt one's own eyesight in reading from Boris de Schloezer that Stravinsky's opera-bouffe, "Mavra," is to be regarded "not as a Russo-Italian opera-bouffe, but as the concrete image of the pure type of opera-bouffe, of which the original opera-bouffes should be considered as variations." It must have been some such thing as this that W. S. Gilbert wrote about when he said that it was pretty but he didn't know what it meant.

Or there are those who insist that he occasionally writes with tongue in cheek, in the mood of parody. The trouble is that parody is the most difficult thing on earth to put across in music unless it is done cruelly and obviously. There is the story of the composer who tried to parody a piece of jaz, intending to write a piece of jaz that would end all jaz, taking what he considered all its most objectionable elements, emphasizing them and crowding them into one refrain. But the public, instead of recognizing this laudable effort, took the piece to its heart and made it the most popular work of the then current six weeks.

Stravinsky Expresses Himself Diversely on Topic of Music.

And now, just to make things a little more complicated, Stravinsky comes out with a somewhat startling creed forcibly expressed. In an interview the other day he said that he considered music in its essence to be incapable of expressing any sentiment, any attitude, any psychological condition, or any phenomenon of nature; that he thought nothing of the Imperial Russian ballet; that Wagner was so far removed that he, Stravinsky, was not interested, and that he considered himself rather solitary among contemporary composers.

"Expression," he said, "has never been the inherent property of music. The reason for the existence of music is by no means conditioned by expression. If, as is often the case, music seems to express something, that music is not real. It is a form, a convention. It has become symbolized in the mind of that listener with a scene, an emotion. Why should one look for a program, a story in music? A story is not demanded in the other arts. Those who demand a story in music have not learned to listen."

All of which seems vigorous enough. Then he added that music does not come from inspiration, "for inspiration does not exist"; that America to him is real, that American women possess great freshness and American men frankness. But America does not inspire him. Nothing inspires him. He says that he just sits down and works.

Stravinsky will be with the Chicago Symphony orchestra before Chicago audiences have the chance to see him in action. He is going to Milwaukee with the organization tomorrow night. Then he will conduct the Thursday-Friday pair of concerts and stay over for the Tuesday program of next week.

And, lest we forget, the Thursday-Friday program will consist of the "Song of the Volga Bargemen," which he introduced here ten years ago; his first symphony, conducted by Mr. Stock on Dec. 6 and 7 of this season, and the suites from "Petrouchka" and "The Fire Bird." The Tuesday program will retain the suites but substitute for the other numbers a suite from "Pulcinella" and a divertimento from the ballet, "Baiser de la Fee," neither of which have been played here by the orchestra.

Humphrey and Weidman Bring Dance Program to Series.

Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman and their group are coming to the Auditorium Friday night to give the third program in the dance series sponsored by the Bohemians of Chicago for that organization's relief fund.

They are natives of the middle west [Miss Humphrey comes from Oak Park and Mr. Weidman from Nebraska], and they have developed what is said to be an individual approach to dance forms. They have divorced all story from their choreography, depending wholly on rhythmic movements. Having served an apprenticeship with the Denishawn dancers, which took them to the orient, they returned to New York, and since then have appeared with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, the Cleveland Symphony, and the Philadelphia orchestra, as well as with such dramatic groups as presented "Americana," "As Thousands Cheer," and "School for Husbands."

Conroy	Reed Brown Jr.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Miss Louise Loring is alive and well when the picture ends. Which proves her a woman of remarkable resilience. Because her experiences would have put the average woman under the daisies or placed her, gibbering, in a madhouse.

This is an exciting program melodrama that holds the interest and will raise the hair and elicit sharp squeaks from the timid. It is about a dark and beautiful lady who, in evening dress, on a dark and stormy night, goes a-weeping and a-stumbling for succor to the lonely, woods surrounded cabin of a gentleman who has recently been released from jail.

Sherif's Daughter Wants to Be Chummy with Ex-Convict.

The home owner in question has just been trying to chase the sherif's daughter [who adores him] home. On two accounts. The young lady bores him, and he's afraid her papa WILL bore him—with a bullet.

Enters madame. Shortly later enter two dark men in search of madame. Comes sherif hunting for daughter—who has escaped by a rear entrance upon being warned by her mamma's telephone call that papa is on way with blood in eye. Also, there is a police dog. . . .

Fay Wray Makes Heroine's Terror Real.

From then on, the piece is all fire, smoke, and detonations—until the last end of the last reel. Then the sort of thing you've been hoping WOULD happen—DOES happen.

Fay Wray, Hollywood's champion depictor of woman-in-distress rôles, makes Louise's predicaments seem real and terrible. Ralph Bellamy is virile and believable as the ex-convict. Melvyn Douglas plays a polished villain with what it takes. Rosco Ates and Ruth Gillette are clever as a dip and his blonde wife. Good casting all the way through.

Direction is spotty. It's excellent in the main, but lapses now and then and permits the characters to do awfully silly things.

See you tomorrow!

'BROADWAY BILL'

His wife doesn't love him and his papa-in-law doesn't. But Myrna does! Myrna Loy and Warner Baxter in a scene from "Broadway Bill." At the Chicago theater.

Colored Actor

JACK CARTER, who appears in the central rôle in "Stevedore" at the Selwyn theater, acted the character named Crown in "Porgy" when that Theater Guild play on Negro life was presented here. He played the rôle for three years. He spent seven years doing a new leading part each week with the Lafayette stock company in Harlem. His mother was an actress, and he has been on the stage since he was fourteen.

"WEST OF THE PECOS"

Here's Martha Sleeper, whom we haven't seen for a good long time. She's in "West of the Pecos," at the Castle theater.

New Band for Chez Paree; Cabaret Acts

GUS ARNHEIM'S band will take the rostrum at Chez Paree next Sunday night, replacing Henry Busse's organization, which has had an engagement of many months. This troupe of musicians and entertainers, which comes from Hollywood, contains the Three Downey Sisters, harmonizers; Maxine Tappan, Jimmy Newell, Johnny Hamilton, and Jack Pierce. A new floor show is being prepared to supplement the Arnheim program.

● Ethel Shutta, singing star with George Olsen's band at the College Inn, has added a comic number called "I'll Have You Know I'm a Lady" to her repertory. The Stevenson girls, eight pretty ballerinas, appear in various costume numbers. James and Eugenia Struthers, ballroom dancers, give interpretations of "Sophisticated Lady" and "Liebestraum."

● Daniel Alexander, operator of the "Alex" cafés, is now concentrating on his Casa de Alex on the near north side. Dance music is provided by Earl Hoffman's band.

● The current floor show in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel includes Ronnie and Van, radio singers; Niles Garron and Edythe Bennett, ballroom dancers; Louise Lucano, solo dancer, and Keith Beecher's orchestra. . . . Margaret Conrad's string ensemble will play dinner and supper programs in the Boulevard room of the Stevens this week.

● The Four McNallie Sisters, dancers, have joined the cabaret program at the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room, where Ferde Grofe's orchestra is playing. The Karre Le Baron Trio, adagio dancers, will remain until Jan. 24. Inez and Marshall are ballroom and comedy dancers.

● Jules Alberti is supplying the dance music at the Opera club, reopened as a first class cabaret under the management of Al Quodbach. Lee Knight and Jackie Hall are featured soloists.

● Herbie Kay's orchestra continues at the Edgewater Beach hotel's Marine dining room. The "snowball party," an annual event on the program, was held last night.

● Harry's New York cabaret is planning to stage an entirely new floor show within the next few days. Joe Buckley's band plays in the afternoons; Earl Murphy's at night.

● Josef Cherniavsky, orchestra leader, has arranged a revue called "Night in a Gypsy Camp" for the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel. His company of fifteen entertainers includes eight gypsy dancers. George Nelidoff is the principal singer.

● The Brevoort hotel, whose crystal bar dates back to the World's Fair of 1893, has added another unusual bar in the mural room. Called the marine bar, it contains several large illuminated aquaria, with rare tropical fish. Johnny Mullaney's orchestra supplies dance music. Strolling entertainers are Rice and Estes, the Jaros sisters, Grace Cator, and Lois and Evelyn.

● The Limehouse, at 1561 Howard street, announces a new orchestra. Al Handler and his musicians, including Bobby Dickson, vocalist, and Lew Marcus, pianist, are playing old favorites and new dance hits at this popular café.

● Old Cathay, a restaurant on Chicago avenue, near Michigan avenue, is constantly expanding its cuisine to appeal to patrons especially fond of real Chinese delicacies.

● After being rebuilt and refurnished by the architectural firm of Andrew N. Rebori, with Edgar Miller as associate, Joseph Miller's new 885 club, 885 Rush street, will open Thursday, Jan. 17. The featured entertainer will be Mario Silva, baritone. The dance music wil be played by Allan Kane's orchestra.

Poke bonnets are the new wrinkle, mainly because they are vastly becoming. Lined with contrasting silk, they are finished with ties that come around from the back and tie under the chin. Irene Dunne wears one in "Roberta."

Arthur Byron, screen actor, is a nephew of Ada Rehan, Shakespearean actress, famous in her day in London and New York.

Wallace Ford has bought himself a chicken ranch in Laurel canyon and has moved his talented wife, Martha, who writes for magazines, and his daughter, Patricia Ann, out there to live.

Conrad Nagel is working at Columbia as leading man with Florence Rice in "Mistaken Identity."

Constance Collier, playing in "Shadow of Doubt" at Metro, has a namesake a week old. Jack Dawn, head makeup man, recently was telling Miss Collier he had made arrangements to adopt a baby as soon as it was born. "What are you going to name the baby if it's a girl?" Constance asked. Dawn said he would name it after her if she wanted and so he did when the mite arrived.

Hollywoodians Outgrow Fable About Success

Reorganized Viewpoint of Film Colony Doesn't Bank on Public Favor.

HOLLYWOOD.—Only a few years ago every player who reached the star or featured player status in Hollywood believed that his or her success would go on forever.

Very few of them were willing to look at the future—the distant future which long since arrived for many of them—squarely in the face.

This is pretty well changed now. Even the youngsters who have clicked in pictures start off the recital of their plans by saying:

"When I am through in pictures——"

They Know that Film Popularity Is Fleeting.

They seem to know that history will repeat itself with them; that screen popularity is, at best, a fleeting thing and that fame is fickle. There are plenty of examples of this in Hollywood now. Famous stars who have gone bankrupt. Great stars of other days who are glad to work as extras. Old film favorites who die penniless. Their misfortunes have sounded the warning and Hollywood has learned to listen.

Dick Powell is one young player who has no delusions about the temporary nature of all screen fame. Dick is fully aware that his present popularity cannot last forever. And so he is preparing for that inevitable slump in his income by carefully saving a certain amount of his salary every week.

Jean Parker to Study Art After Movie Career.

Jean Parker, who left high school to become a movie star, also realizes the limitations of the career she has chosen. She believes now that when she is "through in pictures"—as she certainly will be some day, she admits—she will study art. To do so she will need an income; and if her professional life lasts five years she'll have a good one.

Jean Muir is another youthful player who has a practical turn of mind. She very emphatically told me once that she believes her career will last no more than five years. She has a financial goal, too, of a quarter million dollars. She wants $100,000 for herself, a like amount for her mother, and an extra $50,000 to open her own repertory theater.

Jimmy Cagney Is Another Sans Illusions.

"It can't last," says Jimmy Cagney. "It never has and it never will."

Cagney isn't fooled into believing that his present income will be available as long as he wants it.

Ann Sothern doesn't want to own things. She doesn't even want a lawn because, if the time ever does come when she can't afford to keep it looking green, she would hate to have the neighbors say "poor thing." She says she doesn't want anything that she can't put in a trunk. Safe securities look well in trunks.

LEADERS OF OLD GLOBE CLASSICS

Here are three leaders of the famous Shakespeareans of the Old Globe company, now at the Studebaker: (Above) Elsie Dvorak, who appears in the prolog to "Doctor Faustus"; (middle) Miss Jackson Perkins, who has the role of Viola in "Twelfth Night"; and (below) John A. Willard as the evil spirit in "Doctor Faustus."

They Made a Movie

Quaint Shots from Film of 1916

IN 1916, when motion pictures still were more or less "hit-or-miss" affairs and when the telling of a story in films still was in the experimental stage, there was produced at the Onwentsia and Indian Hill clubs a movie in which society folk of Chicago and the exclusive north shore suburbs took the rôles of actors and actresses. The play was "Cousin Jim," from a scenario by John T. McCutcheon. In the cast were William A. Fuller II., Elizabeth Fuller, Leander J. McCormick, Isabelle Robbins, Roy McWilliams, Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Charles G. Cushing, Columbus Healy, Perry M. Sheppard, J. Andrews King, Gladys High, Mildred M. Blair, Alice C. Cudahy, Margaret E. Talbot, Doris Russell, Marie Louise Russell, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Howard F. Gillette, William P. Hunt, and Laurance H. Armour.

Phyllis Hammond

In the rôle of Phyllis Hammond in this early movie employing local society talent was Gladys High, wearing a broad hat and a broad smile. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry High of Chicago, Miss Gladys on March 15, 1921, became the bride of Commander Charles Dennistoun Burney of the British navy. The marriage, a social event of the year, took place in St. Margaret's chapel, Westminster, London. The husband of the former Miss High now is best known as Sir Charles D. Burney, famous designer of automobiles and dirigibles.

Muriel Meadowcraft

Charlene Chesterton

Taking the part of Muriel Meadowcraft in the movie of "Cousin Jim" was Isabelle Robbins (above at left), and in the rôle of Charlene Chesterton in the play was Doris Russell (above at right). Miss Robbins now is Mrs. Charles W. Isaacs Jr. of Lake Forest. Miss Russell was married to Richard B. Barnitz. A divorce followed, and now she is the wife of Robert M. Curtis of Chicago. How styles have changed since nineteen years ago!

Florence Fish

As Florence Fish, one of the characters of the film "Cousin Jim," Alice C. Cudahy, daughter of Edward A. Cudahy Sr., was a player of no mean ability. She was married to Leander J. McCormick on Nov. 3, 1917, and obtained a divorce in Reno on April 8, 1929. On Thanksgiving day, 1931, at Lake Forest she became the wife of John Noble Stearns Jr., a New York clubman.

Cousin Jim

The man before a background of helmeted policemen is none other than William A. Fuller II., who played the rôle of Cousin Jim. Grandson of William A. Fuller, pioneer lumberman, he served as an aviator in the World war. In 1920 he was married to Ada Thompson Norfleet of Memphis. They were divorced in 1924. On May 19, 1934, while motoring in Lincoln park, Mr. Fuller met with a fatal accident.

Jack, Alloa, Muriel, and Jerry at Onwentsia

"Jack Bolton entertains Alloa, Muriel, and Jerry at the Onwentsia club," says the legend accompanying the photograph above. The rôle of Jack Bolton was played by Charles S. Dewey, Chicago financier, former assistant secretary of the treasury and former financial adviser to Poland. Muriel, as disclosed previously, was Isabelle Robbins. Alloa Stuyvesant was Elizabeth Fuller. Jerry Spencer was Leander J. McCormick. Just who is who in this crowd of country clubbers is difficult to tell after nineteen long years, though doubtless more than one familiar face can be picked out by those who knew them "'way back when."

Alloa and Jerry in a dramatic scene

A smart bit of acting, this scene at the left between Alloa and Jerry. Elizabeth Barrett Fuller, who played the part of Alloa Stuyvesant, was affectionately known in her girlhood days as "Bobsy," and still retains the name among her friends. Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles G. Fuller, on Nov. 18, 1916, at the Fourth Presbyterian church, she became the wife of Charles B. Goodspeed. Leander J. McCormick, who played the rôle of Jerry, is the son of L. Hamilton McCormick and is an Eton and Cambridge man. Not longer ago than July 12, 1933, he was married in London to the Comtesse de Fleuriau, daughter of the Vicomte de Fontarce, French race horse owner.

Watch Your Air Diet

New Tricks of Science Told

By Thomas M. Beck

PERHAPS the most dreadful account of the bad results of improper air conditioning is that given in the story of the Black Hole of Calcutta. As every schoolboy knows, Calcutta was captured by the rajah of Bengal in 1756. The entire English population, numbering 146, was seized and locked up in a single small room about fifteen by eighteen feet and having but two small windows. The night was terrifically hot, and when the cell was opened up in the morning it was found that only 23 of the prisoners remained alive, the rest having died of suffocation.

Now, there would be nothing remarkable in the suffocation of human beings who might be confined in an airtight cell from which the air had been exhausted; but the Black Hole was not airtight. After all, it had a couple of small windows. The only trouble was that good air from the outside could not get inside fast enough to supply the needs of the prisoners.

Why is air necessary? Because living tissue consumes its oxygen, just as does a fire. From a biochemist's viewpoint life is a great deal like a fire. Within the living organism organic substances such as sugars are burned (slowly and without flame, of course) to produce heat and energy. And, just as in the case of fire, carbon dioxide is the chief product of this combustion.

Since this slow burning is continually taking place throughout the entire organism, some means is necessary to supply oxygen to and to remove carbon dioxide from all parts of the body. The blood provides the mechanism for this transfer. Both of these gases dissolve readily in blood, or rather form loose chemical combinations with certain of its ingredients; and the amounts of these two gases in the blood are factors that govern the speed of vital processes. If there is not enough oxygen present the body slows down and stops operating; if there is too much oxygen it runs too fast and death likewise results.

Now, the amounts of oxygen and carbon dioxide in arterial blood are directly determined by the quantities of these two gases present in the air of the alveoli (the alveoli are the ultimate little sacs of the lungs, where the blood exchanges gases with the air). Furthermore, the concentrations of the two gases in blood affect each other. An increase of carbon dioxide decreases the solubility of oxygen, and vice versa.

The composition of air is about 80 per cent nitrogen, 20 per cent oxygen, and .04 per cent carbon dioxide. But since the lungs are never completely emptied and refilled during breathing, the composition of alveolar air is somewhat different, being about 75 per cent nitrogen, 15 per cent oxygen, and 5 per cent carbon dioxide, and 5 per cent water vapor. This is the correct composition to insure normal body functioning.

Alveolar air is continually giving oxygen to the blood and taking carbon dioxide from it, and so the correct composition must be maintained by constant breathing. Consequently, if the oxygen content of the inhaled air falls below 15 per cent, or the carbon dioxide content rises much above 5 per cent, this composition cannot be maintained, and disaster results.

These facts explain a number of phenomena. Submarines all carry not only tanks of compressed oxygen but also a supply of soda lime, which absorbs carbon dioxide. A number of years ago there was a case of a submarine that got stuck on the bottom and did not have any soda lime on board. The members of the crew all were suffocated, although they had plenty of oxygen. It simply happened that the carbon dioxide in the air they breathed became so concentrated that it prevented the oxygen from entering their blood.

As a corollary to this story there is the well known oxygen tent treatment for pneumonia, in which patients are allowed to breathe an oxygen-rich atmosphere in order to relieve their sore lungs from as much mechanical work as possible. But it is customary in this treatment to mix the oxygen with a certain proportion of carbon dioxide; otherwise the oxygen would enter the blood too fast and speed up the body too much, to the patient's detriment. On the other hand, the resuscitating squad uses pure oxygen to revive victims of drowning or asphyxiation. In these cases the doctor is not worried about the body's running too fast. All he is interested in is whether or not he can get it started going at all.

An erroneous belief concerning carbon dioxide is commonly held. Since men occasionally are killed by this gas in wells or mines, it often is thought that it is a poison. As a matter of fact, it is no more poisonous than water. Of course, if a man breathes it in place of air he will drown in it, just as he would drown in water. This is not true, of course, of carbon monoxide, the gas that comes out of automobile exhausts. This gas is a quick, deadly, and blood-destroying poison.

But the big problem of ventilation or air conditioning is not to prevent suffocation from carbon dioxide. Stale air becomes unendurably uncomfortable long before a dangerous concentration of this gas is reached. Usually when the carbon dioxide content of air in a crowded hall reaches .1 per cent the persons present begin showing signs of acute discomfort. This is not due to the carbon dioxide, since under more favorable conditions men have breathed 2 per cent of the gas without being aware of any difference. Rather it is due to several other factors which occur along with the increase of carbon dioxide.

The most important of these factors is humidity, which is the degree to which the air is saturated with water vapor. When dry air is brought in contact with water in a closed container the water at once starts to evaporate and continues to do so until a certain concentration, depending upon temperature, of water vapor is built up in the air. When this concentration is reached evaporation stops.

Outdoor air usually is nowhere nearly saturated. The human body makes use of this fact as a means of avoiding overheating. When the body begins to get a little too warm, perspiration starts to flow and by its evaporation into the unsaturated air lowers the body temperature. But if the surrounding air is nearly saturated this evaporation cannot occur, and an individual exposed to such a condition feels very hot and sticky. And in addition to discomfort there is an element of danger in excessive humidity. If, after too long exposure to a warm, humid atmosphere, the unfortunate victim steps outdoors with his body's cooling mechanism running full blast, there is likely to be a too sudden lowering of the temperature of the body, which weakens its defenses against such infectious diseases as colds.

A man in a closed room who is doing no strenuous exercise needs at least a thousand cubic feet of fresh air every hour in order to remain comfortable. In theory, since all gases and vapors tend to mix completely with one another on standing, only a very small opening to the outside would be necessary, through which the stale air in time would diffuse outward, to be replaced by the fresh air diffusing inward.

The rate of this diffusion would depend on a number of things, such as the size of the room, the activity of the man in it, the size of the window, and the thickness of the wall. It is such a slow process, however, that if we had to depend upon it alone to supply us with fresh air we all would suffocate whenever we went indoors, no matter how well supplied with open windows the room might be. Fortunately, diffusion is of negligible importance in ventilation. Under all practical conditions there will be some fresh air coming in through an open window; not as a result of diffusion, but because of air currents, either resulting from the wind outdoors or else set up by convection. Convection is the air circulation in a room that results from the spontaneous rising of the lighter warm air.

Convection is the means by which most ventilation is carried out. On a small scale, a fireplace provides an almost ideal aid for this type of ventilation, since it provides an outlet for the ascending warm air through its flue. The same principle applies to factory smokestacks. They are not built on considerations of beauty; instead they exist because their height allows the formation of convection currents great enough to force a heavy draft through the furnace.

There are several ways in which ventilation can be forced artificially. A very common method takes advantage of outside wind. Those large galvanized iron arrangements that one sees on the barns of prosperous farmers provide ventilation because they are so arranged that when the wind whistles through them a suction is created. Similar although not so readily apparent set-ups provide ventilation for trains and automobiles, the motion of which creates an artificial wind. And natural methods are crowded out of the picture entirely in the case of large modern buildings, where the air currents are created by motor-driven fans.

There is another factor in ventilation, one not involving human health, but rather the peace of mind of those who hate such fragrant vegetables as onions or tobacco. That is the question of bad smells. There are substances, such as activated charcoal, that will absorb many such odors; but, after all, a bad smell is a part of the air and can be removed from a room just as fast as can the air.

Mr. Beck will be glad to answer questions of scientific nature. Address Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply, inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

What causes thunder?—C. R., Chicago.

Lightning is visible because the air through which it passes is momentarily heated to incandescence. This intensely heated air expands suddenly, causing a loud report, in the same way as do the expanding gases from cannon. The rolling of thunder is the result of the echoing of the original noise.

By graphology and by face reading Myrna Loy is revealed to be the happy possessor of an unfailing sense of humor, imagination, courage, and sincerity. A tendency to be too sensitive and overly critical of herself is one of her handicaps. She has a strong appreciation of the beautiful and more than one artistic talent. She should cultivate the old-fashioned habit of thrift; she is prone to extravagance. A keen mind, plus much intuition makes her shrewder than most women.

Robert Montgomery

The finely modeled features and the delicate handwriting of Robert Montgomery indicate that sensitivity is both a virtue and a vice with him. He is dreamy and idealistic almost to the point of impracticality, and these same qualities make him somewhat introverted. He overcame timidity after a struggle but is still a bit too modest. He is extremely kind and unswerving in his affections. He has excellent powers of concentration and, when convinced he is right, a surprising tenacity.

Story of Copperfield Put In Film

Dickens' Characters Live Again in Movie

sidered finally satisfactory. The British novelist Hugh Walpole collaborated in the work.

The great activity of the research department of the studio organization during this long period is evidence of the care taken in the interests of historical accuracy.

Experts on the costumes and customs of David Copperfield's day were summoned. All the sketches by "Phiz" (Hablot K. Browne) that illustrated the first editions of the book were located, and large photographic copies were sent to dressmakers, hatters, shoemakers, set builders, and others who would need accurate illustrations from which to reproduce the old English life. When the biggest libraries in America failed to yield enough data on the period, a cameraman was sent to England charged to visit every hundred-year-old house and public building he could find and to photograph everything of interest. He made pictures of door knobs and wall paper, of the carving on old furniture, of tavern signs, the patterns on old silverware, of window sills, cellar stairs, lanterns, chimney corners—of anything that might play the slightest part in the world of David Copperfield. What could not be photographed successfully he bought and shipped to Hollywood.

In the end some 700 antiques had been purchased, some 73,000 photographs had been classified and filed, and some hundreds of old books collected from musty shelves in forgotten byways and attics of the British Isles. Among the books, of course, were original copies of all those mentioned in "David Copperfield" as having been read by the boy in his lonely childhood.

Dickens Shrines in England Visited by Party of Designers

Next a whole party of designers, set builders, and others made a trip to England to visit Dickens shrines, to make sure all involved in making the film were thoroughly imbued with the hearty old English spirit as depicted by the great novelist. They brought back with them Hugh Walpole, who, though at first good-naturedly intolerant of the idea of helping to make a "cinema," soon entered wholeheartedly into applying his vast knowledge of Dickensiana to the best interests of the picture so soon to be born. He eventually became so excited that he even joined the cast in a minor rôle. As vice president of the world-wide Dickens Fellowship, his advice was considered of rare value.

When you contemplate the length and complexity of Dickens' story, and the number of characters that entered into David's life, you will understand the problem Mr. Selznick faced in his task of condensing it into two hours' length of film. "Our problem," commented the producer, "is to decide what may be retained and what must be sacrificed. We must tell the story of David Copperfield the individual as a boy and as a man, eliminating those digressions which were delightful as Dickens wrote them, but which are not pertinent to the life and adventures of the hero. In this way we may find it regretfully necessary but fortunately possible to eliminate such characters as Miss Mowcher, Rosa Dartle, Mr. Omer, Minnie, Martha, Traddles, and some few others. They do nothing to further the main story."

Immortal Mr. Micawber an Important Role of Play

This was the line of treatment followed in the scenario, for it proved true that the elimination of unessential characters intensified the characters vital to the thread of the story. Mr. Micawber, for example (supposedly modeled after Dickens' own father), became more important than ever, swinging from comedy into drama. Miss Betsy Trotwood, David's eccentric great-aunt, became a vital force. Uriah Heep, the cadaverous clerk; the Murdstones, whose "grand quality" is firmness; the kindly Peggotty family; the winning Agnes; the doll-like Dora; David's schoolmate, Steerforth; Mr. Wickfield, the trustful lawyer, and other immortals of Dickens' imagination became primary factors in the plot.

At last the scenario was complete and finally approved. The settings were being built. But where were the people to inhabit these streets and old houses? Where was an accomplished actor who looked and acted like the immortal Mr. Micawber? Where was Aunt Betsy? Where, above all, was Copperfield?

Now began a problem of casting that has known no equal in motion picture history. The producers were resolved to keep true to the spirit and flavor of the original story as told by Dickens and depicted in the sketches by "Phiz"—but such characters as walked in England a hundred years ago are not easily found among the actors of filmland.

From hundreds of English players in Hollywood a few were selected for the key rôles. Mrs. Micawber was found in the person of Miss Jean Cadell, a brilliant comedienne from the British stage. Mr. Murdstone was located cozily ensconced in a New England farmhouse. He is the actor Basil Rathbone and was rushed across the continent to begin work. The full-grown David Copperfield was discovered in Frank Lawton, a bright young English actor in a current Broadway stage show. But David as a boy could not be found anywhere.

The search went on. After hundreds of screen tests, twenty-six players were assembled for the more important parts and some fifty others for the supporting rôles. But changes had to be made. Charles Laughton, who had been picked to play Mr. Micawber, asked to be excused from the cast on the grounds that he "could not do justice to the part." This request is rare in Hollywood, where actors usually contest bitterly for "fat" parts, but it all turned out happily. Laughton's place was taken by W. C. Fields, who lived out Mr. Micawber's life to perfection. "It was the easiest part I ever played," afterward grinned the genial Mr. Fields. "Micawber is a guy who is always in trouble and always expecting something to turn up to save him. That's me to the life. I've been playing that part for forty years."

Others in the cast are Lionel Barrymore, playing Dan Peggotty; Edna May Oliver as Aunt Betsy, Lewis Stone as Mr. Wickfield, Roland Young as Uriah Heep, Hugh Williams as J. Steerforth, Herbert Mundin as Barkis, Elizabeth Allan as Mrs. Copperfield, and Madge Evans and Maureen O'Sullivan as Agnes and Dora.

Boy Comes From England to Play David Copperfield

While a camera crew in England filmed scenes and the 26 principal actors and actresses already chosen waited at Hollywood, the search for the boy David continued. It seemed almost hopeless, when one day little Freddie Bartholemew, an English lad, showed up at Mr. Selznick's office. The boy so impressed the producer that he was selected immediately for the rôle of Copperfield.

This is Dickens' third invasion of America. On his first visit, in 1841, his unconventional remarks made a bad impression on the curious but decorous ladies of Boston who flocked to meet him. His unflattering "American Notes" and his "Martin Chuzzlewit," which he wrote on returning to England, did not reduce the resentment here, but neither did they reduce curiosity about Dickens.

His triumphal return a quarter of a century later started the British superstition that an insult is the open sesame to the American purse. While long files of anxious devotees shivered outside, too numerous to win the privilege of spending $3 to see "the most stupendous one-man show in history," Dickens in hall after hall throughout America gave readings of his immortal stories, vividly acting out the parts of Sarah Gamp, Sam Weller, Scrooge, and the rest. Even though he left his wife when she "got on his nerves" after bearing him ten children, Queen Victoria herself inscribed her "Journal" to him with the words: "From one of the humblest of authors to one of the greatest."

It has been said of Dickens that "he liked a good laugh, a good cry, an honest rage, and a fit of the horrors; and he liked to give these things to other people." He evidently rivaled some of his characters in overexuberance. When an artist painting his portrait protested against his robin's-egg blue overcoat with scarlet cuffs he said simply, "I like colors." Supremely confident, he never saw a need to excuse himself for anything he did.

Dickens died on June 9, 1870, and was buried in Westminster abbey with the highest honors his public and his queen could offer.

Young David watching the white-haired Mr. Dick (Lennox Rawle), his Aunt Betsy Trotwood (Edna May Oliver), and the visiting Mr. and Miss Murdstone (Basil Rathbone and Violet Kemble-Cooper) having a spirited spat about his future.

Micawber takes David to his new home. This photograph of W. C. Fields and Freddie Bartholemew is almost an exact copy of one of the "Phiz" sketches which illustrated the first edition of Dickens' novel in 1849.

David and the Wickfields as they hear of Uriah Heep's villainous doings. Lewis Stone plays Mr. Wickfield. Madge Evans is Miss Agnes Wickfield. The part of Uriah Heep (not shown) is played by Roland Young.

David Copperfield with his bride, Dora Spenlow, whom he later is to call his "child wife." Charmingly played by Maureen O'Sullivan, Dora dies young, allowing the hero later to marry his lifelong sweetheart, Agnes.

ONE of Chicago's historic neighborhoods on the west side, the 160-acre area bounded by Racine and Ashland avenues, Harrison street, and Roosevelt road, has been designated by the federal government as a "blighted area." Soon most of the buildings in this quarter square mile will come tumbling down to make room for a $12,500,000 easy money housing project sponsored by the Public Works administration.

Among the scores of homesteads to be torn down are those of many famous Chicagoans, as well as those of Chicagoans who reached a pinnacle of notoriety. Pride and shame are strangely mixed in the history of this neighborhood. Among its "famous sons," men who were born or lived within its boundaries, were such notables as the late Judge Thomas F. Scully; the late Charles Comiskey, baseball magnate; John Onahan, first treasurer of the 1893 World's fair. Harry Powers, retired dean of Chicago theatrical managers, once lived here. The Bremner brothers, who built a huge baking business; Daniel J. McMahon, once school board attorney; Charles W. Bidwill; Barney and John Balaban, movie theater magnates—these and many more are names to which a historian of the neighborhood might point with pride.

On the other hand, this area has figured prominently in the annals of Chicago crime. The infamous "42" gang originated within its boundaries.

Many famous Chicago churches and institutions are located within the boundaries, and most of these will remain standing. Among them are the Roman Catholic Church of Notre Dame and Our Lady of Pompeii church, the convent of the Sisters of the Poor, the home for aged men conducted by the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament. Other churches and institutions are Garibaldi institute, an educational center; Greek Orthodox Church of St. Basil, and the John McLaren, Thomas Jefferson, and Jacob Riis public schools. The new and old Mother Cabrini hospital buildings stand side by side. One famous old structure of the area, which housed the Jewish People's institute, is now a ruin and will be demolished.

Who Rides On a Tiger

The Story of a Charming Girl Who Learns, Too Late, That Her Infatuation for a Married Man Has Led Her to the Brink of Disaster

By MRS. BELLOC LOWNDES

INSTALMENT I.

"'WHO rides on a tiger can never dismount.'"

The speaker of those words, John Pomfret, looked significantly at the girl to whom he had just addressed them.

A few moments ago, in fact as the young man had come into the room, Zella Blunt had sprung up, graceful and lithe as a kitten, onto a walnut tallboy. It was a splendid old piece, only lately promoted from a bed chamber to the charming sitting room where the two now found themselves what they seldom were—alone.

It was a Monday afternoon, and on the Thursday a brilliant young party was to be gathered here, at Jerricks, a palatial country house famed in Victorian and Edwardian social annals for magnificent hospitality. In those days sixteen miles out of London had meant a two hours' drive. Now, though he kept the fact to himself, John Pomfret at night could cover the distance in twenty minutes.

Zella Blunt was balancing herself on the very edge of the high tallboy, her slender legs kicking about below the short white cotton skirt and the funny little gathered bodice making her look years younger than she really was. She was twenty-one, yet she looked, this early June morning, like a school girl.

"Where did you get that from?" she asked coolly.

"It's a Spanish proverb."

"What man were you thinking of when you said that?"

John Pomfret made no answer, but there came an angry glint in his light eyes. He, too, was fair, but whereas no one could deny the fact that Zella was exceedingly pretty, he was plain. They were second cousins, and in a sense there was a strong family likeness between them.

"Well?" she said imperiously. "What's the name of my tiger? Answer!"

Already he regretted he had said that thing. "I wasn't thinking of any particular tiger," he said untruthfully. "You seem to know so many—in fact a regular zoo."

She slipped off the edge of the tallboy by accident and as she came down on her toes, "Damn!" she cried sharply.

The color rushed into John's face. "You haven't hurt yourself——?"

"Of course I haven't. I never hurt myself."

And then she threw herself across the end of a big comfortable old sofa and faced him fearlessly. "I know perfectly well which of my friends you meant," she exclaimed. "But I'm not riding that particular tiger—sometimes I wish I were."

He checked the words on his lips, "Indeed you are, and he's a dangerous brute." Instead he said coolly: "I'll admit I had Capt. Castledyne in mind."

"Thank you," she said in a sarcastic tone.

"Look here, my dear?"

She mimicked his serious tone, "Yes, my dear?"

And then he shot what he hoped was a thunderbolt. "Why be talked about with a married man?" he asked.

Then he looked away, for it was anguish to him to hurt her. But had she been hurt? There was nothing to show that as she exclaimed: "I'm not being talked about! Unless you're talking about me."

He shrugged his shoulders and changed his tactics.

"For one thing it's hard on the chap."

"How d'you mean?"

He said coldly: "Don't pretend to be a fool, Zella. You know Capt. Castledyne is mad about you. He makes such a fool of himself that people can't help laughing at him. D'you mean you don't know that?"

Ha! ha! his rapier had touched her at last, for, breathing quickly, she exclaimed: "He's not in love with me! We're just friends. What beasts people are! Who's laughing at Broke Castledyne? I insist on your telling me——"

He looked away, reliving the while far more quickly than it takes to write the words down something which had happened a few days before when a man named Tom Lingard had gone out of his way to see him just to rush out the words, the warning: "Look here, Pomfret! It's none of my business, but in your place I'd give Zella Blunt a hint not to be seen so much with a chap called Castledyne. Something pretty black happened during the war when I was on a course back of Armentières in '18. I gave my word of honor to keep mum—but that man's a bad lot for all he's now so run after in a certain set because he often stands treat, having married a woman years older than himself for her money. Your cousin ought to give him the go-by. All the more that he's said to be mad about her."

THAT had been all—but God! it was enough to make him, Pomfret, feel as someone had stuck a jagged knife in his heart and then twisted it round slowly.

He gazed into the girl's flushed, indignant face. And then, before she had time to speak, he went on, feeling that even if it made her hate him he must thrash this matter out with her. Tom Lingard would never have spoken as he had done without very good cause.

"How long had you known this chap Castledyne when I first met you together?"

She blushed. It was a hot, unbecoming blush. "I don't know what you mean."

"It was at the Gaylestons' cocktail party. I think you'd brought him along with you there. How long had you known him then?"

"Really, John, how can I tell? I don't put it down in a little book every time I meet a new man."

He threw her, now, a long measuring glance. She was again breathing quickly; her eyes were bright with defiance and—was it pain? He would have given years of his life to know.

"Does it make no difference at all to you that a man's married?" he asked.

"It would make a good deal of difference if I felt as you seem to think I do. But, you see, I don't." She added, as if to herself, "He's not much married, anyway."

"Capt. Castledyne is very much married. He wooed and won a very plain woman years older than himself for her money."

"I believe that's a lie."

"It happens to be true."

There followed a pause.

"Well?" she said, imperiously, "what is the name of my tiger? Answer!"

"Is he going to that big affair at Kent House tonight?" asked the young man.

"Yes, he is, and I got him the invitation."

And then with a funny little pleading look she exclaimed: "You needn't look like that, John! I was asked if I could get some men who weren't on the regular dancing list, and I'm bringing four—there's safety in numbers, isn't there?"

And then in a different, kinder voice, she exclaimed: "I wish you'd give up worrying about me, Brother John!"

HE WINCED. Now and again, not often, she would call him that simply because she knew he hated it.

"Shall I tell you a secret?" she went on.

He looked at her dumbly, stiffening himself for a blow.

"I've made up my mind to be married——" she stopped and a roguish look flashed over her April face.

There came a numb sensation over his heart. Yet anything, surely, would be better than this stupid, dangerous affair? So, tonelessly he asked, "To whom?"

And then she laughed childishly: "Give a girl time! I was going to end with—'before I'm thirty'! That gives me—let me see"—she threw back her head—"eight to nine long years, dear boy, as Aunt Jane would say, in which to play about and have a good time. Also," she ended saucily, "during all that time I can ride on as many tigers as I like, sliding off their tails, dancing into the bushes, or barking up a tree before any one of them can catch me!"

"That's a dangerous game," he observed. Yet he felt absurdly relieved, even happy.

"It used to be, or so I'm told by my elders and betters. It isn't a dangerous game now."

"It is sometimes. Look at poor Elsie Moore."

"No man would ever kill himself for my sake," she said lightly.

Even so, there did come a rather odd look over her face, a look to which John Pomfret sought for, but failed to find, a clew, as she went on: "It was so queer of George Bellamy to do what he did—any half-wit can get an arranged divorce."

"His wife wouldn't divorce him."

"It happened just after I'd come home for good. How I used to laugh inside when the conversation was suddenly changed as I came into the room! Aunt Jane talked of nothing else for a bit just because that poor fellow, if he'd lived long enough, would have been a duke."

She got up and put her arms behind her back, standing before him as a child might have done. "Tell me what really happened?" she asked.

He waited a moment, then he walked across to where a second door giving into the room was concealed by a high screen. That door was closed. He came back and stood close to her. It was terrible for a man to love another human being as he loved this girl.

"The Bellamys were already getting on badly," he began, "when he and Elsie Moore fell in love. Phyllis Bellamy refused to divorce him, though Elsie Moore was quite willing to pose as co-respondent."

"Would it have been a pose?"

"So ran the tale."

"D'you mean they had never lived together?"

The way modern girls talked jarred on John Pomfret horribly, especially if the modern girl happened to be Zella. Still, he answered quietly, "Bellamy left a note to that effect and mentioned slandering tongues. They were just going to elope when he killed himself."

"He was a fool!"

"I wonder? It isn't overpleasant living together without getting married. A lot of people have tried it."

The girl looked at him derisively. "You ought to have been born fifty years ago, John; when good Queen Vic did rule this land."

"Human nature doesn't change, only manners change," he observed dryly. "A girl who's publicly living with a married man never knows how she's going to be treated, even by her oldest friends. For the matter of that, in this case the whole business finished Elsie Moore. Aunt Jane, who was quite fond of her, at once cut her and has cut her ever since."

"Sometimes I feel I hate Aunt Jane! I do now."

AND then suddenly Zella asked her cousin a question she had never asked before:

"You'd call me an heiress, wouldn't you, John?"

"Most certainly."

"I sometimes think," and she looked at him thoughtfully, "that in the end we two may end up here together. I an old maid, you an old bachelor—holding the Jerricks fort, like Aunt Jane and Lord Alfred."

His fair face flushed. "How d'you mean?"

"What I've just said. The only difference will be that, unlike poor old Alfred and Aunt Jane, you will never have asked me to marry you."

"I wonder she never said 'yes.' She's awfully fond of him," said the young man.

His heart was thumping—or at any rate it felt like that. He wished he had the courage frail Lord Alfred was credited with. But Lady Jane, with all her peculiarities, was a woman. The girl now looking at him mockingly appeared a sprite. There was an Undine quality in Zella. John Pomfret sometimes wondered if she had a soul.

But what was it she was saying now?

"It's lucky for Lord Alfred Aunt Jane always said 'no.' She'd be a fearfully managing wife."

There followed a pause.

"And if we ever live here as old people what shall we do with ourselves?" he asked in a jeering tone.

She replied promptly: "We'll have people to stay with us who'll only come because of Jerricks and because we'll be so rich. I suppose by then there will only be nudist young parties?" And with a peal of joyous laughter she cried: "Think of me, as an old lady, scribbling notes over there at Aunt Jane's table—'You are requested to bring no clothes. But a wrap must be worn when motoring through the suburbs.' O, how hideous most of them will look! Not a pleasing prospect for either of us, eh?"

"A most unpleasing prospect," he said with sudden energy.

"Aunt Jane can't cut me out—or can she?"

"Nothing can prevent your having half Jerricks at her death. But she's got a lot of money she can leave to whom she likes."

"I don't want her to leave me her money, horrid old thing. It won't make any difference to me."

"It ought to make a difference to you," he said gravely.

"How d'you mean?"

"It's very unpleasant to be without any money. If Aunt Jane cuts you out of her will you will have a very thin time. Jerricks wouldn't fetch much now, for no one who isn't very rich could afford to live here. Aunt Jane couldn't have kept it up a week if her father hadn't bought all that building land."

"I suppose she's left you a lot of money?"

"I think she has. But she can alter her will tomorrow if she likes."

"Still you're bound to have half Jerricks?"

He nodded.

"You wouldn't want to sell this darling place?"

HER little face became grave and pleading, and he felt deeply moved. Even so, he answered brusquely: "Of course I wouldn't want to sell it! But the question would be—I mean if she left half her money away—if we could keep it?"

The present mistress of Jerricks, Lady Jane Blunt, was very wealthy because her father, the old earl, as some of the ancients on the estate still called him, had bought many a square mile of field and wood between his fine estate and London when land there cost almost nothing. And, as the town had spread, engulfing picturesque villages and destroying peaceful fields and woods, so had Lady Jane's fortune increased.

She was a shrewd, worldly old woman who believed herself to be broadminded. And so she was, as regarded the foolish, even the evil, doings common to the mature members of her own high little world. But she could be both cruel and narrow, with small toleration for the follies of those she called "the young." With her great-niece Zella's ways she felt no patience at all, her disapproval being no doubt partly engendered, though she would have denied it vehemently, because after her death the girl was bound to become, with her cousin, John Pomfret, joint owner of the only thing Lady Jane had ever loved passionately—that was the great palatial mansion called Jerricks.

"So long——" At the door the young man turned round. "I expect we'll meet tonight; keep me an extra."

"How Victorian!"

"Why not? Those were the good times."

ZELLA, as she drove herself back to London in the midget motor car which had been her own Christmas present to herself, felt oddly heavy-hearted and wondered why she should.

She was on her way to lunch with Broke Castledyne, the man against whom her cousin had just warned her, at a small expensive restaurant lately opened in a quiet street within easy call of city men, and far, therefore, from the quarter where young London society gathers at midday.

Parking her car in what to herself she called a slum, the girl walked into the shadowed restaurant. It was not yet one o'clock, so to her relief the place was quite empty and two waiters were moving aimlessly round the small, green glass covered tables.

Suddenly the proprietor, Signor Carlo, hurried forward. "Mees Blunt?" he murmured in the tone of a conspirator.

Zella felt slightly vexed. Broke Castledyne needn't have given this fat restaurant owner her name. Also that talk with John Pomfret had impressed her far more than she knew herself. And, as Carlo hurried her through the restaurant and opened a door giving into a paneled room where was laid a table for two, the only other furniture consisting of two chairs, a marble console table which served as a sideboard, and a sofa, Zella felt a shock of angry surprise.

"There's some mistake," she said firmly. "Of course I shall lunch in the restaurant."

With head held high she passed Carlo and walked straight into the outer room toward a somewhat conspicuous table.

Before she had time to sit down Capt. Castledyne walked in. He looked at her, and a tremor ran through her. Was he really "mad about her?" She felt touched and amused, for in what had become her world the men and girls were far too modern to indulge in violent feeling of any kind. No one, or so she believed, had ever felt in the least "mad" about her and the thought that this man she called her friend might feel like that was queerly alluring. John Pomfret had made a serious mistake when he had let fall that imprudent word "mad." Up to today Zella had only thought of herself with regard to Castledyne. Now, for the first time, she forgot herself in wondering if there was real deep-down feeling behind his caressing speech—and ways.

"Let's go over to that window; it's nicer there," he observed.

Zella obeyed him, feeling relieved and a little bewildered. Had this horrid, slimy looking Carlo made a mistake? There was nothing to show—no trace of annoyance or disappointment—in Castledyne's dark, strong featured face.

Under cover of the noise made by the customers' loud voices (Zella was the only woman there) and the creaking of chairs, Castledyne leaned across the table and whispered: "How is my darling friend this morning? I don't know how I've lived through the last sixty-one hours."

It was fun being made love to in this old-fashioned way. Different indeed from the shy and awkward advances or the rough and ready so-called love methods of the men—all far younger than this man—of her set. The captain gave everything—or so Zella believed—and asked nothing in return save for as much of her companionship as she was willing to vouchsafe.

"I don't know how I've lived through the last sixty-one hours," he whispered.

JUST four years before Zella Blunt had met the man she now regarded as her closest friend; there were gathered together in the still countrified looking churchyard of a church in old-world Highgate a number of ex-temporary officers who had just attended the memorial service of a lady in whose house they had all convalesced during the last year of the great war.

Most of those there now looked fairly prosperous and, with a single exception, men of peace. The only one who retained today something of his old martial bearing was a certain Capt. Castledyne. He had been regarded as rather "grand" at the Convalescent home, and the fact that more than one of the attractive V. A. D.'s had obviously preferred him to any of the other officers had not increased his popularity. Even so, there was scarcely a man present here today who would not have felt sorry to learn that Castledyne was now that most pitiable of human beings—an educated man who can find nothing to do and so belongs to the terrible phantom army of the down-and-outs.

Restlessly from group to group he strode—tall, lean, dark, still exceptionally handsome, and with an insolent air. True, his clothes were shabby, but his suit was well cut and scrupulously clean. He was fortunate in having as landlord of the house, where he had a small back bedroom, a man who had been a gentleman's valet.

"Capt. Castledyne? How very nice to see you again!" It was a woman's soft cultured accents which uttered that kindly greeting.

QUICKLY, eagerly he looked about him and a moment later found himself glancing down into the face of a lady who, as amateur matron, had been in charge of the V. A. D.'s in Lady Angus' luxurious country house.

What the devil was her name? He remembered as in a flash that the high spirited girls hadn't really liked her, and had talked of her scornfully as "a tiresome prude." But she had had a good deal of influence with Lady Angus, and he, Broke Castledyne, had made a point of getting on well with Miss—Miss—Yes! he had it now—Kinghurst was her name.

He grinned inwardly and his spirits rose, too. The woman now before him hadn't thought of herself as "a tiresome prude" ten years ago. And though prim and proper in the extreme, she had liked him, as he put it to himself, "quite a bit."

"Can I give you a lift back into town?" she asked.

"That would be awfully good of you, Miss Kinghurst."

Soon he was bowling along in a grand carriage and pair.

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil wherever you see it, and then heed the counsel given.

WE ARE definitly in circumstances of change, and this is a week in which the minds of leaders of all types are arriving at new decisions, for the good and otherwise of those who follow them. Planets do not dictate whether decisions will be good or ill—the responsibility is with the individual who makes them. Therefore, if you are an executive, at home or in an office or factory, consider well the effects of all you plan and of all you do. It will be much better for all concerned, especially the leaders themselves, if their decisions are unselfish.

Tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday: Creative vibrations on all levels—physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual; make the most of your artistic, musical, literary, and other talents, including the inventive. Thursday and Friday: Inventory your situation as regards health and other departments of well-being; take steps to improve what you deserve. Saturday and next Sunday: Study the other fellow's side; do unto others as they would have you do unto them.

Experience

Experience may be a good teacher, but are we good students of what it is trying to make us learn? Take time to check up on yourself—do it today—and see if you have squeezed out all of the real lessons you were intended to get from your experience. You probably will find some spot where you aren't too proud of what you did under the circumstances. If so, the worst thing you can do is to cover it up to yourself, for then you would be refusing to learn the message that experience really had for your benefit. Note this point well at the present time, especially if you were born Jan. 23-Feb. 19, June 6-July 6, July 12-August-Sept. 14, or Nov. 24-Dec. 21.

Boundaries

Many as may be the boundaries of external circumstances, we bind ourselves further and even more by self-imposed limitations on what we think, feel, and do. Boundaries often are necessary for observance of the rights of others; if so, keep them. But don't make them through fear. Take note if born Feb. 25-March 19, April 27-May 20, Sept. 7-Oct. 7, Oct. 17-Nov. 8, or Nov. 20-Dec. 12.

True and False

If you are impersonal and undesireful enough to distinguish between the true and the false, you now can go ahead for profit and progress. This applies particularly to those born Feb. 20-March 20, July 7-Aug. 6, Aug. 11-Sept. 8 (but avoid extravagance), Sept. 15-Oct. 13, and Dec. 22-Jan. 18. Go after the best you deserve, Fay Wray, Jackie Cooper, Helen Vinson, Dolores Costello Barrymore, Phil Cook, Louis Untermyer, Secretary Cordell Hull, Janet Gaynor, Carole Lombard, Eddie Rickenbacker, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Ronald Colman's Life (as Character Actor) Begins at 40

'Clive of India' Permits Him Broad Scope

He's Delighted to Turn from Romantic to More Serious, Historical Roles.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — [Special.] —Ronald Colman, romantically gray about the temples, handsomer if possible than in the years when we first knew him as a young leading man in one of Constance Talmadge's screen comedies, sat and chatted with us in his dressing room over at Twentieth Century studios, where he has recently completed "Clive of India."

It is Colman's first screen spectacle, if one could so describe the interesting and rapidly moving incidents of the film, since the days when he made "Beau Geste." It accents the trend of Colman's rôles since those early days, away from the entirely romantic and handsome leading man rôle, and toward interesting characterizations broadening in this case almost a character lead, for Colman plays Clive through several periods of his life, graying with the advance of years.

Commenting on this, Colman remarked, "I like the way films have been shaping their stories toward better things. If we were still limited in acceptable story material, as we were in the silents, we would not in our talkies be going the way of the silents. And the public seems ready to accept well done historical things. George Arliss' 'House of Rothschild' and his older 'Disraeli' were amazingly well received. I hope it will be so with 'Clive of India.'"

Colman Thinks Sexy Films Have Lost Popularity.

"There is every indication of sex being unimportant, compared to a few years ago. Do not confuse this with romance. It is an entirely different thing. Romance is always acceptable. I refer to the sexy jaz which, it was thought, had to be injected into every film a few years ago whether it belonged in or not. The romance in 'Clive' is historically correct, though unusual, and is real and charming. I think that to play one of the old sheik rôles would be a great gamble today. People are too sophisticated to accept them. They want real characters now in their film stories.

"Loretta Young, who does some serious dramatic work as the feminine lead in 'Clive,' you will remember, played with me in 'The Devil to Pay' five years ago. At that time I was astonished that such a young actress could have so much poise and ability. Her performance in 'Clive' fulfills that early promise. Every one who has seen her work recently in the studio is full of prophecies for a brilliant future for her. Of all the younger actresses she is the most promising. I would say her poise is unequaled.

Clive Closely Linked with Boston Tea Party.

"It seems that the name of Clive is better known in America than I had imagined. The founder of the British empire in India is well known to educated Britons, of course. What is most interesting about Clive to Americans perhaps is how closely linked he was with the Boston tea party. It was the East India company, for which Clive was manager and for which he acted in India when there was no political power of the crown there, that sent the ships of tea to Boston harbor.

"After that incident Clive was begged to go to America and take charge of things there. But his illness following his strenuous years in India prevented this. His enemy, Burgoyne, did go, with history recording his surrender to Gates of the Americans at Saratoga. (Yes, Colman knows his American history, also.) If Clive had gone in his place, in his prime, the story of the American revolution might have had a far different outcome and the United States and Great Britain a far different history.

"Burgoyne appears as the villain in 'Clive of India,' for he it was who brought charges against Clive which ultimately ruined and disgraced Clive, who died a broken man. Later history shows he had a cleaner record than any one in the matter. Burgoyne also impeached Warren Hastings, who succeeded Clive in India. Clive died unhonored and was buried, no one was sure where, his grave being finally found a hundred years later in a Shrewsbury churchyard. His body was disinterred and buried with pomp in Westminster Abbey.

Colman Wants to Portray Figure in American History.

"If 'Clive' has a big success I will be extremely happy because it will open still further possibilities for worthwhile stories on the screen. I have enjoyed playing this historic Englishman more than any rôle on the screen. If I do another historical film soon I would like to play an American historical character. There are negotiations afoot at the moment for a story about a famous character of early American history, whom I would like to play."

Colman, at 40, is facing a pleasant world. His film future may well be greater than his not unsuccessful past. His ten years in Hollywood must have enabled him to save a private fortune of a million dollars. His troubled marital bark is about to land him as a free man some time after the 1st of February.

Tullio Carminati, whose recent success as the impresario in "One Night of Love" with Grace Moore brought him so much well deserved attention, has just completed "Once a Gentleman" with Lilian Harvey at Columbia, directed by Victor Schertzinger, who directed the former success. Tullio returned from a tour in Europe, where he made a film for an Italian company in Rome, before beginning the second film for Columbia.

Picture making in Italy, according to Carminati, is due for immediate development, for Mussolini has appointed a new ministry for the press and also for the films. Recalling the old days when Italy did well in the film world, Carminati referred to "The Last Days of Pompeii" and "Cabiria." After these successes there was an unexplained slump in picture making in Italy.

"Talking pictures in Italy are bad," he says. "The ones shown are made in other countries and have the voices 'dubbed' in and the effect is bad. You should have heard the voice they had doubled for Garbo in a film. It is a system that is most unfair to the artist. Also it means that films are not realized in Italy for a long time, as the dubbing takes time and money before it can be released.

"It seems to me that for the first time in the history of motion pictures an invention (the sound process) has made films less world-wide in their appeal. Now, with languages, every country must make its own films. Perhaps this is a good thing, for thus many artists who otherwise never would get a chance will receive an opportunity to show what they can do.

Father Disinherits Son Who Becomes an Actor.

"I visited in London on my trip and had the satisfaction of seeing 'One Night of Love' have a five weeks' run. London is not new to me, nor I to London—I played there in a three months' stage run of 'Strictly Dishonorable,' my New York stage success, three years ago. I received an offer from Gaumont to make a film—perhaps later I will return and do so."

Carminati, a count in his own right, Count Tullio Carminati di Brambila, is loath to talk of his personal affairs, having that European feeling that professional life and personal life should be separated. He says, however, that he was disinherited by his family when he ran away from home at 15 to become an actor.

He was born and spent his boyhood in Zara, was near Venice and Bergamo, in northern Italy. A year after his hegira he was noticed in the traveling company with which he played, and taken by Ermete Novelli, a great Italian actor. "If I know how to walk or to talk it is because of Novelli," says Carminati.

At 18 Carminati had developed into a romantic leading man of promise, so much so that Tina di Lorenzo, famous Italian actress, bought his contract from Novelli. He created the rôle in "The Closed Door" with her that he played so successfully ten years later as leading man for the great Eleanor Duse. After a tour of South America with Tina de Lorenzo, he returned to Italy in triumph. The mayor of his home town asked his father to come to the theater to see the success of his son. The old man came and forgave Tullio, but never reconciled himself to the idea of having his son an actor. "I don't really blame him," says Carminati whimsically.

Letter Box

To the dramatic editor:

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Being a visitor to your fine city I cannot refrain from commenting upon the gracious service extended me at one of your theaters last evening.

I attended the performance of Dennis King at the Harris theater. Unfortuntely I lost or mislaid my tickets, but upon explaining to a gray haired, military looking representative at the door, he most courteously gave me two seats in a box until after the first act when two seats, evidently my own, were located in the center of a packed theater. The rarity of such courtesy nowadays is truly worthy of recognition.

A. E. ROBERTS.

"THE PRESIDENT VANISHES"

Look enough alike to be brother and sister, don't they? But they are just a pair of non-relatives yclept Peggy Conklin and Paul Kelly and you can see them in "The President Vanishes." At the Apollo theater.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wants More of Robert Donat.

Dear Mae Tinée: Won't you please page the powers that be out Hollywood way and urge them to bring back to us in many more pictures one Robert Donat, whose superb performance in "The Count of Monte Cristo" will not soon be forgotten? What an actor! And what a picture!

And was I chagrined in looking over your list of best pictures for the month to find that this remarkable film was given only honorable mention, playing second fiddle to such pictures as "British Agent," "As the Earth Turns," and "The Life of Vergie Winters," which, while deserving of some praise, certainly were not great. O, Mae, how could you? Sincerely, M. W.

Editor's Note: I stand reproved!

Brickbats for "A Girl from Missouri."

Dear Miss Tinée: After seeing "The Girl from Missouri" I am wondering what Hollywood producers think of the intelligence of the American moviegoing public. It appears to me that a fine cast consisting of Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Franchot Tone, and other good actors was wasted on a "trashy" story. To see a dramatic genius like Lionel Barrymore playing a part in a cheap, absurd story is nothing short of tragic. The story itself is utterly ridiculous. It would be a pretty sad state of affairs if American bankers were as foolish as the one portrayed in this picture. I would like to see an intelligent, successful banker who has been appointed as representative of his country at an international disarmament conference fall for a "gold digger" who first tries to "hook" him and having failed pursues his son—the father sanctioning the match at the end of the movie. Why on earth do producers insist on glorifying girls of that type?

It seems that the only way to make producers "wake up" to the fact that we want films with clean, intelligent stories would be not to patronize movies of this type.

Hoping you will agree with me, I remain, Very truly yours, J. S.

Society Pushes On Through Its Winter Season

Benefits and Weddings Keep Stay - at - Home Crowd in High Spirits.

By Cousin Eve.

TIDINGS from Palm Beach—every house is taken, the hotels bursting with prosperity. We strain at our moorings, longing to leave on tropical trips and cruises and things.

But life goes on at home, weddings and winter gayeties, with a benefit or two lifting its little head.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody's committee is gallantly selling out two performances of the Irish Abbey players from Dublin, and finding it an easy task. The most charming actors in the world, with plays both whimsical and tragic, gripping the heart.

The Little Company of Mary is to be benefited—those Blue Nuns, nursing sisters in blue habit, with broad white starched head dresses like gull's wings.

The dates of the galas are Jan. 28 and 29 at the Harris theater. Mrs. Peabody's committee includes Mrs. Valentine Bartlett, Mrs. John Coleman, Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Roy Carney, Mrs. John Hurley, Mrs. B. E. Sunny, Harriet McLaughlin, Mrs. Frank Wilhelm, Mrs. E. J. Kelly, Mrs. Frank Gordon, Mrs. Peter B. Carey.

Bridesmaids Dressed Like June in January.

Last Saturday afternoon the Reid-Chatillon wedding pageant at St. Chrysostom's, a matter of great beauty and studied simplicity. A bridal party of lovely picturesque girls, and tall, handsome young super-ushers, including Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne's young 14 year old Nathan. Everybody spoke of the massed beauty of the cortège. It seemed the springtime of life, with spring itself just around the corner. So much leaf green tulle! What a young, frolicsome idea to have in January slim bridesmaids caped in a layer of gauze, hatted in Florentine halos, carrying early flowers. The Madleners, Lefens, and Seipps have certainly produced fine, upstanding sons.

An altar massed with Easter lilies; a bride delightfully young and lovely in plain, classic white satin, shrouded in tulle, with a big bouquet. The usual negligible groom; in this case Ralph Chatillon, a splendid, tall young man, happy as can be.

Mrs. Bryan Reid, the bride's mother, wears warm, red, dusky sables, red orchids, a big slanting black hat. The youngest bridesmaid, Joan Reid, a junior sister, in first long skirts of ruffled reseda tulle, walks alone. The freesias of her bouquet tremble as she quakes at the crowded ailes, smiling faces.

French Don't Even Know Our President's Name, Says Writer.

A Casino reception of great liveliness. The receiving party circling the Green Fountain room is stunning, the line of girls in fluffy green tulle frocks, worthy of Dégas, Margot Reid, Ethel Johnston, Nancy Doering, Frances Jeffery, all individuals. The wedding cake, covered with great white sugar roses, is duly carved by the bride and eaten. There is in the air the electric quality of youth, young laughter, overtones of the orchestra.

I admired the costume of a friend. She said it was four years old. Another confided that her baby lamb hat had been in a cedar closet for twenty years. We are sublime in our simple life, these early days of 1935.

Somebody here asked Miss May Birkhead what the French think of President Roosevelt. Miss Birkhead, for many years a writer in Paris on mundane topics, was highly entertained at this naïveté. "The French," she says, "don't know whether the President's name is Roosevelt or MacGillicuddy. They are too full of their own problems."

"Well," I remarked, "neither do I know the name of the French president."

"Nobody ever does," she replied briefly; and then went on to say that the French are having a superb depression of their own, having chased nearly all foreigners out of Paris by their rude ways.

Evening Dress a Thing of the Past in Paris.

There is no gayety. Evening dress is a thing of the past, whatever fashion writers may say. A woman décolleté, supping at Les Ambassadeurs, would be unheard of. Toilette de rigueur is street dress and hat, often woolly. Certainly dark and plain. Miss Birkhead stayed a few days while in Chicago with Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, who made an interesting dinner for her guest. Mrs. Arthur Small had for her a smart luncheon at the Casino, and Mrs. Harry Shearson and Mrs. Jacob Baur made parties for her, chez elles. Mrs. Baur's table decor was greatly liked. She has been indulging her fancy this year in some grand and sparkling candelabra out of Russia, in turquoise blue enamel and crystal, plus old blue Chinese figures on the lace cloth. And not a butterfly in the lot. This was used in honor of a visiting royalty some weeks ago.

There is practically no society any more in Paris. Five to luncheon is a party, and three courses, the maximum refreshment.

Mrs. William L. Baum, just home from Berlin, found Berlin is primitive in parties and clothing, too. Evening dress is almost taboo. Going recently to the Italian embassy to an evening rout, Mrs. Baum decided to wear a white lace frock four years old, or two maybe, and washed for the occasion by her maid in the wash bowl. The effect on the official crowd present was startling. All in plain uniform clothing, they were evidently amazed at the opulence of the old white lace dress. As for refreshments—the traveler recalled an afternoon coffee party for young people of the great world, princelings, dukes, and such, where there seemed to be bread, sausage, coffee, and coffee cake, and not so much of that.

Mrs. Baum will hold forth on Tuesday next at a round table of the Fortnightly on things seen and done recently in Hitler's Germany.

Milk Supplanting Champagne Among Younger Set.

To Durand Smith belongs part of the credit for much of the milk drinking in social circles. A leader of thought and action in the younger set, he can be seen bootlegging milk at smart luncheons and ball suppers, when others are peering round for champagne. At one of the recent balls at the Blackstone where I stayed on for supper in the wee hours, milk was the preferred drink at many of the supper tables, although champagne was plentiful as water, indeed, easier to get.

And sausage was the favorite edible, although caviar and lobster were at hand.

College athletic directors are boosting milk, too, they say. Makes athletes big and bold.

Mary Garden, Met at Tea, Enchants Anew.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer were at home Sunday with Miss Elsie McCormick, just home from Europe after a harrowing voyage. Fourteen days on the crest of the waves, huge, dark green ones, and also in the deep valleys between, on a small ship. However, everything ends. Log fires, wassail, many vivacious friends shut out the January seas effectually.

Eleanor McCormick Collier and her husband, Sargent Collier, were there from Boston, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, William P. Hunt, Robert Stevenson, Mrs. David Cooke Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Kellogg and Mrs. Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Johnston, Graham and Mrs. Aldis, Mrs. Chauncey Borland, Mrs. Leverett Thompson, Mrs. R. T. Crane, and Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers had surely the original and lively tea of the week, Mary Garden being her co-star. It was absolutely enchantment to see the dashing creature again. A year in Corsica had done something for her. We all know what it did for Napoleon. Miss Garden told me that swimming at Ile Rousse for a twelvemonth was what had kept her up to the mark.

The diva could have appeared in "Tosca" in her costume, which was white satin topped by a loose jacket of brown sequins. On her red curls, a small black tricorne. Orchids. "Merci pour les roses," "Merci pour les orchidées." Mary was murmuring to various gallants as they came in. Big Janet Fairbank said that it was marvelous to see again some one who knew "the art of sitting." It was, indeed.

Friends Arrange Debussy Recital for Great Diva.

The big moment of this hour of charm was when Miss Garden took the piano and, with friends ringed around, played and sang "Auld Lang Syne." Nobody seemed to know the words any better than our national air. Then the singer's fingers wandered into "Home, Sweet Home," and in beautiful warm tones, tears coursing down her cheeks, she sang it, did Chicago's own Mary. Claire Dux Swift wept, too. It was a sad but lovely moment.

At the beautiful table, serving little mince pies, eggnog, and things, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed. The latter had brought Leonid Massine, old friend of Mary Garden, charming, sympathetic artist of the dance. Hamilton Forrest, too, composer of "Camille," and Marquesa d'Ivanrey in a marvelous hat, flat and shiny à l'espagnol. Also Mrs. Charles Schweppe, Mrs. Kersey Reed, Mrs. Richard Crane, Herbert and Mrs. Schwarz, Silas and Mrs. Strawn, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Arthur Slamm, Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, William Watkins, Herman Waldeck, Mrs. Charles B. Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Gen. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Philip Miller, Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr., Mrs. Sewell Avery, the Walter Brewsters, others too.

Corsica makes conquerors.

The French government, eight months ago, opening a Debussy memorial, paid Mary Garden a grand tribute. She was the artist invited to speak and sing as the great interpreter of the French master.

So three of Miss Garden's friends are arranging a Debussy recital by her at the Casino, Jan. 25, preceded by a dinner. They are Mrs. John Carpenter, Mrs. Charles Swift, Mrs. "Barney" Goodspeed [and Mrs. Chalmers].

Prof. Harper Contributes a Soviet Society Note.

A great flurry last week over Prof. Samuel Harper's return from Moscow. He was present and most amusing at the dinner given by Mrs. Ernst Freund in honor of Mrs. William Baum. The name Roosevelt was forgotten all the evening for those of Hitler and Stalin.

Inadvertently, Dr. Harper gave me a soviet society note when he spoke of the magnificent dinner given in Moscow by Vincent Bendix on the eve of his departure. The American big business man and capitalist entertained in regal style forty of Russia's first citizens. Such a dinner with French wines and epicurean delicacies had not been seen in Russia in two decades.

The rush to the foreign relations luncheon Saturday to hear Dr. Harper opened the big ballroom. Clifton Utley introduced the noted Russophile, and we all sat agog awaiting the usual cut-and-dried agricultural and economic statements, dryer than dust, read word for word. But this speech was really different. Professor Harper tore right into the short crop of 1932 when millions starved. These could have been fed had there been good railroads with military supplies. There was also much about the short crop of 1933 and presumably 1934, and the certain starvation of more millions.

A salient point, the weakening of workmen's morale by privileged rations. His first day in Moscow the speaker heard a new word, "blat." "Blat" is a friendly act. It is also a violation of program. You sell a man a motor and he sells you sugar ahead of others in the waiting line. He sells you a book and you let him have a pair of boots ahead of his turn. This is "blat." Not necessarily bribery, but certainly not according to the rules.

Reactions to Kirov Tragedy May Be Slow.

There is great progress in education and cultural development. There are plays in the provinces.

Apartments and motors are state goods. Special rationing continues yet awhile, the Red army and political police having preference. There is a feeling of greater political security. Campaign meetings seem to have more meaning. Just as Dr. Harper was about to leave Russia Kirov was killed. He was tempted to remain to see the reaction, but reflected that it might be a long process. There are, however, assassinations in Russia. Socialization is a difficult and costly process. So the revolution smashes on in its eighteenth year.

Lewis Bernays, British consul general, born and raised in Moscow, said this was far and away the best of Dr. Harper's three summaries of the situation.

In the great crowd, Mrs. Frederic Woodward, Mrs. William Baum, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Dr. Joseph Capps, William Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mrs. J. O. Heyworth, Mrs. John Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirk, Frank McNair, Mrs. Nicholas de Starosselsky, and Mrs. Caswell Sharpe.

Rare Pamphlet Tells History of Waukegan Academy

THE library of the Chicago Historical society has found among its collections a rare pamphlet throwing light on Waukegan's early educational history. This is the "First Annual Catalogue of the Officers and Students of Waukegan Academy and Lake County Teacher's Institute," dated 1849. It is a booklet of sixteen pages and cover which was printed in Chicago by James J. Langdon, there being no printer in Waukegan at that time.

Among the "curators" of this pioneer educational institution are found the names of H. L. Hatch, president; I. L. Clarke, treasurer, and David Cory, M. D., secretary. Henry L. Hatch and Issac L. Clarke were joint principals. Miss Calista E. Branchard was preceptress; Miss Frances A. Shekell and Miss Alathea Crocker, teachers of music, and Miss Sylvia L. Clarke, teacher in the juvenile department.

Among the students in 1849 were 147 young men and 159 young ladies. Most of the students were residents of Waukegan, but there were a number from Libertyville, Wheeling, Lake Zurich, Fort Hill, and Halfday. Several hailed from Michigan, Ontario, and New York.

The building of Waukegan academy, as we learn from the catalog, was two and a half stories high, with the basement fitted up for boarding. Bed, board, and washing cost a student $1.75 a week.

There were four terms of eleven weeks each. A tuition fee was charged for each subject taken, for example, common English, $3; Latin and Greek, $5; vocal music, $1; piano, $8.

Beaux Arts Ball Looms Large on N. Y.'s Horizon

Combining Spectacle with Dance, It's Peak of Gotham's Winter Season.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK

There's always a let down after the holidays. Town is quiet just at present, with little scheduled in the way of social activity. There are, naturally, no end of dinners being given, but there is nothing gala in sight save the annual Beaux Arts ball on Feb. 1. Undoubtedly the Beaux Arts has become what the Charity ball was when grandma and granddad were young. Once upon a time it was just another of the costume balls [sometimes "brawls"] which took place in the hugeness of the Astor ballroom. Now it is the pièce de résistance of the season that fills all the rooms of the new Waldorf-Astoria. The other costume balls have languished and died—in fact, I can hardly recall them or their names—but the Beaux Arts is not only a social festivity, it is also an artistic one.

I think, and many agree with me, that the reason the B. A. has gone to such heights is the insistence of its managers that it be a spectacle first and a ball afterward. There is no slipping of dominos over dinner clothes at the B. A. One comes in the costume prescribed between not too broad limits, or one does not enter. Which is as it should be.

"George III. Regrets" to Be the Spectacle.

Kenneth Murchison has retired from actively heading the executive committee of the arts, and the new chairman, young Christopher La Farge, has chosen a happy period for this year's ball.

In keeping with today's tendency to hark back to other times in our history, the setting this year will be the times and courts of George the Third and his son, the prince regent.

America has already come into its own when the Beaux Arts spectacle, "George III. Regrets" presumably takes place. The prince regent, later George IV., is holding forth at Carlton house and all the glamorous figures of the period are represented. Sheridan, Beau Brummel, Sir Thomas Lawrence, Charles James Fox, Walpole, Pitt the younger, Mrs. Fitz Herbert, Sir Walter Scott, and all the royal dukes are at the reception, where a Greek ballet is presented for the edification of the guests.

Society Even Comes from Palm Beach for Beaux Arts.

After the ballet, performed by the girls of the Albertina Rasch school, there will come a burst of martial music and then will enter the duke of Wellington and his staf, bearing the flags of Waterloo. The prince regent will warmly greet the Iron Duke and his men, and then march out arm in arm with the duke.

Of course, you can see that this will be a spectacle as colorful as any ever given, and does town love such things!

Anyhow the next two weeks are to be filled with rushings about to get one's costume ready. Every one in New York considers that it is social oblivion not to be seen at the ball. I know scads of folk who come from Palm Beach just to be present. Mrs. Amory always does, as does Mrs. Francis Wellman. Whitney Bourne will leave her mother, Mrs. Harvey D. Gibson, to show her tall loveliness in Georgian costume. I hardly blame her. The clothes of the regency offer an opportunity to women not to be neglected. And the men will have a chance to show that they possess that most admired attribute of postcolonial days—"a good leg." Hm! Perukes and silk hose; lace, cravats, and wristlets. I can hardly wait.

Burke-Roches to Be Present in Full Force.

I haven't any doubt that Fanny Burke-Roche will put in an appearance. One can't mistake Fanny's lovely head of hair. And with her will be her son and daughter-in-law, Lord and Lady Fermoy, not to mention her daughter, Mrs. Guy Fairfax Gary of town and Newport, R. I.

Baron Fermoy hasn't been here in years. The former Maurice Burke-Roche has been busy with parliamentary matters in England, just as his twin brother, the Hon. Frank Burke-Roche, has been busy in Paris with his banking interests. But Frank has visited his native land several times of late years. Now Maurice is here, and has brought with him his lovely wife, the former Ruth Gill of Aberdeen, Scotland, and his daughter, the Hon. Mary Cynthia Burke-Roche.

Maurice is not a youngster, and after the way every mother in Gotham tried to wangle him or Frank for her daughter it is a wonder that he ever did get married. But one look at Lady Fermoy is answer enough.

London Society Fails to Depart for Resorts

'West End' Set Booked Up with Home Parties Instead of Southern Trips.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

London, that is to say, the "west end" of London, hardly knows itself just now. Instead of the general departure for warmer climes, every one is booked up with private parties. January is usually the annual "low" socially, but this year it is an intimate interim between the extraordinarily gay "little season" with its royal wedding and the extraordinarily early "big season" with its jubilee celebrations in honor of the king's reign of twenty-five years.

The jubilee celebrations will reach a peak during the month of May, and to reduce the strain of public engagements at that time, the May courts have been moved forward to March. The regulations abolishing the long wait of the presentees' cars in the Mall have rendered it possible for the courts to be held in such a chilly month as March. The lord chamberlain's regulations this year lay particular stress on the fact that the numbers to be presented at court must be kept down. Doubtless due to the great number of foreign and dominion officials who will be here for the celebrations.

It is not difficult to understand what joy two early courts mean to London when you realize that the royal wedding is conservatively estimated to have scattered twenty million pounds in its wake. The courts always buck up trade and the jubilee is expected to give the final push to Old Man Depression.

Virginia Young Has Both Bridesmaids and Groomsmen.

English society is accustomed to looking for the unexpected where Americans are concerned, but they had two surprises at the wedding of W. Wylton Todd, a young English architect, to Miss Virginia Young, only daughter of America's orchid king.

The retinue which walked down the aile of St. Margaret's Westminster was the longest that has ever been seen there. The nine grownup bridesmaids were escorted by nine grownup groomsmen, as well as two little girls and a page. The escort of groomsmen is unheard of at English weddings, the best man being considered all that is necessary. The only other time St. Margaret's has witnessed groomsmen was at the wedding of Maysie Gasque and Roland Robinson.

The second unusual element was the wedding breakfast which took the form of a dance and supper party. Miss Young is one of the first to take advantage of the recent law allowing weddings after three o'clock in the afternoon. With late weddings come what is, to the English, unusual wedding receptions.

Granddaughter of Vauxes of Chicago an Attendant.

The bride was escorted up the aile by Baron Sers in the absence of Mr. Young, who is in California, and she was given away by her mother. Her gown was of ivory satin, close fitting, with a high draped neck edged with a spray of orange blossoms and long, tight sleeves with orange blossoms round the cuffs. A halo of orange blossoms and pearls in the shape of a Russian diadem held in place her long veil of tulle.

Among the bridesmaids was Miss Amicie de Burgh Whyte, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Vaux of Chicago. Her gown was of powder blue velvet with silver cape and she carried a silver bouquet. The gifts of the bridegroom to the bridesmaids were silver and diamond clasps.

Amicie de Burgh Whyte is collecting quite a wardrobe of bridesmaids' gowns. She was also one of the bridesmaids at the St. Margaret's wedding of Terence Skeffington-Smith and Miss Isabel McLean. The bridesmaids' gowns on this occasion were of cream and gold lamé with short trains. They wore gold laurel leaves in their hair and carried bouquets of gold shadow leaves and lilies.

Tickets Ready for Tribune's 2d Conference

Clubwomen of Dozen States Lend Enthusiastic Support to Sessions.

By Ruth DeYoung.

TICKETS for THE TRIBUNE'S second annual conference on current problems, to be held Feb. 26 and 27 in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house, are ready for distribution. This was the announcement made yesterday by Miss Kathleen McLaughlin, woman's editor of THE TRIBUNE, and chairman of the conference.

A sheaf of telegrams and letters from clubwomen in more than a dozen states indicates that the five conference sessions are to be a veritable "Who's Who" of leaders in the club world. Most of them will arrive in Chicago on Feb. 25 to remain through the final meeting on the 27th.

Free Admission Tickets Given to Clubwomen.

Although without charge, admission to the conference will be by ticket only because of the large audiences expected. Tickets of varied colors have been printed for each of the five sessions, so that admission applications must indicate the sessions desired.

These applications must also be made on behalf of a club by a representative of the organization instead of by individual members. Requests should be addressed by mail to Miss McLaughlin or Philip Maxwell at the conference headquarters, room 1110, Tribune Tower. Telephone requests may be made over Superior 0100, local 710.

As soon as the applications are received they will be filled by mail with the inclosure of a blank allowing for the order of additional tickets.

"I want to emphasize that the conference is open to all women's clubs and organizations, federated or not," Miss McLaughlin explained yesterday. "Members of any group are welcome to attend any or all of the meetings."

The program will present famous names and faces in discussion of the general theme, "Today's Problems—Tomorrow's Prospects." Speakers will include authorities in legislation, social welfare, and economics, progressively thinking men and women from the fields of art, literature, religion, and education.

Anna Steese Richardson One of the Speakers.

One of them will be Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson of New York, director of the good citizenship bureau of the Woman's Home Companion, identified for years with various phases of feminine progress. It was Mrs. Richardson who in October, 1927, dropped a bomb in the ranks of organized women with the appeal, "God send a leader of women." In a current article Mrs. Richardson has answered her own challenge with an evaluation of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and the impending annual conference on the cause and cure of war.

At the opening conference session, the morning of Feb. 26, various phases of legislation will be treated. Mayor Edward J. Kelly has accepted an invitation to be present, despite the fact that the 26th is primary day and he is a candidate to succeed himself. E. W. Tinker of Milwaukee, regional forester for nine states with headquarters in Milwaukee, will also be heard.

Other Prominent Clubwomen to Participate in Sessions.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will take part in this session as previously announced, and Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Woman's Trade Union league, and Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews of Washington will debate the equal rights amendment to the constitution.

Cultural trends will be the general theme at the afternoon session the opening day. Speakers presented will include Margaret Weymouth Jackson, long and favorably known as a novelist and contributor of short stories to the Ladies' Home Journal, the Pictorial Review, and other publications; Dudley Crafts Watson, special lecturer for the Art institute, and George R. Meyercord, president of the Meyercord company and employer of scores of designers and artists.

Second Day Sessions Deal with Social Welfare.

The second day, Feb. 27, will bring an opening session on social welfare and an afternoon meeting on economics. Miss Mary Barnett Gilson, for 15 years an active participant in labor legislation, will share the morning program with the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, and Rabbi Solomon Goldman, whose scholastic attainments have won him nation-wide recognition. The Rev. John B. Hubbard of Park Ridge, one of the brilliant young speakers in the pulpit today, and Dr. Harold S. Hulbert will make further contributions on social welfare.

Ernest A. Grunsfeld Jr., winner of the gold medal of the American Institute of Architects for his design of the Adler planetarium and of the first prize awarded in THE TRIBUNE'S recent competition for the new radio theater of W-G-N, will discuss phases of housing at the afternoon meeting. Presented on the same program will be Reuben D. Cahn, TRIBUNE economist, and Louis D. Brownlow, head of the Public Administration Clearing house.

Members of Twenty-Five Clubs to Attend Concert.

Under the leadership of Mrs. William J. Piggott, state chairman of music for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Samuel N. Moore, chairman of the Second district, members of twenty-five women's clubs in that district will attend the concert of the Women's Symphony orchestra at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Studebaker theater.

MRS. SAMUEL N. MOORE.

The orchestra, directed by Ebba Sundstrom, has attracted an enthusiastic following by its performance during the last eight years, and its concerts last summer at A Century of Progress gave it nation-wide importance. Clubwomen especially are proud of the fact that it is the only professional women's orchestra in the world.

A musical event on tomorrow's calendar that will attract a noteworthy audience is the concert of the Lake View Musical society at 2:30 in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The program will be presented by Charles Baron, baritone; Andreina Materassi-Barton, pianist, and Barbara Balke, pianist. Accompanists will be Dr. Frank Laird Waller and Franklin Schneider. Mrs. Cora Willis Ware, president of the society, will be assisted as hostess by Mrs. Charles Bosch, Mrs. Louis W. Mackstroth, and Mrs. W. A. Wieboldt.

The auxiliary of the Ephpheta school, the school that owes its beginning to two noted Chicago missionaries, is to have a card party next Saturday afternoon in the Palmer house for the benefit of its maintenance fund. Mrs. Hugo Zaczeck, auxiliary president, will be the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Mathias Benner, chairman of the party.

It is called a jubilee party, since it marks the golden jubilee of the founding of the school for deaf and mute children.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Betty Anne Diederich, whose engagement to Walter Eugene Roney is being announced today by her mother, Mrs. Edward R. Diederich of 3260 Lake Shore drive. She is a graduate of Marywood school in Evanston. Her fiance, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Roney, attended Notre Dame university.

When Chicago Was Young

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, April 28, 1885.

DEAR JULIA: This morning Will looked somewhat anxiously at me during breakfast, and as he put on his overcoat, preparatory to leaving for his office, he said, with an attempt to be casual: "Why don't you inspect the Pullman building apartments at the corner of Michigan avenue and Adams street if you have time today? I think you are looking pale. Do you think our long stairs are too much for you?" Of course I laughed at that, for I am a healthy person, but he went on soberly: "If you want to live in an apartment, I'm willing."

I knew at once that he had been reading some newspaper article on "Your Wife . . . Are You Killing Her?" the inference being that unless provided with an elevator immediately the American housewife would fill an untimely grave. However, as I had been wanting to visit this wonderful new building, I assented eagerly, rang for Michael to order the brougham, and got Martha Junior to accompany me.

The new building is occupied partly by the Pullman company, whose offices take up three floors, while the remainder of the place is given over to residents. It is modeled on the new flat buildings that have recently gone up in New York . . . the Granada, for instance, where I know some of your friends now live. The great height of the Pullman building . . . eight stories . . . offers a variety of suites, and being so new and luxurious, the new apartment building is attracting fashionable people.

It has many advantages, among them an uninterrupted view of the lake and a café on the top floor, where one can dine on the cook's day out. The entrance to the offices is on Adams street, while the residents use that on Michigan avenue. Heavy curtains separate the part of the hallway given over to business from that used by the apartment dwellers.

Martha and I marveled at the handsome appointments. A reception room near the Michigan avenue door has a fine Turkish rug on the floor, while a large oil painting, "The Land of the Midnight Sun," which Mr. Pullman brought from Europe, has a conspicuous place on the wall. I admired a mirror with heavy Florentine frame, too.

While we were sitting in this reception room waiting for the agent to show us about, the two young architects, Irving and Allan Pond, came in and answered many of our questions about the building, telling us of some of the people who are living there. S. S. Beman, architect of the building, is a tenant, and has his office under the same roof . . . an ideal arrangement. The Pond brothers, too, are living there and are so delighted with the location they say they never want to go elsewhere. Irving Pond had a great deal to do with the plans, as he is head draftsman for Mr. Beman. He designed the marble stairway in the Adams street entrance. He and his brother have great taste and I value their opinion, of course. Mr. and Mrs. La Verne W. Noyes are tenants. Mr. Noyes is a manufacturer of windmills and is already a wealthy man, and Mrs. Noyes is a cultivated, lovely woman. Frank Marsh, a friend of Sandy's, moved in before the plaster was dry, and says he enjoys it immensely. Then there is another tenant, the eccentric millionaire, Capt. De Lamar, who looks more like a farmer than a capitalist. We were told by the agent that when he applied for an apartment the renting clerk looked on him coldly, he was so unlike the others who were inspecting them. When asked for references he replied: "See the First National bank. I've just deposited fifteen million dollars there. Sold part of my Idaho mines to an English syndicate and not the best part, either."

Mr. Beman came in while we were visiting with the Pond brothers and the conversation turned to the town of Pullman, out on the shores of Lake Calumet, which he invited us to visit. It is well worth seeing, I know.

Mr. Beman said that he had suggested the name Pullman for the new town, but Mr. Pullman thought this would hardly be modest. "Suppose," said the sleeping car magnate, "that we coin a word by taking the first syllable of my name and the last syllable of yours." And so the town was called "Pullman." "But," said the architect, laughing at Mr. Pullman's joke, "I seem to be getting little glory out of my share of the name."

We left the Pullman building feeling that it would be delightful in many ways to live there, but I know Will would be homesick for a house and I believe I like it best myself. I think we shall remain on Rush street for the present. There is much building going on in Chicago, especially along Michigan avenue, and I saw a handsome house in process of erection today . . . the home of Gerhard Foreman, at Twenty-ninth street. It is to have two bathrooms on the second floor.

I am having a dressmaker in the house for some remodeling. Do you find the new high, heavily boned collars rather trying? My head aches every time I wear one. Sandy says they're an invention of the Evil One.

I wish you were to be here this week for a Bernhard Listemann concert at Central Music hall. I believe Mr. Listemann is considered one of the greatest violinists in America.

Good night and much love.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Many well known Chicagoans have been tenants of the Pullman apartments. Samuel Insull lived there for some time. So did Arthur Meeker. The entire building is now used for business. Irving Pond, the young architect, whose taste Martha commended, now lives at 14 West Elm street. He and his brother, Allan Pond, were tenants of the Pullman building for 28 years.

Mrs. Bernhard Listemann, widow of the great violinist of the 80's, is a resident of Chicago, as is Mrs. Andrew Sherriff, a daughter.

Duchess of Kent Creates Employment for Many Thousands

LONDON—One of the newspapers has canvassed the textile and drapery trades and emerges with the conclusion that Princess Marina—now the duchess of Kent—will cause the additional employment of between 30,000 and 40,000 workers by speeding up the changes and modifications in English women's clothes.

The idea is that she now has such an immense following that her clothes will be imitated and put on sale every time the films reveal a change.

Apparently she will be forced to "step lively," if only to avoid the depressing sight of millions of near-Marinas.

Illinois Artists' Exhibit Full of Fine Canvases

Good Intentions, Admirable Successes Go Hand in Hand, Critic Finds.

By Eleanor Jewett.

FOR ONE reason or another—but chiefly for lack of space—repeated attempts to include some mention of the current excellent All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts Ninth Annual exhibition of Works by Illinois Artists at the Stevens in this column have failed. So to try in one final burst of enthusiasm to emphasize the good intentions and admirable successes which go hand in hand with this organization's effort to bring Illinois painters and sculptors into public notice, we shall start today's column by stating that the present show is one of the best the society has given us.

It is a diversified show with its greatest strength lying among the still lifes and landscapes. The section devoted to portraiture is a little weak. The portrait of her father by Florence White Williams, "Summer Silhouette," is one of the best of this group. Kate A. Townsend carries off honors with her lovely "Victorian" in any summary of the still life compositions. Few have as exquisite and clear a touch with textiles and surface quality as has she. "Silver Glass Cranes" by Berenice M. Newman is another decorative and beautiful arrangement, painted with feeling, skill, and good taste. Elizabeth Boynton Millard shows a stunning "Lilies, No. 1," magnificent calla lilies. "Phlox" by Florence Ezzell Stevenson is capital, and "Chrysanthemums" by Bessie Helstrom is richly decorative. "Tulips" by Rena A. Hostetler is fresh and attractive. The "Mexican Composition" by Helen Andrus Haimbaugh is well done, most effective.

"The Hour of Prayer" Brings Back World's Fair.

Averil Courtney Conwell is successful in her friendly painting, "Old Lady with Bonnett"; E. G. Dannhausen brings back a bit of the World's Fair in "The Hour of Prayer," an atmosphere corner of the Belgium village. Margaret M. Ewert offers a bewitching still life in "Study in Tones" and Gerald A. Frank proves himself as brilliant a craftsman as ever in "Fruit and Other Things." Nina L. Griffin has done an excellent piece of painting in "Allowishus," and her "Roof Tops," in snow, is excellent.

Charles Hallberg shows a fine marine in "Approaching Rainstorm" Jess Hobby has a fascinating tangle of brush in "In the Heart of the Hills." Clay Kelly with "Fish Nets and Sunshine" repeats former successes in handling light and shadows and effective masses. Dale Nichols gives some of the strongest and simplest examples of realism in painting with "When the Snow Falls" and "When the Grass Grows Green," two pictures of the same subject under different weather conditions. Josephine Peterson is reminiscent in "The Sky Ride," a well handled canvas.

Martin Moe Offers a Picturesque "Lake Geneva."

Martin Moe offers a picturesque painting in "Lake Geneva" and Charles Minghi shows good water and rocks in "Lake Superior." Julius Moessel has a stunning "Encounter" and a brilliant "Tuscans." Florence Biddle ver Steeg's "The Ancestral Chair" is lovely, the flowers are particularly delightful. Adam Emory Albright shows "Seining," an adorable boy fishing for minnows. Arnold E. Turtle offers two exquisite landscapes, "Idyll" and "After the Rain." Olive Van Zieleghem's "Lake Como" is rather lovely in a quaint and precise fashion.

Among those who add to the distinction and worth of the section devoted to water colors and pastels are Rodney W. Chirpe, Nina K. Griffin, C. E. Hawthorne, Ella Husband, Clay Kelly, Peter Koelbl, James T. McGrath, Edwin Omankowski, Clara Cahill Park, Harry Pink, Carol Proctor, Ted Vognild, Violet B. Wenner, Ellsworth Young, and Wallace E. Turner.

The exhibit will continue to Jan. 31 and is worth seeing.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

A one man exhibit of landscapes by Jess Hobby opened last Wednesday in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel, to continue to Feb. 1, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts.

An exhibition of oils, water colors, drawings, and encaustics by Rifka Angel opened last Monday in the Robert Breckenridge gallery, 908 North Michigan avenue, to continue to Jan. 26.

The "Ten," a group of Chicago artists, are represented by thirty paintings selected from their most recent work in their Sixth Annual exhibition which opened last Monday in the Marshall Field galleries to continue through Jan. 21. The "Ten" are Jean Crawford Adams, Emil Armin, Charles Biesel, Fred Biesel, Gustaf Dalstrom, Frances Foy, Emile J. Grumieaux, V. M. S. Hannell, Flora Schofield, and Frances Strain.

The Commission for the Encouragement of Local Art has recently purchased the bronze bust of Mark Twain by John David Brcin to add to the excellent collection of works of art owned by the city of Chicago.

Charles W. Dahlgreen, Chicago painter and etcher, is having an exhibit of fifty etchings from Jan. 4 to Jan. 27, in the graphic arts division of the Smithsonian institution, Washington, D. C.

The Fourteenth International Exhibition of Water Colors will be held at the Chicago Art institute from March 21 to June 2. The jury of selection is composed of Edgar Miller, Jean Crawford Adams, and Louis Ritman, all Chicago painters.

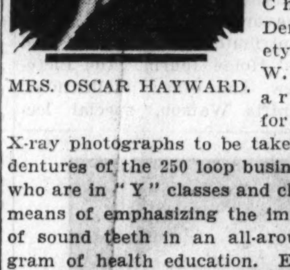
The Thirty-ninth Annual exhibition by Artists of Chicago and Vicinity will be held at the Art institute from Jan. 31 to March 10. During the same weeks an exhibit of those canvases which were rejected by the jury for this show will be hung at the Davis store. Thus one question which this exhibition invariably raises: "What were the rest like, if this is what the jury chose?" will be settled this year. It promises to be an amusing double bill.

AN OLDTIME AMERICAN SCENE

"View on the Schuylkill," by John Neagle, recently added to the Art institute by the Friends of American Art.

Y. W. C. A. Health Week

Good teeth and healthy mouths will be a subject of primary importance this week at the central branch of the Y. W. C. A., where Health week is to be observed under the direction of Mrs. Oscar Hayward.



MRS. OSCAR HAYWARD.

Through the coöperation of the Chicago Dental society, the Y. W. C. A. has arranged for complete X-ray photographs to be taken of the dentures of the 250 loop business girls who are in "Y" classes and clubs as a means of emphasizing the importance of sound teeth in an all-around program of health education. Each girl will have the opportunity to talk over the results of her own X-ray with the experts of the dental society and will be referred to her own dentist for treatment needed.

Nutrition also will be stressed as the chief factor in building and keeping good health. Mrs. Elsa Lord, nutritionist, will be at the central branch every afternoon this week to discuss personal problems of nutrition, diet, and weight control.

Women who have joined the Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women since the beginning of the club year will be special guests at a breakfast at 11:30 tomorrow morning at the Standard club. The party will precede the organization's program meeting at which Ernest Bloch, Jewish composer, will give a musical program interpreted by a string quintet from the Woman's Symphony orchestra and an octet under the direction of Lawrence Goldberg.

After weeks of preparation, Alpha Delta Mu, a fine arts sorority, is going to have its first annual scholarship benefit this evening in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. The group will establish a scholarship to be awarded to some worthy young woman to finish her education.

"Gay Paree" Again Earns Its Sobriquet

France, Old and Young, Breaks Into a Veritable Whirl of Winter Festivity.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS—One of the most cited French proverbs declares of a person, a custom, an institution, that "the more it changes, the more it remains the same." Which is, of course, only another way of saying that the changes are superficial, while the solid substance is not affected. This thought came to mind as the Christmas holiday found its celebration in Paris. The fête this year was heartier and gayer than for several years. And it is also said that there was a distinct increase of spending in the shops.

This marks a beginning of the return of confidence, or at least a better feeling, a better orientation. The Parisians can be glum, but they like not to have to be. And on pretty slight provocation they burst out with their native gusto, which has certainly been dampened for some time.

Outdoor Life Attracts the Younger Set.

While Paris was unusually animated, so was the country, or rather the winter sport resorts. The automobile and the relish of the young for outdoor life are bringing the Parisians to more and more action, especially when the weather is good. In recent days it has seemed often more like spring than the end of the month which the Bretons call très noir. A good many fêted the Christmas holiday in their châteaux, and took advantage of the last few weeks of the chasse à courre, which term covers fox hunting and the chase for deer, also wild boar—in fact, any pursuit of game on horseback.

What with hunt balls in Compiègne, Chantilly, and the Sologne, and the drift to Chamonix, St. Moritz, and the Austrian Tyrol, Paris was neglected by the active set, but far from deserted. At the Ritz, at the Café de Paris, and other notable restaurants, the boudin blanc, the truffles, the foie gras, and all the other concomitants of Christmas eve feasting were as much in evidence as ever, and there was more spirit and fun than has been seen here for a long time. Henri Bernstein's new play is called "Espoir," and many have remarked that it foreshadows that new hope which is beginning to make itself felt, after the anxieties of the last few years.

Raymond Harpers Take Holdrege Home.

When the Carleton Holdreges gave up their Paris home in the Rue de l'Yvette, this property was taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Harper, who have been much identified in recent years with the younger set here. The house they have just occupied is far back from the street, and reached by a winding path, with a pavilion, giving on to an expanse of green that was once the dwelling place of Guy de Maupassant. One of his best known stories, it may be remembered, is called "Yvette." During the holidays, the Harpers went to Brittany to be with their infant daughter. Mr. Harper's father, Donald Harper, is president of the American club here and has lived in Paris for a generation.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Remedy at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

DOMESTIC TRAVEL

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

THERE is an Arabian proverb to the effect that he who drinks the waters of the Nile will return. A caravanserai in Cairo has capitalized on the saying by seeing to it that each tourist finds beside his plate at his first meal a tiny liqueur glass filled with a brownish liquid. If he is wise in the ways of ancient Egypt the tourist will beware. For the brownish liquid is water from the Nile, and one sip of it will spell his doom.

The Nile is the earth's magic river. For more than 2,000 miles it winds its sinuous way, a vitalizing thread through a desert the size of a young continent. The things you see and hear along its green banks are to be seen and heard nowhere else in the world. Its water wheels sing day and night—the same water wheels the Egyptians have used for centuries.

You know nothing about conservatism until you visit Egypt. It has never heard of the New Deal, and probably never will.

● The first temple encountered on the voyage up the river stands covered in pictures of long-dead kings. You find little spots of blue, and red, and green in the cartouches, the hieroglyphs, the figures, and you realize with something of a shock that in the old days Egypt must have been one long vision of splendor. Its temples were gilded and painted from floor to roof.

As you proceed you gradually fall under the spell of the Nile. You are wrapped in speculation. How did these people organize their lives? What form of government made possible this amazing era of art and architecture? It is difficult to disentangle the periods and dynasties, for Egypt's splendor was of long standing. Eventually, if you pay attention to what the guide is telling you, the Pharaohs emerge in the proper order from the mystery of time. If you give your imagination free rein the cities and the temples rise again from the sand, and the uncanny gods that ruled the minds of men for thousands of years leave their limbo and walk before you on the moonlit hills.

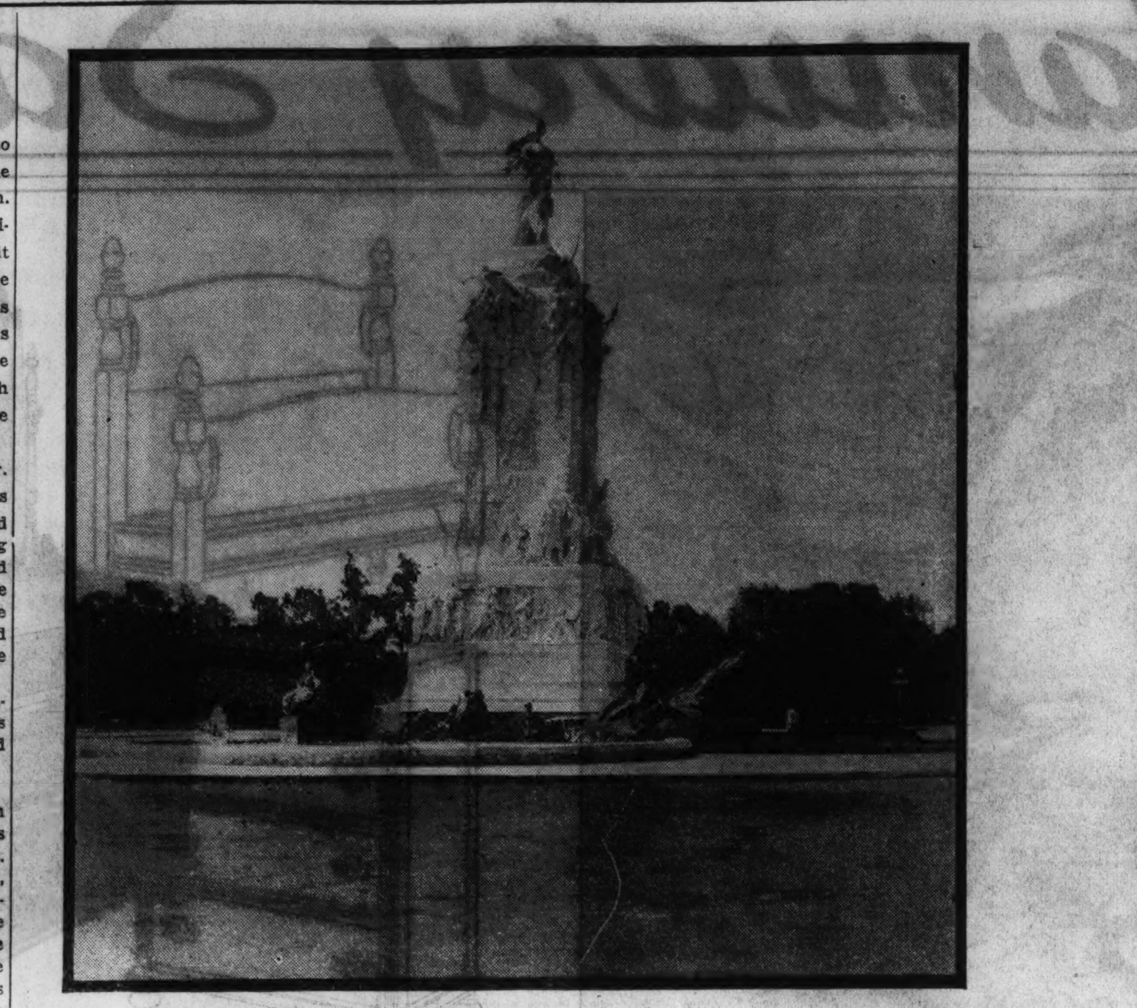
● On to Luxor, the site of Thebes. You leave your river steamer, take to a donkey, and enter a yellow cavern. It is called the Valley of the Tombs. There the mummies of the Pharaohs were placed deep in the dead rock, so that no hand should defile them or disturb their hope of immortality. One king still sleeps there with a glass lid on his coffin and a light shining on his face. You take a look at him and you're rather quiet for the rest of your trip through this ghostly valley.

Close by, at Karnak, is the greatest temple the world has ever known. Its columns give you the feeling that you are a midget lost in a vast forest of pines. At your footfall the slinky jackal, god of the dead, runs from eerie courts where the kings and the gods still sit patiently with their granite hands on their granite knees.

● You witness a sunset that violates all the rules of color; that forms an incredible pageant above the Valley of the Dead. The hotel terrace facing the river is crowded with men and women standing in silence. They watch the sunset grow, work up to its climax like a symphonic poem in music, taper off, fade, revive slightly, and finally fade again and die away. In the east is the afterglow, as pink and faint as the wings of a flamingo.

A purple mist steals out and wraps itself around the foot of the hills. The stars come out, the moon comes up, and the Nile becomes a stream of silver. The rising moon seems to awaken ancient drums. They throb and thud. A thin trickle of pipe music weaves its way like a snake through the rhythm.

In this place and at this time, with the sky's colors gone and the moon riding the sky, and with a sense of the reality of dead things, you come as near as you'll ever come to the mystery of Egypt.



ENHANCING BUENOS AIRES' CHARM

One of the monuments in the park system at Buenos Aires. It is to view such works of art and beauty that many thousands of travelers go to South America every winter.

Bons Vivants Will Hear Bob Becker

BOB BECKER of THE TRIBUNE will give a talk on hunting, fishing, and other outdoor sports at the January dinner of the Bons Vivants, Chicago organization of travel and steamship agents, at the Morrison hotel tomorrow evening. Other entertainment will be provided by a Hawaiian troupe and Victor Paul and there are rumors that a male quartet organized last week by Ray Judson will threaten to sing. Plans will be perfected at the meeting for the organization's annual dance at the Palmer house on Feb. 2.

Motor Club Opens Travel Bureau for Its Own Members

THE Chicago Motor club yesterday announced establishment of a foreign and domestic travel bureau which will provide complete service to its members. The department is prepared to arrange trips by water, rail, air, and bus anywhere in the world.

Bert Vanderwarf, manager of the touring department, said the club for some time has felt the need of this service and, believing business conditions are improving, the management is confident that this is the time to expand.

The department will be under the direction of Alfred R. Dean, who for many years has been associated with transportation companies and travel agencies in the United States.

Bus Line Reduces Passenger Rates

A REDUCTION in bus passenger fares was announced last week by the Greyhound Lines. The new rates apply in the territory east of Chicago and St. Louis and north of Cincinnati and Washington. As an example of the reduction a round trip ticket from Chicago to New York now costs $23.40, as compared with the former charge of $28.80.

General offices of the Safeway Lines, operating a motor coach service between Chicago and New York, have been moved to 2520 South Wabash avenue.

Gold Glittering in Former Vast Swamp Waste

Miami Beach, Winter Playground, for the Millions, Rose from Nothing.

By Hal Foust.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—This Islet, a waste of swamp and mangrove jungle only a score of years ago, is enjoying a banner winter tourist season. Millionaires, genuine and psuedo, socially elite, and social climbers, gamblers, politicians, retired small business men, well known screen and stage characters and hams, tin can tourists and ocean yacht owners join in a glitter of gold and tinsel in night clubs, hotels, and tropical palaces that have risen from an ill smelling morass in two decades.

It is twenty years since Carl Graham Fisher of Indianapolis, retired as a maker of automobile accessories, a millionaire at 40, decided that life really started at that age. He began laying the foundation of a career as a city builder. True, the foundation was upon sand, but it is not proof of the adage concerning sand foundations that his fortunes ultimately were disintegrated.

Discovered by a Quaker.

Carl Fisher did not discover the site of Miami Beach. It was seized upon years before he saw it by John F. Collins, a Quaker, from Moorestown, Pa. Collins acquired the seven and a half mile key lying off the Miami coast and made an effort to use it for coconut culture in a big way. He imported from Trinidad shiploads of coconuts for planting, dumping them into the sea to be washed ashore in budding condition. Something went wrong and the plan failed.

Collins then conceived the idea of building a bridge across Biscayne bay to the mainland and developing a rough sort of fishing and outdoor camp on the ocean side. The enterprise failed in 1913 and he went to Mr. Fisher for money with which to complete the structure.

The Hoosier produced $50,000 and took a mortgage on a strip of sand as security. This he ultimately acquired, but the trickle of $50,000 finally was followed by a swirling leakage of nearly a million dollars more.

Shimmering Sand Replaces Weeds.

Once involved, Mr. Fisher determined to work out of the loss, and the way he took to recover was to spend something more than $900,000 in having sand from the bay pumped over the mangrove wastes for miles and miles, until a shimmering white sandy island shone in the tropical sunshine where a tangle of weeds and undergrowth had been thriving.

The groundwork was finished in 1920, and in that year the movement to Florida began in such volume that Fisher was yanked back from the verge of bankruptcy. Prosperous days began for Miami Beach. But there were other sorry days to overtake the community, and it came to pass that with the Florida boom crash of 1925 there followed a complete standstill in the resort's development, a lapse of nearly five years' duration.

Meanwhile, Miami Beach had become a city of eight or ten thousand population, with resort equipment of eighty major hotels, 282 apartment buildings and hundreds of winter and all-year-round homes — a magnificent beach, a perfect yacht harbor, wide areas of ground devoted to sporting activities, restaurants, theaters, convenient deep sea fishing, and perhaps most important, favor of the fashionable.

From Honky Tonks to Palaces.

Miami Beach today is divided into three distinct sections. South beach is the Coney island of the south, with blaring lights at night, corn games, and the honky tonks which amuse the small fry. Middle beach is given over to a fairly reasonable apartment section and inexpensive homes. On the northern edge of this section are situated some of the larger hotels.

But the backbone of Miami Beach is the area to the north, where are situated the palatial homes of the wealthy. Publicity has turned the spotlight on the hotels and night clubs of this 3,000-acre island, but the great home section is the real guarantee of its solidity.

Despite the collapse of the land boom in 1925 and a disastrous hurricane in 1926, Miami Beach continued to grow, with a yearly building program running never less than a million and a half and totaling nearly eight million in 1929. The current program of five and a half million is the greatest since the stock market crash of 1929, and the home building program of more than 250 dwellings even exceeds the number of homes built at the height of the boom in 1925.

WINTER SUN WORSHIPERS IN SCANTY ARRAY

Miami beauties attired in the latest sun ray suits. The doctors say the sun is one of the greatest of cure-alls, and these suits were especially designed with that idea in mind. They allow the ultra-violet rays to work their magic on Miami's glittering shores.

Synagogue to Be Museum.

SULZBACH, Germany.—(AP)—Its 250 Jewish citizens having emigrated from this little Franconian town, the city council decided to acquire the deserted synagogue and convert it into a provincial museum.

Air Conditioning Is Installed on Great Northern

THE first air conditioned sleeping car to go into transcontinental passenger service in the northwest left Chicago on the Great Northern's Empire Builder Wednesday night. It was the forerunner of nearly a hundred similarly equipped sleeping cars which the northwest lines will use on their coast trains this year. Day coaches and tourist sleeping cars will be similarly improved.

"Your New Face Powder seems to do something that others don't"

IS THE VERDICT OF THIS SMART YOUNG SOCIETY WOMAN

Mrs. Berkeley Wendell Jackson, formerly Miss Louisine Munn, of New York and Paris. She was married at St. Bartholomew's last spring, in one of the season's most brilliant ceremonies.

● Of course it does! For now Tangee powder has this new and exclusive feature... it contains the same magic color principle that has made Tangee Lipstick so famous.

As you apply Tangee powder, a soft underglow appears on your skin, giving it the luminous freshness of a girl in her teens. It definitely ends that powdered look. And it never "comes out" on your nose. Nicest of all, it costs just 55 cents and $1.10.

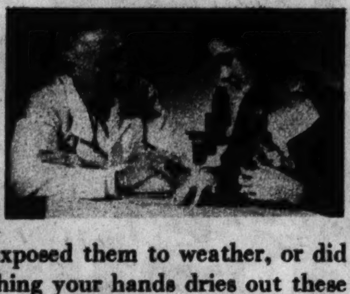
WOMEN Amazed AT RESULTS FROM THIS NEW HAND LOTION that works with nature!

● Velure's results seem miraculous until you learn its simple secret. It is the first hand lotion to soften hands by Nature's own softening method. Where ordinary hand lotions only coat the outer skin, Velure strikes at the cause of dry rough hands—and corrects it—Nature's way. When you use it, a miracle seems to happen.

Velure

SENSATIONAL NEW LOTION helps Nature keep hands smooth by restoring flow of natural oils



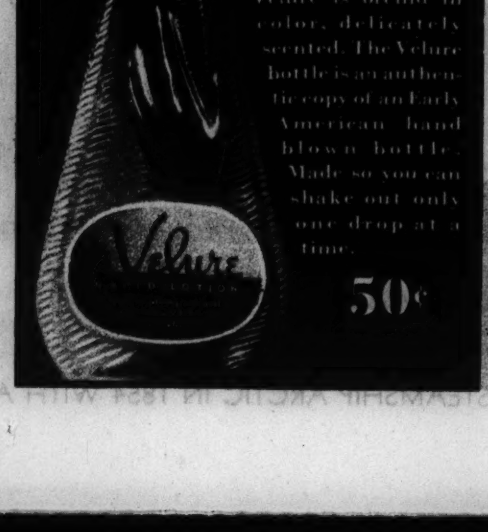
Nature's way of keeping hands soft is by a supply of natural oils from the tiny cells in the underskin. Nature's own method would be all you'd need IF you never put your hands in water, exposed them to weather, or did housework. Even washing your hands dries out these natural oils so that hands become coarse, old-looking.

The secret of Velure's amazing success is that it goes quickly to the underskin where it stimulates Nature's oil cells to their normal activity. Actually makes these cells give off more natural oil which flows up into the outer skin and keeps it soft. The very first application will delight you.

Then day by day you'll see your hands grow satin-soft, with the baby-like smoothness you've always wished for! Buy Velure today from your druggist or department store. Or send coupon below for purse-size trial bottle that contains 6-day supply.

HOW TO USE THIS NEW HAND LOTION

Don't confuse Velure with ordinary lotions and think you have to pour it on your hands. Just 2 drops on the back of each hand are all you need. Note small opening in top of bottle made to shake out one drop at a time. (Apply Velure after housework, exposure to weather and washing the hands.)



Velure is orchid in color, delicately scented. The Velure bottle is an authentic copy of an Early American hand blown bottle. Made so you can shake out only one drop at a time.
